Penn State Dairymen's Club Celebrates 20th Anniversary

STATE COLLEGE (Centre Co.) — Prior to the Penn State Dairymen's Club 20th annual meeting held Friday, Nov. 6, at Celebration Hall in State College, some of its leaders and members expressed their gratitude for opportunities it has provided.

The sentiment expressed was one noting that while the club's history may not include events and incidents that would be of particular interest to a broad audience, the club has become a warm and welcome extended family of like-interested people.

They said they are glad that it is has reached its two-decade milestone and extended wishes for it to continue at least another 20 years.

The dairy science alumni club of the Penn State University College of Agricultural Sciences was founded in 1977 (first annual meeting in 1978) and serves as a consulting group to the College and as a medium for alumni and friends of the College to remain in contact with the College, each

Pa. State Grange Sets Policy, Elects Officers

MEADVILLE (Crawford Co.) — About 500 members of the Pennsylvania State Grange set new policy for the state rural and agricultural advocacy organization last week at its annual convention in Meadville.

In addition to setting policy, the organization elected new officers and heard from a number of speakers, including featured speaker state Secretary of Agriculture Samuel E. Hayes Jr.

Among the issues on which Grange delegates decided its state policy were proposed state regulatory changes for farms considered concentrated animal feeding operations (CAFOs); the Food Quality Protection Act; farm vehicle registration plates; citizens volun-

'Family' Extends Beyond Farm, Into The Workings Of A City

ANDY ANDREWS

WYOMISSING (Berks Co.) — About a third of the 410 people assembled in the ballroom of the Sheraton Berkshire here Thursday night raised their hands when Ernest Heckman, president of the Berks Farm-City Council, asked how many farmers were in the room.

That many and more perhaps lived the truth when Paul Hoh, president of the Reading City Council, spoke directly of his experiences as the 15th Annual Farm-City Banquet exchangee.

Just like at city council, working on a farm often means working across "other families, and other farmers" in the common goal of feeding the residents of the community.

And the city council, like the farmer, takes responsibilities for things that go right as well as wrong, according to the co-exchangee, John Hix, manager and president of Skyline Acres, Inc., near Shartlesville in Upper Bern Township.

If the "micromanagement" of the city of Reading "slipped a beat on Sept. 12, I guess it was my fault," said Hix. "Because if it happened at home, it was my fault, too."

Hoh's visit to Skyline Acres left him deeply impressed with the modernization and overall "micromanagement" of a dairy. What impressed Hoh the most, he told those at the banquet Thursday night, was the "modern dairy farm with wonderful equipment — new equipment." That equipment includes a freestall barn, a hospital barn, and a double-12 parallel parlor.

Hoh took note of the fact that John's father, Ray, watches city council on cable TV. "It's nice to have a few fans, even in Upper Bern," said Hoh. But Hoh had a lot to learn about a modern dairy farm. "I learned that dairy farms were not like my uncle's farm in Quarryville, Lancaster County, with 35 cows." Cows these days have computer chips in their ears for identification and for feeding.

Hoh also learned how one person "can milk all 400 cows in several hours," he said. "That's incredible." He was also impressed with the automatic manure scraper which removes all the manure to a lagoon.

"Man, do we need something like that at City Hall," he quipped.

Not only was Hoh amazed by all the computers in use on farms, but he was also impressed with the fact that, while cooling the milk, the heat from the body of a cow is recycled to actually heat the building. The heat transfer technology "was an amazing operation," Hoh said.

Hoh, who was born in Lancaster and graduated from the city's school system, received a bachelor's degree from Denison University in Ohio and master's of divinity from the Lutheran Seminary in Philadelphia. After graduation, Hoh became pastor of the Christ Lutheran Church in Glenside. In 1964, Hoh began his term as legislator in the state House of Representatives. After one term, he became executive director of the Reading Berks Humanity Council. In 1969 he joined the Pennsylvania Northeast Synod of the Lutheran Church as assistant to the president.

Hoh returned to Reading in 1975 and became pastor of St.

John's Lutheran Church. From 1992 until his retirement in 1997, he was vice president of the Tipton Lutheran Home. In 1995, Hoh served his first term as president of city council and is in his second term.

Hoh helped prep the cows at the Hix farm (using iodine and lanolin) and learned a lot about fly control and feeds. "It was a great dairy — it's a terrific operation," he said, encouraging others to visit.

Paul is married to Mary (Kate), and they have four children: Christopher, Robyn, Eric, and Scott, and four grandchildren.

John Hix noted that his farm in Lancaster Farming Now 43!

Forty-three years ago, Lancaster Farming began to appear in rural mailboxes in southeast Pennsylvania. That date was Nov. 4, 1955. Since then, on a weekly basis, Lancaster Farming has supplied farm news, market and production reports, regular columns, special features, and advertising to our growing number of loyal readers. Farmers and agri-industry representatives really depend on us for the farm news each week.

Renee Eckley, president of Limestone Springs Trout Farm in Richland, holds a large male rainbow trout. As reported last week, Aquaculture is now considered an agricultural enterprise in Pennsylvania. See part 2 of the Aquaculture story on page A22. Photo by Vern Achenbach Jr.

Trucklot buying activity continued of a very light and spotty nature. Offerings were fully adequate with bone-in breasts starting to struggle for placement. Movement through most retail and distributive establishments remained disappointing with dealers having difficulty assessing their needs. The market tone was barely steady with underlying trade sentiment increasing in its cautiousness.

NOVEMBER 04, 1998

DELMARVA BROILER/FRYER
MARKET. FEDERAL-STATE

Movement of ready-to-cook whole birds was slow to fair and often noted as disappointing for the first of the month. Offerings were fully adequate to ample although sizes continued to vary from plant to plant. Live supplies were moderate; weights were mixed in a full range of light to heavy. Less than trucklot asking prices were unchanged at 58 to 72 cents. Trade sentiment was barely steady to weak. In the parts complex, wings were generally held with increased confidence. Breast items, particularly bone-in had increased in availability.

ty and were difficult to place. Other items were fully adequate to ample.

NATIONAL EGG MARKET - AT A GLANCE

Prices were generally unchanged. The market tone was mostly steady. Demand continued to cover the full range of light to good, and was mostly moderate. Supplies were generally adequate, and some locations held increased pre-holiday inventories. Breaking stock supplies were generally adequate for the mixed demand, and offerings of extra eggs were limited; finished product demand was good for liquid and frozen. Light type hen supplies remained short to adequate.

USDA-MO Dept Ag Market News
DAILY NATIONAL GRAIN SUMMARY

U.S.D.A. was expected to make an official announcement after the Boards closed today, but this did light a late fire in the pits. Russian aid package is short and late from what traders were expecting earlier this week. Wheat merchandisers are very disappointed and bids lower again today. Corn treading water. Soybeans higher, with some oil bids expected to show up in the next few days. Export announcements not much better than nothing this week, after several weeks of very positive figures. Wheat 4 to 6 cents lower, except St. Louis 11 to 3 cents higher. Corn 1 cent lower to 1 cent higher with Southern Iowa as much as 4 cents higher. Sorghum 2 to 5 cents lower. Soybeans 3 to 10 cents higher.

Rains delayed harvest and country elevators making more storage room and hoping to avoid big outside piles of commodities this fall. Rains doing a better job of moving grains than executives had indicated early. Some tracks are now under water due to flooding central Kansas. Sparks crop production estimates showed slight increases in corn and soybeans, but nothing to be a big market swing. Corn estimated to be 80 percent harvested and soybeans 60 percent. Combines still got a lot of ground to cover and now must fight the weather elements. Producers need two weeks of sunshine and dry weather to get the agony over with. Good yields sure helped low prices, but many reporting soybeans below expectations.

Oklahoma City Feeder Cattle

Oklahoma City, OK
Wed Nov 4, 1998

USDA-OK Dept Ag Market News
Oklahoma National Stockyards - Weekly Cattle Summary

Compared to last week: Steer calves steady to 2.00 lower, decline over 500 lbs. Heifer calves 1.00-2.00 lower. Feeder cattle steady in a light test. Supply continues mostly calves and very few yearlings. Demand moderate. Several sets of calves in thin condition with many in average flesh. This not typical of a normal fall run in which calves are fleshy but the summer drought stressed cows causing farmers to wean calves early. Quality plain to average, few attractive. Rains of 2-6 inches fell over the weekend with heaviest rains and flooding along I-40 and northward. Slaughter cows 1.00-2.00 higher. Slaughter bulls 2.00 higher. Packer demand good for light receipts. Demand remains good for thin cows destined to feedlots or returning to country. Total of 485 cows and bulls sold with 45 percent going to packers. Receipts this week 8,900; last week 14,860; last year 14,516. Supply consisted of 31 percent yearlings and calves over 600 lbs; 64 percent calves under 600 lbs; 5 percent cows and bulls. Prices follow with weighted average weight and price in parenthesis.

111 YEARS AGO . . .

Say it with flowers," said Patrick F. O'Keefe (1872-1934), coming up with the 1917 slogan for the Society of American Florists. As far as we know, he was no relation to the famous American artist, Georgia O'Keefe, born on November 15, 1887, but she sure took his words to heart. Famous for her hugely magnified close-ups of flowers, as well as her desert landscapes, Georgia O'Keefe painted big in hopes of letting others see flowers as she did. "I'll paint it big and they will be surprised into taking time to look at it — I will make even busy New Yorkers take time to see what I see in flowers," she said.

My first memory is of the brightness of light, light all around.

— Georgia O'Keefe

TIP OF THE WEEK

SHRIMP FAJITAS

1 medium onion
2 cloves garlic, minced
2 tablespoons butter
1 red bell pepper
1 pound fresh shrimp, peeled and deveined juice of 1 lemon
salt and pepper, to taste 8 to 12 flour tortillas, warmed optional toppings: salsa, sour cream, shredded cheese, and/or guacamole

Sauté onion and garlic in butter, then add remaining ingredients (except tortillas) and stir-fry another 5 minutes, until shrimp is pink. Serve wrapped in warmed tortillas, adding toppings as desired.

Makes
servings.

THE OLD FARMER'S WEATHER PROVERBS

If the leaves of the trees and grapevines do not fall before Martin's Day (Nov. 11), a cold winter may be expected.

If it is at Martin fair, dry, and cold, the cold in winter will not last long.

If the geese on Martin's Day stand on ice, they will walk in mud on Christmas.

Tull Hill Farms doesn't own that building, but a sharp management decision made it one of their best assets.

Jimmy and Michael Hill, Tull Hill Farms, Kinston North Carolina

The Hill family was ready to pay cash for a new 80,000 square foot storage facility for Tull Hill Farms. They changed their mind when Telmark explained how much they could save by leasing the facility instead. Their sharp management decision saved profits by adding to the bottom line with a Telmark operating lease. They also have a buyout option at the end of the lease term.

The Hill family found the tax breaks, end-of-term buyout option, and flexible payment plan so attractive they leased the complete facility. Most lenders aren't ready to offer this kind of alternative financing.

Telmark understands building and equipment financing needs for all types of commercial and agricultural operations. For a financing source that's been listening to farmers for over 30 years, call Telmark.

OPINION

Gave Away More Than We Got

Earlier reports came to our attention that cattle from farther south than Mexico are being imported into the U.S. But our international agreements with our southern neighbors limit imported cattle to only those animals that originate in Mexico. The intent was to exclude the glut of beef cattle produced, for example, in South America.

However, more than a year ago, we editorialized our fear that cattle are being brought into Mexico from the south, housed in paddocks for a few days or weeks, and then shipped north as Mexican cattle.

Our fears were not alleviated when again this week a report was brought to our attention by a local beef farmer that Mexico is importing cattle from Australia. More than 30,000 head of Australian cattle have been imported by Mexico. A recent shipment included 8,700 feeder cattle, 2,100 head of beef breeding cattle and 1,500 head of dairy breeding cattle.

The Australian Cattle Council is working with Mexican officials to streamline quarantine protocol in order to facilitate easier shipment of feeder cattle.

According to the report, U.S. officials are concerned that the feeder cattle may eventually find their way into the United States, potentially endangering the general health of the American beef herd. These officials should be afraid. And the concern should go much deeper in the U.S. beef industry and food production chain.

Not only is the health of the beef herd endangered, the health of those who eat beef originating under less stringent food safety regimens are endangered. And our U.S. farmers who must compete in a market flooded with these imports are endangered to the point of going out of business.

We always did think we gave away more with NAFTA and GATT than we got. We still think so.

Now Is The Time By John Schwartz

Agricultural Agent

To Understand Ag Uniqueness

A recent article in a Lancaster County agribusiness newsletter raised the question "What makes the Mid-Atlantic region different?" It stated the owners of the company have attended meetings all over the country during the past ten years. At these meetings they are constantly being asked why this region's agricultural leaders so aggressively pursue policies that agriculture traditionally opposes.

They cite the egg quality assurance program, environmental legislation crafted by a partnership of environmentalists and agriculture, food refrigeration and numerous Best Management Practices (BMP). They state there are good reasons why these agricultural partnerships have developed the progressive attitudes that resulted in definable programs.

First, it is the right thing to do! The science we know and the technology we employ provide us with the opportunity to produce safer food and enhance our environmental stewardship. Our markets expect the best from us and our neighbors must trust us. Thus, it is very important for every farmer to be willing to "do the right thing". Only by maintaining this progressive attitude can we continue to grow our agricultural operations.

To Enroll In Pork Quality Assurance Program

Chester Hughes, Lancaster County Extension Livestock Agent, states today's pork producer must recognize that what is done on the farm can affect their product all the way to the consumer's table. To keep the pork industry competitive with other meats, the role of the farmer as part of the pork food chain must be recognized.

In an expanding and competitive market the production of a safe, quality, consumer friendly product is dependent on each link of the pork food chain performing to the best of its ability. Preventing tissue residues is nothing new to pork producers. They have long been required to follow the guidelines of the Food and Drug Administration (FDA) that define their responsibilities when using anti-microbial or other health care products.

The Pork Quality Assurance (PQA) program has helped pork producers comply with FDA guidelines since the program started in 1989. Now there are hog slaughter plants requiring pork producers to be PQA Level III certified.

You may achieve this certification by contacting a PQA verifier. This could be your veterinarian, county extension agent or vocational agricultural teacher. By becoming PQA certified, you will update yourself regarding issues on proper drug administration, swine handling and appropriate record keeping. Now is the time to become PQA Level III certified.

To Rake Leaves

Leaf raking is never much fun, according to Robert Anderson, Lancaster County Extension Agronomy Agent. It may even be more of a chore once you have a fairly good size pile of leaves which you must either continue to rake or pick up and move.

An article in Penn State's PENpages, A Bundling Tool For Leaf Cleanup, may help make the job easier. You need a plastic or cloth sheet approximately 3 feet by 5 feet, an old broom handle or similar wooden object which is cut into two pieces. The short edges of the sheet are each wrapped onto one of these pieces of wood and stapled in place. After raking the leaves into a pile, bring the scooping tool down over the leaves, resting the ends on the ground. Next, push the handle's together to form a tight roll. The more leaves you scoop, the easier it is to carry them.

WHEN 'BAD GUYS' PROSPER November 8, 1998

Background Scripture:

Psalms 73

Devotional Reading:

Psalms 27:1-14

The Psalmist may have said it a bit differently, but at some time or other most, if not all, of us find ourselves thinking or even saying what he confesses: "All in vain have I kept my heart clean and washed my hands in innocence" (Ps. 73:13). To put it in a more contemporary way: "What good is it to be 'good'?"

The Psalmist was not just feeling resentful because his goodness was unrewarded, but because the sinfulness of arrogant men seemed to go unpunished. If we are good and see no advantage over those who are evil, it is logical that we should question being good. Not only were the wicked not being punished, but they were prospering while he was not! "For I was envious of the arrogant, when I saw the prosperity of the wicked" (73:3). Not being rewarded for our goodness is even worse if someone evil is seen to be rewarded.

He was thus challenging the same popular religious concept that occasioned the writing of the Book of Job. If goodness is to be rewarded and evil punished, how do we explain the good person who suffers and the evil person who prospers?

GLARING EXCEPTIONS

These ancient questions are just as current today as they were then. Some Christians assume that goodness is always rewarded and evil is always punished. But, although that often is true, there are glaring exceptions. Not every Mafioso dies unhappy and regretful. In fact, we are told that some of them die smiling. On the other hand, there are lots of good people who die unjustly. At the top of that list, we must remember, is the name of Jesus Christ!

It becomes apparent that being a Christian, obeying God's commandments is no guarantee of justice and satisfaction. In fact, doing the right thing may even bring us pain, anguish and even death. So, Christians have learned to answer these questions with the assurance of justice and retribution in the life beyond death. If God is just and loving, he certainly cannot permit an evil person to escape punishment on the other side of death.

In the Psalmist's day, however, not many Hebrews believed in a life after death and so they could not comfort themselves with the hope of ultimate punishment for evil and reward for good. (We could say this with more certainty if we knew precisely when this psalm was written.) In fact, it was this enigma that helped to inspire the beginnings of belief in the life hereafter. The Psalmist's conviction that the evil are eventually punished perhaps is leading him to speculate upon punishment in a life beyond death.

MY GREATEST DESIRE

When he "went into the sanctuary of God" during a time of worship he found some answers to his problem. He discovered that, as a man who tried to live rightly, he had found something the wicked person could never have: the promise of God's eternal nearness. "Nevertheless I am continually with thee; thou dost hold my right hand. Thou dost guide me with thy counsel, and afterward thou wilt receive me to glory" (23-25).

The Psalmist decides that, to have that assurance of God's eternal presence, is far more important than all the riches and power of the wicked. "And there is nothing upon earth that I desire besides thee" (v. 25). When we can say and mean that, the enigma of evil/righteousness/punishment and prosperity may not be solved so that we understand it, but our assurance of God's presence is better than a logical answer.

When bad guys prosper, what can we do? Instead of throwing in the towel we can, like the Psalmist, determine that their prosperity and power cannot match for a moment the glory of knowing that God is with us forever. With the Psalmist, we then confess: "My flesh and my heart may fail, but God is the strength of my heart and my portion forever" (v. 26).

Infraconic Heat Efficiency

By maximizing the conversion of gas to radiant energy, the L.B. White Infraconic gives you more heat for your fuel dollar as well as a broader area of heat output and more consistent temperature at bird level. With more consistent temperatures and a larger 'comfort zone', the infraconic helps your birds grow by keeping them warm, making it easier for them to find feed and water, and keeping the litter drier.

Lightweight and easy to install, the Infraconic is also simple to clean and maintain. And because the Infraconic hangs higher than other brooders, it's easier to work around during production or clean out.

L.B. White Infraconic brooders are available in 17,100 and 34,200 Btu/h outputs, as well as your choice of LP or natural gas.

Winter Is Soon Here, Are Your Heaters Ready?

Flexible and economical heat:

- Models to meet different needs, with heat outputs from 30,000 to 325,000 Btu/h, plus variable outputs for greater heating efficiency.
- All models are available for use with propane or natural gas
- Compact profiles and indoor or outdoor mounting capability for easy installation and efficient use of space.

Reliable and durable:

- Sentinel System III advanced diagnostic controls monitor all primary heater functions for dependable worry-free operation.
- Sentinel System III diagnostics pinpoint potential heater interruptions quickly and accurately to save time and money.
- High quality components and solid case construction washdowns and years of dependable service in corrosive environments.

PRO-LIX[®]
LIQUID FEED

In the dairy business, income over feed cost is the name of the game. Pro-Lix liquid feed supplements offer dairymen the means to maximize this value while getting the most from their cow's natural abilities.

Pro-Lix liquid feed supplements are concentrated sources of just what ordinary feeds lack: protein, energy, vitamins, minerals -- everything animals need for economical milk production and growth.

For replacement heifers, Pro-Lix means faster maturity and assurance that they'll get to the milking herd on time. If you trust your heifers to forage alone, they might not make it. (Bouvatec is Available)

For lactating cows, the nitrogen content of Pro-Lix means plenty of protein available for milk production and growth.

Finally, for dry cows, Pro-Lix not only helps maintain their health during the dry period it prepares them for the next lactation. The Ca:P ratio in Pro-Lix helps control milk fever, while the Vitamin E and selenium aids in clean-up after the birth of a calf.

Best of all, Pro-Lix works with all types of pasture grass or forage, as a free-choice supplement, a top-dressing, or a ration mix.

Christmas Trees

Larry Kuhns, a Penn State University professor and Christmas tree marketer, gave his opinions on the current market conditions for Christmas tree retailers.

Professor Kuhns has a tree farm, in central Pennsylvania, with wholesale and retail markets.

The "hottest" tree for today's consumer is the Fraser fir. Unfortunately, it is very site-demanding and will not grow in all parts of Pennsylvania.

Number two on the list is a well-adapted Pennsylvania tree, the Douglas fir.

These two species command the highest retail price. Professor Kuhns says it's hard to go wrong with these two types, unless your customers are very low-price conscious.

Another tree that is commonly grown locally, and is number three in the consumer's mind, is the Colorado spruce.

When you receive Colorado spruce, be prepared for a mix of the blue and green types, no matter what you ordered. This species remains a favorite, because of its stiff branches. Your customers can really pile on the ornaments and not bend the branches.

Following these three are the balsam fir, scotch pine and white pine. These trees are often used as the low-priced draws. It can be difficult to make a profit with these low-margin species.

The current retail prices are ranging from $20 per tree to $5 to $6 per foot, with the 6- to 7 1/2-foot sizes still the most popular.

Retailers need to keep in mind that the Christmas tree selling season starts the first weekend after Thanksgiving and is in full swing the following weekend.

Professor Kuhns offered these points when considering tree retailing:

- Start small, 100 trees is a fair start for a beginner.

- Order a species mix, heavy on the Fraser and Douglas fir, light on the spruce and pines.

- Retailing tree stands with good water-holding capacity can add to your net profits.

- Wreaths, lights, tree-life extenders and tree removal bags are demanded by today's consumer. Keep in mind that wreaths tend to sell best early in the season.

- If you are serious about tree retailing, get a net baler.

- A tree shaker and tree drill/stand system are the next steps toward achieving total customer satisfaction.

Kuhns offered these final words of wisdom: Adequate parking and effective signage are critical areas often overlooked by beginning tree retailers, and selling after dark will lead to increased sales.

Northeast Quality Forage Conference

WILLIAMSPORT (Lycoming Co.) - The northeastern offices of Penn State extension are again planning to offer the Quality Forage Conference Tuesday, Nov. 17 at the Holiday Inn/TGIF in Williamsport.

Doors open at 9:30 a.m. and the meeting will be over by 2:30 p.m. Various commercial displays will be set up.

The program will feature speakers in the morning and farm visits in the afternoon. Harold Harpster, Penn State University professor of animal nutrition, will speak on "How Feeding Systems Influence Forage Quality and Animal Performance," Kurt Rappel, forage specialist with Pioneer Hi-Bred International, will speak on "Managing Storage to Minimize Losses," Marvin Hall, Penn State, extension forage specialist, will speak on "Successful Forage Crop Establishment." Heather Karsten, Penn State university professor of crop ecology, will speak on "Managing to Optimize Pasture Production."

During the afternoon, participants will have their choice of farm visits. One visit will be at the farm of Mike and Nancy Jarret near Williamsport in Lycoming County. The Jarretts own and operate a dairy farm where they milk 160 cows. Silage is stored in upright and bunker-type silos. Harold Harpster will discuss research that he has conducted on a new baler design. The baler and a sample bale will be at this site for participants to study.

The second farm visit opportunity will be at Camerer Farms near Jersey Shore. At this site participants will see the unique feeding system used on this farm to feed beef cattle. The program makes use of silage from male corn plants. Marvin Hall will also speak on using alfalfa for grazing.

Registration cost is only $10 for this meeting. This covers your meal and bus ride to the farm of your choice. For a registration brochure, call the extension office nearest you. Registration deadline is Nov. 9.

QUESTION: We track MUN on a monthly basis and have been very successful at maintaining a 12-13 mg/dl average. Suddenly on our September test MUN dropped to less than 9. What factors could contribute to this?

ANSWER: Fall feeding and new crops being made make this a very common scenario. Most producers that test MUN monthly see the correlation between constant MUN values and their success in maintaining a constant diet fed to their cows.

There are a few things that can happen within the cow's diet that can soil the plan. One is so simple that we often overlook it. Moisture changes within the forage part of the diet can change more than the dry matter intake. Make sure diets get adjusted for this change but also consider this thought: typical Pennsylvania forage is some sort of hay crop silage.

There is tremendous variation in moisture levels as hay crop is ensiled in trenches, tower silos, bags, and wraps.

Typical protein tests can be very similar regardless moisture but often the soluble or degradable protein changes with moisture content.

Moisture levels lower than 50 percent and those higher than 60 percent, even though crude protein remains the same, can be quite different in what rumen bugs have available to them.

As a rule of thumb, when moisture levels decrease the soluble or degradable portions also decrease. Very wet forages also show higher soluble or degradable portions.

The farm was advised to look at changes in this part of the diet and indeed haylage has dropped from 65 percent 50 percent moisture as feed from their bunk. Soluble protein levels on the wetter feed were 64 percent and on the drier feed, 56 percent.

This change resulted in less available protein for use by rumen bugs, less milk produced, and MUN values were drastically reduced.

Sometimes changes occur in our cows and we can only react to them.

This dietary change was not planned but nevertheless had a large impact on the cows. We can use this to build a plan for the future that allows us to anticipate performance changes that are triggered by feed changes.

Simply put, if I had haylage that remains top quality, but changes occur in the protein fractions and moisture content, I would do what is necessary to head off performance changes in the cows.

MUN in this instance not only gave us a diagnostic tool for today's production, but we have found that by knowing what drives MUN in the diet can help us ward off potential negative trends in production.

Don't be satisfied with acceptable MUN values but instead use constant testing and relate MUN with diet changes. By doing so, I believe the 4-pound loss on 260 cows for an undetermined length of time could be avoided.

Isn't the risk of losing $150 daily worth testing for and learning to use MUN? I think it is.

Use the tools available along with your farm advisors, to help avoid a potential loss.

Better yet, develop an aggressive attitude toward DHIA records and force yourself to act and not just react.

Aquaculture Is Agriculture In Pennsylvania

VERNON ACHENBACH JR.
Lancaster Farming Staff
HARRISBURG (Dauphin Co.) — When Pennsylvania's new Aquaculture Development Law goes into effect mid-December it is expected to help one of the state's fastest growing enterprises blossom.

With the stroke of a pen, Gov. Tom Ridge recently signed into law wording that both officially recognizes aquaculture as a branch of agriculture, and also provides directives for state agencies to work cooperatively toward fostering the growth of the industry.

The stated purposes of the law, are:

- "To encourage aquacultural operators to make a long-term commitment to aquaculture by offering them the same protections afforded other agricultural practices.

- To reduce the amount of governmental agencies with jurisdiction over aquaculture, by transferring authority over commercial aquacultural operations to the Department of Agriculture.

- To encourage further development of the aquacultural industry by including aquaculture in any and all promotional and other economic developmental programs which are made available to other industry sectors."

The law directs the state Department of Agriculture to develop a plan to promote and develop the aquaculture industry, and implement the plan as regulations of the department.

A 21-member advisory committee is also to be formed with the responsibility of drafting a plan for the development of aquaculture prior to Dec. 31, 1999.

The chairman of the committee is to be the secretary of agriculture, or a designee.

Other ex officio members (or designees representing such officials) are to be the secretaries of the state departments of Environmental Protection, and Community and Economic Development; the executive director of the state Fish and Boat Commission; the chairmen and minority chairmen of the House and Senate Ag and Rural Affairs committees, and the chairmen and minority chairmen of the House and Senate Game and Fisheries committees.

Nine appointed members are all to be active producers in their respective industries, as well as state residents.

There are to be three producers of cold water fishes; one producer of warm water fishes; one producer working with an indoor facility (the other two fish production industries are currently practiced as primarily outdoor activities); a person who supplies products or provides services for the aquaculture industry; an aquacultural wholesaler, food broker or food merchant; an aquarium or ornamental species aquacultural merchant, and a representative of the sport fishing industry.

The law also directs the Pennsylvania Agricultural Statistics Service (PASS — a joint federal-state service) to conduct a survey of aquacultural activity in the state every two years.

The new law defines "aquaculture" as, "A form of agriculture which is the controlled cultivation of aquatic plants, animals and microorganisms."

While Pennsylvania is already fourth in the nation in commercial trout production, it has a variety of other aquacultural operations ranging from goldfish and related ornamental koi, to types of baitfish and foodfishes.

There are closed-system facilities (whereby water is recirculated and kept isolated from common-wealth waters), and open-ended facilities (where water is diverted from springs, wells or surface sources, and empty into common-wealth surface waters).

A number of high school agricultural projects involving the raising of tilapia, also known as St. John's fish, already exist in some school districts where such hands-on agricultural science education is still being used (as a practical lab) in coordination with classroom instruction.

Those school facilities are among some of the more common examples of closed-system facilities.

The new law provides some grandfathering of existing facilities around the state, recognizing the low-environmental impact of aquacultural facilities, and provides for general permits for operation under the National Pollution Discharge Elimination System (NPDES).

It also limits the fees, and changes an annual permit to a five-year permit.

The law also addresses some interstate commerce and biosecurity concerns.

While the law restricts the import of fish from sources that have not been approved as testing free of diseases of concern, there are no specific diseases of concern yet established. The Advisory Committee is to determine what they are.

Supporters and framers of the law take the position that while the law allows Pennsylvania to restrict some imports based upon potentially dangerous diseases, it does not attempt to impose a disease-free status for aquaculture.

In real life, attempting to create a disease-free animal population is a certainty for failure. Except for perhaps some specialized colonies of animals raised for scientific research, the chances of finding, much less maintaining a stock of completely disease-free food animals is most likely impossible, and certainly not profitable.

However, the law does allow for biosecurity of the state's aquacultural industry.

It outlines a system for the prevention of aquacultural imports carrying diseases that are not widely found in Pennsylvania.

According to the law, "Sources may be preapproved by (the Pennsylvania Department of Agriculture) for an entire calendar year. Denials shall be restricted to those sources where diseases are nonendemic to this commonwealth..." as well as for any disease associated with the source that are of concern, based upon the recommendation of the Aquaculture Advisory Committee.

The law is clear about who can and who can not propagate fish.

"Except for hobby breeders, artificial propagation of any species of fish is limited to those who have registered ..."

"Artificial propagation by anyone, whether or not registered, is limited to those species of fish approved..." by law or by regulation of PDA.

Penalties for selling, offering to sell, or purchasing prohibited fish with a market or sale value of $50 or more is guilty of a misdemeanor of the third degree. For values of less than $50, the offense is a misdemeanor of the first degree.

Somewhat related to the regular business of aquaculture, the law also includes a section that considers the fate of two federal fish research stations in Pennsylvania.

The federal research stations are considered to be state-of-the-art facilities, but are largely unused, for lack of federal funds to staff the facilities, as well as a lack of federal research projects to carry out.

According to some in the aquacultural community, allowing the federal research stations to deteriorate is frustrating, as well as wasteful of millions of tax dollars.

The law states, "The Department of Agriculture is directed to analyze needs for aquacultural research to determine the desirability and feasibility of acquiring via a public or private consortium one or both of the federal fish research stations ... should either or both ... become available."

Overall, the law is expected to provide aquaculture with a helping hand, instead of a halting hand.

According to Leo Dunn, aquaculture coordinator for PDA, "We receive several requests every week for information about how to start an aquaculture facility. This legislation shows Pennsylvania's commitment to encourage further aquaculture development."

As past president of the National Association of State Aquaculture Coordinators, Dunn said Pennsylvania gets high marks for enacting a law that targets development of the industry.

It is the fastest growing sector of United States' agriculture, and in Pennsylvania has been growing at a rate of 5 percent every year. The state is the 11 largest aquaculture state in the nation based on value of products.

State Secretary of Agriculture Samuel E. Hayes Jr. said aquaculture is part of Pennsylvania's heritage.

"Records dating back to the time of Benjamin Franklin show that aquaculture was one of Pennsylvania's first agricultural practices. Pennsylvania is the fourth largest trout-producing state in the nation."

"Most people don't realize that Pennsylvania is home for two of the nation's largest goldfish and koi farms — most of which are exported to Europe for garden ponds," Hayes said.

Further, he noted that the state is home for two internationally recognized aquaculture feed companies.

Renee (Swank) Eckley, president of the United States Trout Farmers Association, the oldest aquaculture association in the nation, and president of Limestone Spring Trout Hatchery in Richland, Lebanon County, has been involved with the issue for some time.

Eckley became involved with aquaculture in 1981, taking a labor position at Limestone Springs starting out by picking out the dead or near dead fish in rearing raceways.

The facility had been a family owned and operated fee fishing and live stocking business that was abandoned in the mid-1970s. It was restarted by another group of investors in 1980, during a job crunch in the region.

With many people out of high-paying, low-tech unionized foundry and mining jobs, the few labor jobs created with the restart of Limestone Springs were welcomed.

After a year and a half, the operation expanded into a fish processing operation, and Eckley was sent there to work and manage it. After three years of managing the processing operation, she returned to the main operation where she learned the administration, and is now serving as president of the business.

During that time, she also earned a law degree and passed the Pennsylvania Bar examination.

She said the new aquaculture law is very welcome to the aquaculture industry for a number of reasons, especially being defined as agriculture and having the state Department of Agriculture oversee the industry, instead of many state and federal agencies having their various and confusing concerns forced upon the aquaculture industry.

"Being under one department, and that being the Department of Agriculture, that defines what our industry is, which is farming," she said. "And now that we have become part of agriculture, that will help to protect and conserve and help our industry grow."

In addition to consolidating oversight of the industry into one state department, aquaculture is also expected to receive great relief from government legal contradictions and wrangling.

For government to work with a real industry, it must have a legally defined or construed responsibility and obligation to do so. Agencies can and are bound to pursue actions within a legal framework.

Unless it is legally authorized or justifiable, an agency can not spend whatever funds it wants to help just any individual or organization. The authority for an agency to act, allocate resources or consider issues concerning an organization or industry are ideally spelled out in law.

For aquaculture in Pennsylvania, it has for many years been in a state of uncertainty — depending on the time and the political arena, there have been discussions over the years as to how fish manure was to be considered (as a harmless manure acceptable as a soil amendment, or as an industrial waste subject to expense tests and dumped at specialized landfills), how the industry was to deal with labor issues, taxing issues, environmental issues, etc.,

The new legal clarification of aquaculture as agriculture is of great legal and operational importance.

"We have a legal definition of what agriculture is, in our state, so that any regulation in the future, it will be clear what aquaculture is and what we do," Eckley said.

Some of the ongoing problems that have been facing some aquaculture sectors, such as trout farming, have to deal with wildlife predation.

For land-based agriculturalists, it has been clear for years that the state Game Commission Code allows for farmers to kill certain wildlife causing damage to crops or livestock.

Years ago, the state Game Code included fish rearing ponds as operations with the authority to kill wildlife breaking into facilities and helping themselves to large and frequent meals.

Just as what happens when a wild Pennsylvania black bear discovers an open municipal dump, once most individual wildlife discovers easy pickings, it is difficult if not impossible to dissuade the wildlife from returning for more.

Pennsylvania trout and fish farming operations occasionally have problems with individual birds, such as great blue herons, green herons, and other fish-eating birds killing and eating large quantities of fish, especially fingerlings and fry.

In recent years, while the federal government provided Pennsylvania trout farmers with permits to kill specific problem birds, the state Game Commission refused to co-authorize the permits, rendering them invalid.

The Game Commission refused to do so, because aquaculture was not specifically defined as agriculture and the modern Game Code only authorized killing wildlife to protect agricultural crops.

Adams Holstein Meeting Held

JINNY WILT

Adams Co. Correspondent
YORK SPRINGS (Adams Co.) — Members of the Adams County Holstein association recently named a new director to represent the group on the state board and honored several youths at its 47th annual meeting held at Yorks Springs Fire Hall.

Keven Holtzinger, an Adams County director, will fill the post to represent the group on the board of the Pennsylvania Holstein Association.

Clay Wood was named the 1998 Distinguished Junior Member. Receiving junior production awards were Brandy Rhodes, Nathan Rhodes, Chase Rhodes, and Ashley Van Lieu. The awards were presented by Phil Van Lieu, secretary.

Now, it can be assumed that — in addition to the netting, scare balloons, dogs, and other devices and techniques used to keep predatory wildlife away from fish farms — the state Game Commission will not be able to use the lack of a legal definition for aquaculture to back out of co-signing a federal permit.

(The permits are only granted for each specific problem bird. They do not grant unlimited, carte blanche killing of the federally protected species.)

Eckley said she is enthused by the creation of the advisory committee.

"The committee is really good, because it is a composite of the industry, and helps with the team-mentality so we can work together."

She also made another observation about governmental support and obstruction in job creation, and the messages governmental and state leaders have been sending to students (of all ages) seeking to increase their chances of becoming employable.

"A lot of kids are going to college and are being given the belief that there are these (aquacultural) jobs out there," Eckley said, "but (the job market) really is tight."

"We provide some, but there are a lot of applicants out there. There's a lot of competition. (The new law) may allow for the creation of more jobs in the fields that students are being persuaded to pursue."

"They are going to school to be educated for it, and they should have some place to go to find work," she said.

"I think the law is going to help, and I think aquaculture is going to continue to grow and become a more viable segment of the state's agricultural industry," she said.

"It can help rebuild the economic foundation for the state, provide jobs, and also provide safe and reliable sources of food."

Its official mission is: "To encourage the development of strong dairy science instruction, research, and extension programs at Penn State University through member involvement and support."

However, in the terms of its members, the Dairymen's Club serves as an effective mentoring organization, as well as a knowledge and generational bridge between current students and former students and instructors.

In an era when the dairying community has become more fragmented and in some cases isolated, such an organization has become increasingly more important.

According to alumni and college staff, the organization, while limited in specific involvements with the college, is key to maintaining a mutual awareness of the educational and research opportunities and needs.

It is lauded as a catalyst for exchanging information and networking.

It also provides an extra dimension to studying dairy animal science — a sense of continuing commitment and caring by those who came before.

Even those no longer active in the organization have said that while they would like to return to being active, they can't, but only because their personal life has become too busy and compelling to allow much extraneous activity.

At the annual meeting, the organization was to have held an election for three directors to its board, and the board was to have reorganized.

Also scheduled was the recognition of the recipient of the club's Poage Grant-in-Aid — an annual scholarship program that essentially rewards young dairy science students who have excelled in 4-H dairy judging.

This year's Poage Grant-in-Aid has been presented to Andrew Reed of Reedsville.

Reed, 20, now a sophomore studying dairy and animal science, received the $500 scholarship earlier this year. He was unable to attend the annual meeting to receive the recognition because he was to have been in Louisville, Kentucky, to compete in dairy judging as a member of a four-person team representing Penn State.

Raised on his family's 150-acre dairy farm, where his parents, James and Mary Reed, keep a 32-head milking string of registered Holsteins, Reed owns about 20 registered Holsteins of all ages.

He said his family's business is based on milk sales, but they have a goal of breeding for good animals for herd replacements and to be able to offer some well-bred heifers for sale.

They have maintained a closed herd for many years.

"I started out in 4-H, in general showing cows," Reed said, "and a meeting one day, they asked if people were interested in judging. My dad was for it, and I gave it a shot, and it turned out to be quite rewarding."

Over the 10 years as a 4-H member, Reed did well. However, he earned the award based on his dairy judging achievements during his last year in 4-H.

Reed was the first place winner in the 1997 state 4-H Achievement Days dairy judging contest; he qualified as an All American Judge in the 1997 national 4-H dairy judging contest; was a member of the 1997 4-H national dairy judging team which placed first in reasons, and second overall; and was the top individual in the Jersey cattle division at the 1997 Pennsylvania All-American Dairy Show 4-H judging contest.

The $500 Poage Grant-in-Aid is to be used toward college expenses.

According to Dale Oliver, extension dairy youth activities coordinator, the College's Dairy Sciences Department Scholarship Committee selects a Poage recipient based on previous judging experience and potential to be a contributing member in collegiate judging. Someone who has had an outstanding 4-H judging career and has an interest in collegiate judging.

Reed said dairy judging skills and knowledge have great value.

"One definite benefit I see, is I can pick out good animals that need to stay in the herd, and good animals I want to buy, and I hope to help people with their animals. I might try to be a judge someday, it's a possibility."

EXPO '98 Schedule Released

Farmers wanting to adapt computers, precision agriculture and other technology to position their farms to prosper in the next millenium should register now for ACE Expo '98.

The Ag Computing and Electronics Expo is quickly becoming the premier ag technology event in the Mid-Atlantic. The third annual ACE Expo takes place from 8 a.m. to 5:30 p.m. Wednesday, Dec. 16, at the Lancaster Host Resort, Lancaster, Pa. The program includes:

* Information-packed seminars. Nearly 50 expert speakers, including experienced growers and ag specialists, tackle numerous topics in 40 sessions. Agriculturists from all fields of agriculture and ability levels will find sessions to help prepare them for business in the 21st century. Special tracks are tailored to precision agriculture, dairy, financial management and beginning computer users. Other sessions cover the Internet, field crop recordkeeping and mapping, communications, nutrient management, electricity use, fruit, vegetables and livestock production.

*Hands-on workshops. Learn to navigate the latest software in the ACE Expo computer lab! Carriage House Consulting, Mount Joy, Pa., and the Advanced Technology Center, affiliated with Maryland Cooperative Extension, provide a computer lab for hands-on instruction (two people per computer). Carriage House Consulting's Microsoft-certified professionals will provide training in several popular programs: Windows 95/98, word processing, spreadsheets and databases.

To offset the computer cost, these workshops cost an additional $25. Seating is limited (first come, first served basis), so make reservations as soon as possible!

* Keynote address on precision ag. After a hot lunch, muse about the future of precision agriculture with keynote speaker Doug Harford of Mazon, Ill. This respected management guru grows corn and soybeans on 1,800 acres, where he has experimented with everything from yield monitors to spray controllers to aerial infrared photography. His presentation is courtesy of DuPont Ag Products.

* A bigger and better trade show. Visit exhibits from companies specializing in ag software, hardware and interfacing equipment for barn, field and pickup. One-half hour between sessions means plenty of time to question vendors and comparison-shop! Refreshments will be available in the trade show room all day, courtesy of PNC Bank.

Confirmed exhibitors as of mid-October were Ag-Chem, Farm Credit Farm Management Service, Globalink/Pro Farmers of America, HeatWatch/DDX, Holstein Association USA, Lancaster DHIA, Nutrient Solutions in Agriculture, Pennsylvania DHIA, Pennsylvania Farm Bureau and PLS Agri-Management Associates.

The Lancaster Host is located at 2300 Lincoln Highway East (Route 30), east of Lancaster. A block of rooms has been reserved. Make your reservations directly with the Host by calling (717) 299-5500. ACE Expo attendees get a special conference rate of $72 for a single or double room.

Register for the expo by Oct. 31 and save $20 off registration. After that, the price is $79 a person. Bring your spouse and take advantage of another $10 discount.

For more information, check the ACE Expo web site: <http://aceexpo.cas.psu.edu/>. Or call your local county extension office for a brochure.

"Passing On The Farm" Workshops Set

HARRISBURG (Dauphin Co.) — Who will be the next generation of Pennsylvania farmers? That question is central to both Pennsylvania agriculture and your farm's future.

If you would like to see your farm remain in agricultural production, it is never too early to consider your options on how to pass your farm business to the next generation.

To help you in the process, Pennsylvania Farm Link is hosting day-long workshops at two locations at Sandy Kaye's Restaurant in Shelocta on Nov. 13 and the 4-H Center in Creamery on Nov. 24.

Individual who want to learn ways to successfully transfer their farm to family members, or those wanting to locate interested beginning farmers, are urged to attend. Beginning farmers, or people who are new to farming, are also urged to attend to discuss beginning farmer issues and ways to gradually develop a farm business.

According to Farm Link Director Marion Bowlan, "Forty-five percent of Pennsylvania's farm operators are age 55 or older. There are two times as many operators over the age of 65 as under the age of 35. In the next 10 years, nearly one quarter of the state's 44,800 farms will change hands. How we address this problem will affect agriculture in Pennsylvania for generations to come."

Working to assist in the successful transfer of family farms and to help retain agricultural lands in production, Pennsylvania Farm Link sponsors regional farm succession workshops for beginning and retiring farmers.

Scheduled from 9 a.m. to 3:30 p.m., the workshops will address the following issues: business planning, farm loan resources, legal aspects of a transfer, marketing ideas, start-up strategies, bringing the next generation into the farm business, record keeping, farm transfer strategies, and farmland preservation programs.

Participating agencies and individuals include Pennsylvania Farm Link, Penn State Cooperative Extension, Farm Credit, Farm Service Agency, Indiana County Agricultural Land Preservation Board, Pennsylvania Department of Agriculture, American Express financial advisers, an attorney, and a panel of local farmers.

Preregistration for this free workshop is required by calling Farm Link at (717) 558-7726 by Nov. 9 for the Shelocta location and Nov. 23 at Creamery.

Participants will be required to purchase lunch at Sandy Kaye's Restaurant — prices generally are under $10 (plus tax and gratuity). At Creamery, lunch is on your own.

Sandy Kaye's Restaurant is located at Routes 156 and 422 in Shelocta. The 4-H Center in Creamery is located on Rt. 113, approximately two miles from Collegeville.

Dairy Show Winners Named At Lawrence County Fair

MARSHA ANN CHESSE
Mercer Co. Correspondent
 NEW CASTLE (Lawrence Co.) — Grand champions of each of the six dairy breeds returned to the ring to compete for the title of supreme champion of the Lawrence County Fair at the end of the two-day dairy show.

Judge Brian Garrison, Tiffin, Ohio, congratulated the exhibitors on the quality of their animals and their show before tapping the Holstein, Campbell Run CM Lou, supreme.

The grand champion Holstein, a 5-year-old, was exhibited by Mark Campbell of Ford City and was also named best uddered Holstein. Reserve grand champion Holstein went to McKissick Farm with Altwi Mae Steady Mona, an aged cow.

Junior Champion Holstein was Scottown Counselor Pretty, a winter yearling shown by McKissick Farm. McKissick Farm also had the reserve junior champion, Conn-Qu black Mark Molly, a fall calf. Best bred and owned went to Ryan Rynd, Mercer, with his cow any age producing 100,000 pounds, Rynd-Home Starbuck Pretzel-ET.

Holly Liggett, Bassemmer, won grand champion Guernsey with her 4-year-old Trotacre Bucky Mamie, which was also named best uddered cow and best bred and owned. Reserve grand champion went to Level Square Smoky Band, an aged cow owned by Melanie Brockway of Bessemer.

Grand champion Jersey went to JEM Hermitage Iris Izzy-Twin, a 5-year-old shown by Roberta McConnell of Volant. McConnell's Izzy was also named best uddered and best owned and bred Jersey. Cass Ridge Farm, Jackson Center, exhibited the reserve grand champion Jersey, GR Legend Samson Hope, a 100,000-pound cow. Lackey Farm, Clarks Mills, showed the junior champion, Lackey's Juno Lilly Bell, a summer yearling and the reserve junior champion 3K Farm Imperial Noel, a winter calf.

tured junior champion honors with his winter yearling Horizon Peggy Sue. Designer Gene's Farm showed the reserve junior champion, Designer Gene's J.D., a winter calf.

Campwiss Supreme Faith, an aged cow owned by Dick Martin, Volant; Doug Beatty, Enon Valley; and Mark Campbell, Ford City, was selected grand champion and best uddered Brown Swiss. Jason Kennedy of Butler showed the reserve grand champion, Four Season Pat Greta, a senior three. Junior champion honors went to Swamp Acre Birdie, a winter calf owned by Dick Martin and Doug Beatty. Sheep Industry Deplores Imports, Files Petition

DENVER - Worried about the devastating impact of lamb meat imports flooding the U.S. marketplace, the American Sheep Industry Association, sheep producers, feeders, processors and packers filed a petition for import relief with the U.S. International Trade Commission on Wednesday, Sept. 30.

The petition triggers a six-month investigation by the ITC, to be followed by a Presidential decision as to the form and duration of the relief. The investigation, with information gathered from importers and all segments of the U.S. sheep industry, will begin immediately. A hearing on the "Section 201" trade action is expected in January 1999.

"We are confident the results of the investigation will show imports have caused serious harm to the American lamb industry," said Lorin Moench Jr., President of the American Sheep Industry Association. "All parts of the chain - from gate to plate - need to focus on seeking relief or risk losing their businesses."

In the last five years, imported lamb has skyrocketed from 15 percent of the American market to nearly one-third of all lamb consumed in the United States during the first half of 1998. More than 95 percent of the imports come from Australia and New Zealand. Imports increased by nearly 50 percent during 1993-97 and continued to rise by another 12 percent between January-June 1997 and January-June 1998. Prices paid to American producers plummeted during the 1998 Easter/Passover season, the market's traditional peak, reaching a 4-year low of 60 cents per pound for slaughter lambs.

Industry leaders blame the import surge on the Asian financial crisis and the openness of the U.S. market. That, coupled with the European Union's quota on lamb imports has turned the U.S. market into "a relief valve for excess lamb from major lamb-producing countries," said Moench.

Support for the petition has come from all segments of the U.S. sheep industry. Nine companies or associations have signed on as co-petitioners and hundreds of people or groups have contributed financial backing to the effort.

"The imports are having such an impact that you have to speak up, voice your disapproval and put your name on the dotted line. We're losing too many of our producers," said Bill Brennan, plant manager for Iowa Lamb Corporation, one of the co-petitioners. Based in Hawarden, Iowa, Iowa Lamb Corporation is the largest packing house in the nation dedicated solely to lamb meat.

The petition asks the Commission to recommend to the White House a four-year period of relief in the form of an increased tariff on imported lamb coupled with a quota, above which an additional tariff would be levied. This would allow imports to continue, but at prices that will not drive U.S. producers out of business, said Peter Orwick, Executive Director of the American Sheep Industry Association.

On Wednesday, Sept. 30, 1998, the American Sheep Industry Association and industry supporters filed a Section 201 trade action petition with the U.S. International Trade Commission in order to stem the flood of imported lamb meat into the American marketplace that has endangered the survival of U.S. sheep producers, feeders, processors and packers.

What is a Section 201 trade action and how does it work?

The U.S. Trade Act of 1974 allows temporary action to be taken to protect American industry. A Section 201 petition asks the U.S. International Trade Commission to investigate whether a U.S. industry is seriously injured because of increased imports. The process involves a six-month investigation by the Commission, then a hearing (expected in January) and a recommendation to the White House. Upon a recommendation for import relief, the White House has 60 days to approve, modify or deny it.

Why did ASI file the petition?

A financial crisis is facing the lamb industry and the petition was filed at the request of industry leaders and with the unanimous support of ASI's 11-member elected Executive Board. During the 1998 Easter/Passover season, U.S. slaughter lamb prices were at a 4-year low, 60 cents per pound. Between 1993 and 1998, imports rocketed from 15 percent to 30 percent of all lamb consumption in the U.S. American industry leaders believe lamb producers and packers will go out of business if something isn't done to stem the rising tide of imported lamb flooding the U.S. marketplace. Approval of the petition should buy the U.S. lamb industry time to complete a number of national efforts to make it more competitive.

Who supports the petition?

The 11-member Executive Board for the American Sheep Industry Association, a confederation of 50 state organizations representing 75,000 producers, voted unanimously to pursue the trade action on July 18. Co-petitioners are: the Harper Livestock Company, based in Eaton, Colo., and one of the largest commercial feeders in the country; Winters Ranch Partnership, a lamb grower and feeder with a ranch in Del Rio, Texas, and a feedlot in Windsor, Co.; Godby Sheep Company, a commercial feeder in Eaton, Co.; Talbott Sheep Company, a lamb grower, feeder and broker based in Los Banos, Calif.; Iowa Lamb Corporation, based in Hawarden, Iowa, and the largest packing house in the nation dedicated solely to the slaughter of lamb meat; Chicago Lamb & Veal Company, a processor of lamb and veal based in Chicago;

Rancher's Lamb, a major lamb packer based in San Angelo, Texas; and the National Lamb Feeders Association.

What can the International Trade Commission do?

After the investigation and hearing, the Commission can deny the petition or recommend that the White House impose an import quota, increase the existing minimal tariff (less than a half-penny per pound), or impose a combination of quotas and tariffs. Such relief typically lasts 4 years. The petition asks the Commission to increase the tariff and use a tariff-rate quota on all imports of lamb meat for 4 years. It also asks the Commission to urge the President to talk to the Australian and New Zealand governments to address the underlying causes of the import surge.

What's the goal of the petition?

To implement a trade remedy this winter that would allow lamb imports into the U.S. but prevent them from flooding the market. Not only would the large surges in imports that we have experienced be prevented, but an increased tariff would bring prices that will not drive U.S. producers out of business.

Why did imports grow so rapidly?

The American lamb market grew more attractive to foreign producers because of the financial crisis in Asia, currency devaluation in Australia and New Zealand, and the lack of safeguards for the U.S. market. Also, Europe's

Liquid Opportunities With AerWay

AerWay makes manure nutrient incorporation faster, easier, and more effective

make it possible

I chose the AerWay because it puts me in control of my liquid manure management system. This is particularly important as my farm is located next to a large Water Resource Shed. Prior to using the AerWay I had problems with soil compaction, manure run-off, ponding and loss of valuable nutrients. We spread between 3000 - 3500 U.S. Gal. per acre. The AerWay helped with the above problems, as well as reducing my tillage, fuel and labour expenses.

With less time spent in the field I am able to spend more time with my Hog Operation. The AerWay blends perfectly with my Conservation and Environmental Farm Plan.

Upper Bern Township is a large family farm. "Quite a few of us work together there," he noted. They include wife Donna and children Jennifer, Michael, and Mark. Also, John's brother Terry and wife Kim and their children, Derrick and Laura, also work on the farm.

Hix was given a tour of City Hall, what "used to be a high school," he said, and remodeled. Originally he thought that the exchange would simply be a meeting where both would learn what each other did for a living. Hix realized later on, however, that he would actually "micromanage" the workings of city government for a day.

Hix quipped about the "hospitality" shown to a working member of society. He met the police chief and was "processed" in the system. They took Hix's mug shot, fingerprinted him, and put him in a prison cell, just to learn some of the not-so-satisfying aspects of the work that goes on downtown. On the better side, John did learn one thing: "Our neck of Berks County is one of the best kept secrets in Berks County," he said. "The only one who knows it's there is the tax collector."

For Hix, seeing the big birthday cake in the city hall rotunda, in honor of the 250th anniversary of Reading, was a site to see. He noticed also the posters of the different ethnic cultures in the city. He also had a chance to tour the buildings soon to be demolished to make way for the new Civic Center.

At the meeting, Hix learned about the podium where people get up to address city council. The topic at this meeting was about vicious dogs. But in his part of the county, a vicious dog "is a dog in serious trouble himself," he said.

Hix was born in Upper Bern Township, the second of nine children of Rae and Glenna Hix. He is a graduate of Hamburg High School. Hix has been on the dairy farm for 33 years. They farm 700 acres, owning 428 acres which includes corn silage, corn for grain, alfalfa for forage, and double-crop barley. They have 460 milking Holsteins and 250 replacement heifers.

Hix noted, "I would encourage anyone who is asked to do exchange (to do so)," he said. "There are an awful lot of fine people other there, and Paul (Hoh) is one of them."

At the banquet, Kathy Scogna, a local author and historian, presented snippets of her book, "The Ford at the Schuylkill: From Lenapehoking to Frontier Outpost." With illustrations, the book details the early history of Reading and Berks County. The book recounted the "frontier" past of Reading, beginning with the extensive work of Conrad Weiser, a frontiersman, who helped immigrants settle there.

Where before the area was inhabited by the Lenape, archaeologists and historians, through extensive work with artifacts, could piece together life in the city since its inception in 1751. In 1752, when Berks County came into existence, farmers, blacksmiths, tannery workers, bookbinders, winemakers, and others soon realized that "there wouldn't be a Reading without Berks and a Berks without a Reading," said Scogna.

Bit by bit, from logs in the woods near the river, buildings emerged. The churches were the "center of intellectual life in the community," she said. Conrad Weiser was instrumental in helping to establish the many churches in the city. At one time he served on the boards of directors for 30 churches, she said.

Everyone was a farmer. Many had to plant by the signs of the moon. Sheep were in lots. Wool was spun into cloth. "Every child in Reading learned to spin a wheel," said Scogna. The city itself had orchards and vineyards.

In the mid-1700s, Reading was the home of microbreweries. In 1773, there was one license for every nine residents.

Berks County went through a "ginseng" frenzy in the 1700s. Ginseng was one of the first cash crops in the county. "That shows we have always had innovative farmers here," she said.

Shopkeepers depended on goods and produce from the weekly supplies from local farmers.

April Frantz, director of historic preservation for the county, spoke about life in Reading and the county from the 1800s into the next century. The Industrial Revolution swept the city, and with the advent of the trolley lines in the 1800s, caused a movement of people to the suburbs. Hat factories and brick kilns made up a lot of the business, which also included breweries and bakeries (pretzel and cracker manufacturers). Much of the material was obtained from Berks County and surrounding areas, including a lot of wheat and other items.

Linette Candies, founded in 1927, eventually moved to Womelsdorf to expand the operation. Luden's, which eventually became a part of Hershey's Foods, began in 1881 and employs 400 people. Berks Packing, which began in 1933, employs 160 people.

Even a small company such as Faller's Pretzels, begun in 1913, employs five people, but still maintains a thriving business in the city.

The second Public Relations in Agriculture Award went to the Dave and Kathleen Kline family, Sinking Spring. Dave, of East Side

Paul Hoh, in back at right, president of the Reading City Council, spoke directly of his experiences as the 15th Annual Farm-City Banquet exchangee. In front is his wife, Kate. Also on the exchange was John Hix, manager and president of Skyline Acres, Inc., near Shartlesville in Upper Bern Township, left, with wife Donna.

Dairy Futures Conference Set for Dec. 17-18

MIDDLETOWN (Dauphin Co.) — The agenda of the 1998 Pennsylvania Dairy Futures Conference will focus on the strength of the dairy industry in the commonwealth — and look at its potential for leadership in the national and global market.

Scheduled to be held Dec. 17-18, at the Penn Stater Conference Center and Hotel in State College, the conference is also intended as a forum for leaders from all segments of the dairy industry, according to Philip Kimmel, president of the Pennsylvania Dairy Stakeholders.

"We encourage everyone with an interest in the dairy industry to participate in the conference," Kimmel said. "We will have outstanding speakers, and there will be ample opportunity for interaction with leaders in the industry," he said.

The Pennsylvania Dairy Stakeholders is sponsoring the conference with Penn State's Department of Dairy and Animal Science, and the Pennsylvania Department of Agriculture.

Dr. Ken Bailey of the University of Missouri is to lead off the conference with an overview of the importance of Pennsylvania's dairy industry in the global dairy industry. The international market is an increasingly important part of any successful marketing strategy and Bailey will put Pennsylvania's opportunities in perspective.

With the dairy industry continuing to face dramatic changes, Gary Hanman, CEO of Dairy Farmers of America, is to challenge leaders to prepare for and anticipate change while demanding success. Hanman will offer a provocative challenge to seek out success, and use the changing economic outlook as an opportunity.

Samuel E. Hayes, Jr. — Pennsylvania Secretary of Agriculture, is to update participants on policy initiatives at the department, and Dr. Robert Steele, dean of the College of Agricultural Sciences at Penn State University, is set to discuss the college's role as a partner in a dynamic dairy industry.

Dr. David Hettinga, vice president of corporate research for Land O' Lakes, will offer up-to-date information on non-traditional dairy products.

Two panels are to offer insights on strategies for success in a changing industry. A panel of producers will feature innovative strategies to deal with change — from expanding operations to adding products and services to reaching in new directions.

A panel of management representatives will explain why they remain enthusiastic about the Pennsylvania dairy industry, and the opportunities for this state to be a dominant player in the nation and in the world.

A special feature of this year's program will be the presentation of the Pennsylvania Dairyman's Association annual awards at the Thursday evening banquet. Individual tickets for the banquet are available.

Three awards will be given — one to an outstanding dairy leader in cooperative extension, one to an outstanding woman in the dairy industry and one to an outstanding producer.

Room reservations should be made with the Penn Stater before November 16. Their number is (814) 893-4602.

Sheep Industry Deplores Imports, Files Petition

absolute quota on lamb imports has turned the American market into a relief valve for excess lamb production in those two countries. Nearly all lamb imported into the U.S. come from those two countries. In 1993, imported lamb made up just 15 percent of the American market; by June 1998, imports had skyrocketed to 30 percent of the American market. Imported lamb is priced below domestic lamb, sometimes as much as 60 percent below the American market price. As a result, the record low lamb price has pushed domestic producers to the brink of financial ruin.

Who opposes ASI's petition?

Sheep industry leaders from Australia and New Zealand have voiced staunch opposition to the petition. Their lobbyists and industry representatives have been meeting with members of the U.S. Congress and the Administration regarding this position.

If the White House approves the 201 trade action, how will the time be used?

The industry will use a relief period to become more efficient and competitive. Several efforts are underway. The National Sheep Industry Improvement Center, a $50 million revolving loan program authorized in the 1996 Farm Bill, is available to help strengthen the industry's infrastructure through capital improvements and new ventures. The Sheep Industry Transition Team continues to work to build a new, industry-wide organization and Business Development Council. The National Scrapie Control and Eradication Program, designed to maintain U.S. international competitiveness, is expected to be implemented in 1999.

How are ASI and the co-petitioners paying for the petition?

As ASI's operating budget cannot be used for litigation purposes, producers, packers and others from throughout the industry — including organizations, companies and individuals — have stepped in with contributions to pay the legal and economic fees related to the petition. To make a contribution to the trade action petition efforts, send a check to the ASI Lamb Import Fund, 6911 S. Yosemite St., Suite 200, Englewood, Co., 80112-1414.

Cattle Shelters and Cow Behavior - Article 22

Cattle, including calves, are cold weather animals. They are very comfortable at temperatures below freezing, providing they can - -

Generate body heat by digesting forages and other high energy feeds

Keep their hair coat clean and dry by being protected from inclement weather and by having a clean, dry place to rest

In the wild, animals seek out areas that are most comfortable. In confinement, they are limited to the environment and to the feed choices we offer them. Our challenge is to offer them a good environment or enough choices of environments.

In caring for cattle our goal is to:

Keep their hair coat clean and dry so it functions as an effective insulator that preserves body heat. Reduce heat stress

Shelters don't have to be elaborate and expensive, only clean, dry and well ventilated. An open front barn with access to outside lots and pastures helps to accomplish this. Shelter can also be in the form of wooded areas, tall grasses, protected hillsides and well drained rest areas; that's what animals rely on in the wild. Let us not harm them by confining them to warm, stuffy, dark, dirty, barns.

Calves are born with some baby fat. If they lie on cold, wet surfaces, or if their hair coat loses its insulating ability because it is wet, dirty and matted, they lose a lot of body heat. Consequently, their body fat reserves are soon depleted, and they can freeze to death.

Thus, it is very important to provide young calves extra energy in cold weather by feeding them higher energy replacers or more calf starter.

Also preserve their body heat by giving them a dry, fluffy rest area and a place where they can escape from inclement conditions. Well bedded calf hutches, located on well drained sites, provide these necessities. They also offer calves many environmental choices, from the deep recesses of the hutch to outside areas where there is lots of fresh air and sunshine.

Calves under about 4-6 months of age do not adapt well to being housed on concrete slabs, with no bedding, and being mixed with larger groups. Calves do better if they are moved from the hutch into another bedded pen with a small group of 3-5 other calves of similar size for about 2-3 months.

Cow Behavior

Cows are social animals with herding instincts, social peck orders, maternal instincts, feelings and memories. They are regular and consistent in their patterns, and they respond to kindness - - also to abuse, but in a much different ways.

Cows basically want to eat, find a safe comfortable place where they can lie down in peace and chew their cud, make milk and reproduce - - the very same things we want them to do so they'll be profitable for us! It pays to work in harmony with them for mutual benefit.

Thus, as we work with cattle our goal is to:

Learn how cattle act, what they need and what they want.

Cater to them so they in return will reward you profitably.

Listen to what the cows are telling you by the way they act. Where do they like to congregate? Where do they eat and drink the most? When do they like to eat and drink? Can we duplicate the situations they like in the way we care for them?

Do cows hesitate to use the stalls? Do they struggle when they lie down and get up? Is something keeping them away from the feeding and watering areas? Are cows reluctant to enter the milking parlor, and is it worse when certain people are in the parlor? If so, why? Can the situations that cause these reactions be fixed?

Ritchie WaterMaster 72/144

Easy access to valve & float by removing one cover panel

The best valve and float combination featuring a large throat for rapid fill. Fills at 20 gal./min. at 50 psi. Ask about special low and high pressure valves.

Optional electric float available.

A rotocast polyethylene body features thick urethane insulation. Each 72" unit has 6 recessed heavy web anchors.

Plenty of water is important!

Lead a cow to water and she'll probably drink! Michigan State research shows:

- Daily water intake ranges between 17 gal. to 22 gal. a day for cows producing between 64 lb. and 81 lb. of milk.
- Cows drink 12 to 16 times per day.
- Time spent drinking per day is between 14 and 17 minutes.
- A cow slurps an average of 1.4 gal. to 1.6 gal. per drink.

A single 72" model is just half of the 144" unit.

KAREN BUTLER
FREDERICK, MD. — About

250 steers, hogs, and market lambs went through the sale ring here at the 136th Great Frederick Fair, grossing more than $225,000 for the county's youth and special programs. The market animal sale by members of the Frederick County 4-H Beef, Sheep, and Swine Club was held in the beef show ring at the Frederick fairgrounds.

Eight-eight market hogs averaged $1.65 per pound with the champions included, and $1.49 without champions. Brother and sister Daryl and Andrea Hood of Union Bridge had the grand and reserve grand champion market hogs, respectively, with a pair of Duroc gilts. Twelve-year-old Daryl sold his 256-pound grand champion hog to F & M Bank of Frederick for $15.50 per pound. Sixteen-year-old Andrea sold her 241-pound reserve grand champion hog to Horseland, USA, of Frederick for $10 per pound. The Hood siblings are the children of Denis and Nancy Hood, Union Bridge.

The Wolfe pig, a fundraiser, sponsored by the Wolfe Industrial Auctions to benefit the 4-H Livestock Judging Team, was a 258-pound hog raised by Robin Albaugh of Union Bridge. The hog was purchased for $9.50 per pound by Ceresville Ford - New Holland; Willowdale Farm; and Nancy and Patsy Gordon of Jefferson, Md.

Fifty-two market lambs averaged $3.61 per pound with the champions, $3.42 without the champions. Elyssa Hevner, sixteen-year-old daughter of Clifford and Karen Hevner, Union Bridge, sold her 117-pound grand champion crossbred wether to Giant Food of Frederick for $13 per pound. The reserve grand champion market lamb was sold by Tammy Green, the 17-year-old daughter of Harold and Diane Green, Thurmont. Diane sold her 115-pound Hampshire x Suffolk lamb to Safeway of Frederick for $5 per pound.

The Miller lamb is a fundraiser sponsored by the Miller family that benefits the Frederick County Therapeutic Horseback Riding program.

Aaron "Bud" Matthews raised the 97-pound lamb this year, and sold it for an unbelievable $65 per pound to a syndicate of buyers calling themselves the Friends of 4-H. Syndicate members were Concrete General; Liberty Road Seafood; Hutzell, Curtis, and Sheets Realty; James Avery Clark Produce; Ausherman Homes; the Cindy Dee restaurant; James G. Cochran Auctioneers; Harold Martz and Sons; Crumland Farms; Remsburg Paving; Tire Mart; N.Z. Cramer and Sons; Wolfe Auctioneers; Kelly and Associates Coldwell Banker; Accubid Excavation; Potomac Tile and Carpet; First National Bank of Maryland; Kline, Scott and Visco; Joseph Devilbiss Construction; Yarnell P. Wastler and Son, Inc.; Daniel and Brenda Braucher; and Conner Miller.

One hundred-four steers went through the sale ring for an average of $1.34 with the champions and $1.29 without the champions. Twelve-year-old Tyler Fitzwater, son of William and Linda Fitzwater, Frederick, sold his 1280-pound grand champion crossbred steer to Jimmy Remsburg of Middletown, Md. for $6.50 per pound. The reserve grand champion steer was a 1160-pound crossbred raised by Michael Considine, the 16-year-old son of Brian and Robin Considine of Middletown. Mike sold his steer to Giant Food for $4.50 per pound.

The Moser steer, a fundraiser to benefit the Beef, Sheep and Swine Club, was raised by James Holter, Jr. of Jefferson. The 1,145-pound steer sold to a syndicate of buyers for $20 per pound. Buyers were Sanbower Builders; FNCB Bank; Joseph Devilbiss Construction; Morgan-Keller, Inc.; Concrete General, Inc.; R.F. Kline, Inc.; Wineburg and Wineburg; Yarnell P. Wastler and Son, Inc.; Frederick Underwriters, Inc.; Ausherman Construction, Inc.; and Joey Biser.

Hereford Association Announces Top Pa. Recording Herds

KANSAS CITY, Mo. — Registrations are essential to the success of the purebred cattle herd and are key to the survival of breed association.

Salunga Acres, Mount Joy, led the way in number of Hereford cattle from Pennsylvania registered at American Hereford Association during the 1997-1998 fiscal year. The operation registered 79 head from Sept. 1, 1997 to Aug. 31, 1998.

Hunt Farms, Slippery Rock, ranked second in the state and registered 64 head. Flat Stone Lick, Marianna, was third with 34 registrations.

Other herds that qualified for a top-10 registration rank were Glenview Farms, Shinglehouse; Shamrock Polled Herefords, Hop Bottom; Stone Ridge Manor, Gettysburg; Bancroft Farm, Avella; Curt Stockdale, Dayton; High Hopes Farm, Waynesburg; and Maple Springs Farm, York Springs.

For more information on registering Hereford cattle, contact John Hough, AHA director of research and performance records, at (816) 842-3757.

EDITOR:

The larger dairy farms are expanding while the smaller farms are going out of business. How would it work out if there were a two price system for dairy farmers with the smaller farmer getting cost of production and the larger farmers getting a floating price. The larger farms are very efficient and utilize modern technology. With higher prices and lower feed costs there will be a glut of milk. It is socially desirable to keep the smaller dairy farms viable. The larger farms are milk manufacturing facilities rather than true farms. The government controls milk prices with milk marketing orders, blend prices, transportation differentials, N.E. dairy compost. Why not help the smaller farmer. If the larger farmers were to realize their prices could drop substantially, it might slow their mass expansion race.

Adams County Has A Number Of Farmers Who Are Young

JINNY WILT

Adams County Correspondent

GETTYSBURG (Adams Co.) — Ed Wilkinson, 32, president of Adams County Farm Bureau, stands along side the dairy barn on one of Getty Acres' farms in Adams County waiting for his brother Dan Wilkinson and brother-in-law Chris Smith to arrive.

He is mulling over the question "Why did you stay on the farm?" The others will soon arrive to join the conversation.

It's a question asked because David Kann Jr. of the Adams County Conservation District, who has worked in York and Adams counties, said he sees far more young men staying with farming in Adams County than he saw in York County.

The Wilkinson brothers and Smith say for one thing they find the work rewarding and they don't have to punch a clock.

And another young Adams County farmer, 22-year-old Brian Reaver first found out what it was like to work off of the farm, but when the need arose on the farms of his grandfather Henry Reaver, he came back to lend a hand. "I couldn't see it go out of the family and I'm not sorry I came back. I'm going to keep at it. I grew up on it," Brian said.

But, Brian cautions, a young person just getting into farm should know that "they've got to be dedicated to work. You just can't get up and go."

While Kann does not have specific statistics on how the two counties compare he notes that he can quickly count 15 or so young men in Adams County who have chosen farming as a career. In the years he was in York County, he could not report the same thing.

Kann believes some of the reasons farming attracts the younger generation in Adams County is the fact that land rent is much cheaper.

"I spoke with several farmers last week who said they are renting ground for $20 and $40 an acre. But you go to York County you're being charged $80 and $100 and in some cases $120 . . . that's rough for a farmer who's been paying $80 or $90 an acre and somebody comes in and stiffes them by saying 'Mr Landowner, I can give you $120 per acre,'" he said.

The rejection is difficult for the farmer to take, but on the other hand, Kann said, you can't blame the landowner "because he's just looking for enough money to pay the taxes."

The cheap land rent "entices younger guys to afford to get into farming," Kann believes. They can stake out 40 or 50 acres and use the equipment already on a relative's farm. "They can start out small," he said.

Kann further explains that land rent is cheap because soil is poorer in Adams County than in York County.

"You're not going to get your yields like Southern York County of 150 to 200 bushels of corn. Oh, there are pockets, don't get me wrong, but most of the time you're going to get 90 to 100 bushel an acre and if you're only paying $40 an acre rent there's some money to be made," he said.

Ed Wilkinson said land leased in his operation is reasonable "simply because the landlord doesn't want to see development or it can't be developed because of perc tests. Those are the two things keeping development in check around here (Getty Acres) is it's hard to get a perc test and if they do get one it's on such a big acreage that a lot of people looking for the small lot don't fool with it."

Further, knowing that the yields will not be as great, Adams County farmers tend to diversify, Kann explained. While York County farmers can survive on "corn, soybeans, corn, soybeans," Kann said, noting that livestock is leaving the York County.

"York County is focused on crop production, strictly crop production," he continued. This also accounts for the increase in custom harvesting, where the owner of large pieces of equipment come to a farm and harvest a crop, and adds to the farmer's profits. They do not need to buy a $125,000 combine, for example, and maintain it while using it only once or twice a year, he explained.

In fact the Wilkinson brothers, while today they limit the amount of custom harvesting they do, have provided this practice for Adams County farmers in the past. Kann said it seems, because Adams County is smaller, to be easier to find someone to custom harvest.

Kann also believes the fact that Adams County remains mostly rural with less commercialism there is not the draw on a young person to go into another business.

In Adams County, "You still have that kid tie to agricultural," he said.

And that tie is supported through the six Adams County school districts where a vocational-agricultural course is offered in each.

Kann said, "Vo-ag's come a long way to attract more students. It's not just cows and plows anymore. It's more sophisticated, computerized management of farms."

All of the young farmers interviewed had graduated from the vo-ag course in their respective school districts.

"I don't think you can put your finger on any one thing and say that is why young men stay in farming in Adams County, because there are several reasons why," he said.

For Ed Wilkinson, it's been the work in 4-H and FFA "that prompts you to stick closer" and stay involved in the farm.

Just out of high school "I guess I had in my head I was going to farm because I didn't know what else was out there. Since then I've gotten CDs to run the tractor trailers and a lot of options have opened up. You're not doing the exact same thing every day. I guess I wouldn't have stayed if I had to milk cows," Ed said.

It's important for the young person on the farm to be able to challenge themselves, he said. "I think that's why a lot of young guys look elsewhere, if the opportunity isn't there for them to challenge themselves and grow, they'll look to an occupation that gives them that challenge," he said.

For Dan Wilkerson, 30, working on the farm ever since he can remember anything "makes it just sort of stick with you."

"Here I can see a chance to take over something that dad (Larry Wilkerson) has started and put a lot of hard work and effort into. In high school I started buying equipment and leasing it to dad. When we went into the partnership with dad all that came along," Dan said.

Here Ed interjects "a lot of the credit's got to go to dad, he gave us room and both of us had equipment that he leased from us."

The brothers note that many times young farmers run into struggles with the elders in the family because there's not enough room given for new methods. And they too had to follow their father's directions when they were working on their father's farm, but when they wanted to try to do something in a different way they'd go onto their own ground "and did it our way."

Young Farmers Host Educational Program

LEBANON (Lebanon Co.) —

A two-day educational event featuring pesticide application, a dairy nutritional program, and a corn silage harvest equipment demonstration is scheduled for Nov. 16-17 in the Lebanon County area.

The event will begin at Zimmerman Farm Services, School Road, Bethel, on Tuesday, Nov. 16, from 10:30 a.m. to 1:30 p.m. Brubaker's Agronomics will present programs for pesticide credits. Miller Pro will have equipment to test nozzles (bring them along).

On Wednesday, Nov. 17, activities will begin at 10 a.m. at Tom and Shirley Krall's farm, two miles west of Schaefferstown on Rt. 419.

A field equipment demonstration will be held from 10 to noon. The following equipment will be demonstrated in harvesting an 8-acre corn silage field:

- Class 840 forage harvester
- Gehl CB1275 harvester with crop processor
- New Holland FX25 harvester with roller mill
- Miller Pro forage wagon
- Gehl 980 forage wagon
- Miller Pro blower
- 2 Ford/New Holland tractors, Genesis 8670 and 7740.

After lunch, the dairy nutrition program will be held from 12:45 p.m. to 1:30 p.m. Tim Lehman, Agway nutritionist, will talk about maximizing butterfat, rumen health, and milk production. Carl and Dan Brandt, who have the highest butterfat herd in Lebanon County, will also be sharing.

For more information and reservations, call Tom Krall (717) 274-5891 or Zimmerman Farm Service (717) 933-4114 or Tulpehocken High School (717) 933-4114.

Tulpehocken Adult Young Farmers and Miller Pro is hosting the event held at Zimmerman Farm Service. Cedar Crest Young Farmers is hosting the event at the Krall farm.

Secretary Hayes Announces Chemsweep Success

HARRISBURG (Dauphin Co.) — On behalf of Gov. Tom Ridge, Agriculture Secretary Samuel Hayes Jr. last week announced that more than 830,000 pounds of waste pesticides were collected from 3,000 farmers and agribusinesses through a Department of Agriculture environmental program known as Chemsweep.

Secretary Hayes announced the completion of a sweep on the entire state at an Oct. 30 ceremony at Strite's Orchard in Harrisburg.

"Chemsweep started in 1993 in six counties as a cost-effective way for farmers and agribusinesses to properly dispose of unwanted, canceled, suspended or unusable pesticides," said Hayes. "Today, all 67 counties participate in this important environmental program."

Through Chemsweep, the Pennsylvania Department of Agriculture picks up unwanted pesticides from participants during regularly scheduled visits. The department disposes of the pesticides at EPA approved facilities.

The following counties have been selected to participate in the next round of collections: Armstrong, Berks, Blair, Bradford, Cambria, Chester, Crawford, Erie, Indiana, Juniata, Luzerne, Montgomery, Perry, Susquehanna and York.

Farmers, mushroom producers, Christmas tree growers, nurseries and other commercial enterprises are all eligible to participate.

Applications for the program will be mailed to farmers and agribusinesses in participating counties in early November.

These applications also will be available from county Extension offices and the Department of Agriculture.

The Department of Agriculture also operates a voluntary household collection program in several counties. The household program, begun in 1997, has collected more than 21,000 pounds of household products.

The department plans to broaden the household collection program next summer and fall.

The Department of Agriculture's waste pesticide collection program is funded through annual product registration fees paid by chemical manufacturers. There is no cost to participants or taxpayers

Dave fame and the Mountain Folk Radio Show, according to Hughes, is GM of WEEU Radio and a member of Goughersville Grange.

Kline was also honored for his dedication to the wide-ranging promotion of agriculture in the county. On hand to accept the award was Dave and his family, including Kathleen, his wife, and daughters Sasha, 7; Hilary, 9; and Dane, 12.

Winner of the Tressie Caton Woman In Agriculture Award was Judy Schwank, extension horticultural agent and Berks County extension director. Schwank was credited with establishing the Master Gardener Program in the county, helping with the start-up of the Kutztown Produce Auction, and for other long-ranging horticultural services in the county. The award honors Tressie Caton, a "super lady," said John Hvizda, owner of A & J Insurance, Hamburg, who presented the award. Caton was very dedicated to the agribusiness community of the county, who passed away several years ago.

Also honored for service to the Berks Farm-City Council and the Agribusiness council for 15 years of service was Jack Schonely.

Market Animals Sell Well At Maryland State Fair

TIMONIUM, Md. — Average prices for market hogs were comparable to a year ago at the recent 4-H & FFA livestock sale Sept. 2 here at the Maryland State Fair.

This ran counter to the fact that livestock prices at nearby Pennsylvania auction markets are considerably lower than 1997 levels—especially for market hogs and lambs.

Average sale prices for market lambs at the state fair followed the downward trend prevailing at nearby markets, while market steer prices were somewhat higher.

Market Hogs

Brittany Full of Mount Airy, an 8-year-old, first-year Howard County 4-H member, sold her grand champion market hog for $11 per pound, the highest Maryland State Fair price in recent memory. Brittany's 250-pound Hampshire crossbred gilt was purchased by "The Squealers," a Sykesville area buyers syndicate, which donated the animal to the state fair livestock sale committee.

Two market hogs brought $3.50 per pound for their owners.

Justin Frey, 14, of Williamsport (Washington County) sold his 255-pound Yorkshire-Hampshire barrow to the Stop Construction Company of Madonna (Harford County). Justin's pig won grand champion lean-gain honors at the state fair with an average daily gain of 2.24 pounds.

Jennifer Kirwan, 12, Centerville (Queen Anne's County) sold her 275-pound Hampshire gilt to Nationwide Insurance.

Brittany and Jennifer's accomplishments illustrated a trend that saw "girls with gilts" combinations bring most of the top prices throughout the sale.

Not counting the grand champion, 25 gilts averaged $1.64 per pound. This compared with an average of $1.52 per pound for 14 barrows and an overall average of $1.60. Last year's overall sale average was $1.63 per pound. The 1996 average was $1.43.

Market Lambs

Jesse Rohrer, 16, of Sharpsburg (Washington County), made virtually a clean sweep of top honors in 4-H and FFA sheep competition at the Maryland State Fair. He had the champion ewe in three breeding classes—Hampshire, Shropshire and Suffolk—as well as the champion Shropshire ram. And his champion Suffolk ewe was selected as supreme champion in competition among nine breeding sheep categories.

But Jesse's crowing achievement was winning grand champion honors in the market lamb show with a 125-pound Suffolk wether. He sold it for $6 per pound to William F. C. Marlow, Jr., of Towson, a board member of the Maryland State Fair and Agricultural Society, and his law partner, Michael Wyatt.

Jesse showed a 120-pound Shropshire wether to reserve champion honors at the state fair last year. It brought $10 per pound from Wills & Associates, a Baltimore public relations firm.

Two market lambs each brought $2.60 per pound in this year's sale.

Dora Tammara, 12, of Cooksville (Howard County) sold her 125-pound Suffolk ewe

Building Miniature Farmsteads, Collecting Farm Toys Part Of Farming For This Huntingdon Dairyman

EVERETT NEWSWANGER
Managing Editor

HUNTINGDON (Huntingdon Co.)—Building miniature farmsteads and collecting scale model farm toys go together for Terry Eutzy, a farmer from Huntingdon. Both lines of hobby interest stem from the childhood of his children. The first barn Eutzy made was for his young son and so were the first farm toys he bought.

Eutzy grew up on a farm himself and later, after a stint in the armed service and employment as a contractor and carpenter, he came back to the farm.

"I started to build scale model farms in my spare time with ideas out of my head," Eutzy said. "I had extra wood pieces from my carpentry work that were just too good to throw out. Now most of my farm buildings are replicas of actual farms."

Eutzy has a model of a farm in Indiana near the Ohio line, and one of a nearby farm he brought back to life in his miniature setting.

But his most famous building and one that took the most work is a model of the round barn located near Gettysburg. After taking four rolls of film to capture all the intricate construction work in the building, Eutzy put together a scale model, complete with structural rafters to cow stalls that are placed around the bottom stable floor. He left openings in the shell of the building so you can view the neat work done on the inside of the building.

Today the Eutzy family farms 240 acres and have a large herd of Holsteins. Of course, his spare time is devoted to the model building hobby. It may take five or six months to complete a building.

More recently, Eutzy has switched to balsa wood and other materials obtainable from hobby shops. Farmstead layouts on plywood platforms are built with green and brown materials glued into place to make fencerows, windrows, and fields of baled hay.

As for the farm toy collection, Eutzy started in 1986 and has several thousand pieces. But he says he doesn't have nearly all of what's available.

"It's hard for kids, both young kids and old kids at heart, to collect anymore," Eutzy said. "There are just too many pieces and it gets expensive. You have to cut back and collect only one or two lines."

The display shed on the farm has a loft that can accommodate two more farm sets. But Eutzy has dreams of finding a barn along a more traveled highway to open a display center and museum. But maybe he will just build an enlargement to his present display building on the farm. Either way, those who visit the unique display come away feeling a bit of love for farming as shown in the special artistic style of Terry Eutzy.

The intricate construction of the equipment in the cow barns and milk house can be seen through removable plastic roof tops.

The famous round barn near Gettysburg is reproduced in scale down to the feed bunks in the lower stable area.

to Kathleen Devin, and Matt Fogle, 14, of Woodbine (Carroll County) sold his 130-pound black wether to the Stop Construction Company of Madonna (Harford County).

The average price for 39 lambs in the sale—excluding the grand champion—was $1.58. This is exactly double the prevailing average price at nearby Pennsylvania auction markets. But it compares with a $2.13 state fair average last year. The average price in 1996 was $1.40.

Market Steers

Something unusual happened during the 4-H and FFA market steer sale this year at the Maryland State Fair. The average price for three dairy steers—88 cents per pound—was higher than the average price for 14 beef steers—84 cents—not counting the grand champion.

The dairy steer average was skewed by the fact that Jenny Miller, 13, of Shawsville (Harford County), sold her 1,275-pound Milking Shorthorn steer for $1.07 per pound—the second-highest selling steer in the sale.

Ryan Orndorff, 14, of Dayton (Howard County) sold his grand champion beef steer, a 1,235-pound Angus, to the Stop Construction Company of Madonna (Harford County). It brought $2.70 per pound. This was the third successive year that Stop purchased the grand champion beef steer at the state fair.

Ryan Downey, 17, of Downsville (Washington County) again had the grand champion dairy steer at the Maryland State Fair. His 1,340-pound Holstein was sold for $1.00 per pound—outselling the other beef breed champions. Ryan's steer was purchased by George Wills and Associates, a Baltimore public relations firm. By contrast, Ryan's grand champion dairy steer last year brought only 65 cents per pound.

Michael Harrison, 18, of Woodbine (Carroll County) and Andrea Warfield, 16, of Alpha (Howard County) each sold an Angus steer for 97 cents per pound. Michael's 1,285-pound animal was the champion rate-of-gain steer. It was purchased by Loretta Wideman. Andrea sold her 1,200-pound animal to West End Service, Inc., of Ellicott City (Howard County).

The overall sale average of 85 cents per pound compared with an average price of 60 cents at nearby Pennsylvania auction markets. Last year's state fair average for market steers was 79 cents; it was 86 cents per pound in 1996.

Capons And Goats

Courtney Hill-Dukehart, 14, of Cooksville (Howard County) exhibited the champion and reserve champion Market birds in the 4-H and FFA poultry show this year at the Maryland State Fair. Both birds were capons weighting 12-13 pounds apiece, and they were offered for sale at the start of the 4-H and FFA livestock auction on September 2. This marked the fourth time that Cortney had appeared in the state fair sale ring with a champion capon.

Her champion capon this year brought $120—a new state fair record. It was purchased by Mullinix Veterinary Services of New market (Frederick County). Cortney's reserve champion capon went for $105 to Mike Harrison of Washington Farm at Woodbine (Carroll County).

Elizabeth A. Roberts, 15, or Bryantown (Charles County) had the grand champion 4-H and FFA market goat at the Maryland State Fair for the third consecutive year. Her 70-pound Nubian-Boer crossbred wether was sold for $3.90 per pound to Chris Farrell, district sales manager at La Plata for Coca-Cola Enterprises. This price was down slightly from the previous two years, but still five times the prevailing price at nearby Pennsylvania markets.

Samantha Feeser, 17, of Taneytown (Carroll County) sold her reserve champion market goat to Mullinix Veterinary Services of New Market (Frederick County). The 65-pound Boer crossbred wether brought $3.10 per pound.

Stress, Your Health, and a Banquet

How many times do farmers smile or laugh when, during the peak of the harvest season, the combine breaks down in the middle of the furthest field from the shop at 9:00 in the morning? Or how about when the baler decides it has had enough, just as you start baling your best crop of alfalfa with heavy showers on the way?

Farming can be one of the most rewarding careers in the world, but it can also be one of the most stressful. That's why successful managers recognize signs of stress and have a strategy to deal with it.

First, let's define stress. Hans Selye, a pioneer in medical research, defines stress as "the rate of wear and tear within the body" as it adapts to change or threat. It is a state of tension that is created when a person responds to the demands and pressures that come from work, family, or other sources. Responding to those demands while protecting ourselves from their harmful impacts can help us remain healthy.

Second, stress is both additive and cumulative. This means the symptoms can manifest themselves physically or psychologically. Irritability, anxiety, confusion, frustration, and anger are all mental signs of stress. Physical symptoms include muscle tension, headaches, lower back pain, insomnia and high blood pressure.

The good news is there are ways to manage stress to reduce its impact on your health. It can be as simple as doing a better job of planning your workload. One of the best ways to manage your stress is through a good sense of humor. Our sense of humor gives us the ability to release tension and can be a powerful antidote for stress.

Another way to manage stress is to take a break. The fall means long hours with short deadlines. Find some time for golf or take in a high school football game. Or, as one farmer put it, "Thank God for buck season!" No matter what methods you use, the important thing is spending time away from what is causing stress and endangering your health.

As a final suggestion for a way to take a break, let me invite you to attend The Lancaster Chamber of Commerce & Industry's annual celebration of agriculture. Dean Kleckner, president of the American Farm Bureau Federation (AFBF), the world's largest farm organization, and a trade advisor serving under three United States Presidents will be the keynote speaker for the 22nd Annual Lancaster Chamber Agriculture-Industry Banquet, sponsored by the Chamber's Agriculture Committee.

Also, Al Pell anchor of Ag Day, the only daily television program syndicated nationally, will emcee the banquet.

Ag Day and Pell can be seen at 5:30 a.m. Monday through Friday on WPMT Fox 43 and Saturdays on WGAL Channel 8 also at 5:30 a.m. Ag Day is a popular news talk show dedicated to agriculture and agri-business information.

Dairymen's Club

He wouldn't be alone. Other recipients of the scholarship have gone on to judge dairy shows regularly, while other have done so for at least several years.

His interest in dairy exhibition has been ongoing. Locally, at the Mifflin County Fair, he showed the overall grand champion dairy animal for the last four years.

One of his cows, Reed-Gap Starbuck Enchantment, an Excellent-90 Holstein, was named grand champion and supreme champion for three years in a row — 1995-97.

This past summer he also took the county fair overall championship with a 4-year-old dry cow — Reed-Gap Star of Liberty, a homebred cow out of a sire (DQA Blackstar) bred by a family relative, Donald Adams of Juniata County.

The dry 4-year-old also won her class at the Pennsylvania Holstein Association Central Championship Show this year, and was named best bred and owned.

The family herd contains three known Excellent cows, although the herd was to have been classified yesterday.

Reed said he felt very complimented in being awarded the Poage Grant.

"I thought it was great," he said. "It gives younger people a desire to strive for that. It's a great thing to have available to try to achieve."

Jennie Hess Brown was the first recipient of the Poage Grant-in-Aid. It was a $200 scholarship in 1986 when she received it.

"It was a nice scholarship to recognize 4-Hers who have excelled in judging," she said. "It's a nice recognition award. It helped give me a boost while starting up at Penn State."

She finished her studies with a bachelor's degree in agricultural economics and rural sociology and went to work for a little more than three years as a York County dairy agent.

She currently works as a grain merchandiser for AgCom Inc. in New Oxford. Her husband works with her family on her family's dairy farm.

"The Dairymen's Club, I think, is a good thing. It's good for alumni to have a place to meet, but also it provides a way for students to meet people who are out working in the industry, giving them (the students) potential job contacts and a network of people," she said.

"It provides a support infrastructure for developing the talents and skills for a life in the industry," she said.

She served on the club's board of directors for a few years, though with two young children and a busy schedule, she wasn't able to attend the 20th anniversary banquet.

Being involved with the club in the years immediately after graduating was rewarding, she said.

"It provided me a chance to go back and see old college friends and I got to meet a lot of the students," Brown said. "I think that was fulfilling. It kept me up to date on what's new at Penn State and what the students are doing."

"I'm not as involved now, because of a fulltime job and two young children, but I have fond memories of being active in the club."

"The biggest thing for me was being able to meet with students and discuss career opportunities," she said. "I think the biggest benefit was what it provided for the students. As a student that's probably the biggest thing I remember."

She said that the Dairymen's

Lancaster Farming, Saturday, November 7, 1998-A43

Club's interaction with the College's Dairy Science Club is also very important.

"I met a lot of alumni that way. The dairy department at Penn State probably does that as well as anybody up there, as far as giving students an opportunity to meet alumni."

Penn State Dairymen's Club President Jeff Hostetter of North Annville Township, dairy farms registered and grade Holsteins with his father Barry.

Earlier this week, he said he was looking forward to the annual meeting. He was excited about some possibilities for a new fundraising project involving a collector's pint bottle of milk.

Overall, he said there are many benefits to belonging to the club. He said there is the regular newsletter that is designed to keep alumni apprised of activities. The club runs an endowment fund to support the College's dairy judging teams and trips to competitions.

But mostly, he repeated the sentiment of many others — if nothing else, the club serves as an organization for those interested in dairy science and dairying and in finding fellowship in the admiration and love of dairy animals and the industry.

"I think it's important to maintain some ties to your college of agriculture," Hostetter said.

The Dairymen's Club was also to have presented Penn State dairy professor and researcher Dr. Lawrence Muller with the club's Service Award.

There are effectively three different service awards, with one being presented annually, while each award actually is held for three years.

The Service Award is presented in each of three disciplines — to a dairy educator, to an industry representative, and to a dairy producer.

Despite the fact that there are three different disciplinary categories, the Service Award is made for the same reason in each: it goes to an individual who has, in the opinion of the club's board of directors, furthered the mission of the organization and has served as an inspiration for others.

Those familiar with the works of Muller know well of his long-time behind the scenes dedication and devotion to furthering opportunities for youth and making achievements in dairying knowledge.

Conestoga Celebrates History With Fall Fest

A Civil War Encampment during the Fall Fest was enjoyed by the community.

LOU ANN GOOD
Lancaster Farming Staff
CONESTOGA (Lancaster Co.)
— An 18th century log house in the town of Conestoga is proof of what a small town can do when the people work together.

Not only was the log house reconstructed but also it was completely furnished with donated authentic crafts from local craftspeople to show how people lived during the 18th century.

Named The Atkinson Craft Resource Log House, it sits adjacent to the Heritage Resource Museum. Local residents recently celebrated on site with a Fall Fest in gratitude for the community's tireless efforts in completion of the hall and log house.

The celebration included a Civil War Encampment and Ball, and local craftspeople portraying blacksmithing, spinning, and weaving.

As Kenneth Hoak, president of the Conestoga Area Historical Society (CAHS), explained how the log house was reconstructed after it was condemned by city officials, he talked about the purpose of the house and why it was erected by the Conestoga Area Historical Society, which includes Manor, Martic, Pequea, and Millersville townships.

The house was erected next to the Heritage Resource Museum, which tells the history of the area.

Almost everything that was accomplished by the Historical Society was done backward, according to Hoak. First, he said, the Historical Society was given a Conestoga wagon. But they had no place to exhibit it. The Society was then offered a tobacco shed for storage, but the property was soon sold and the wagon needed to be moved again.

Buffalo Festival Includes Southwestern Artifacts

LINDA WILLIAMS
Bedford Co. Correspondent
SCHELLSBURG (Bedford Co.) — When Ann Darrow married a buffalo farmer, she didn't know she was going to become a marketing expert.

Richard and Ann Darrow began raising buffalo 10 years ago, five years before moving to the spacious Falkland Farm in Bedford County.

Four years ago, the Darrows began marketing their own buffalo meat with a small shop located in the backyard of their spacious farmhouse. With four children, Ann found it very inconvenient to work away from home. However, manning the shop from her window was within the realm of reason.

Adding a wide array of southwestern gift items made both locally and on Navajo reservations, Ann found the shop to be an immediate success.

The idea of a Buffalo Festival held in conjunction with the local Fall Foliage Festival attended the first two weekends in October each year in nearby Bedford was Ann's.

"We get the overflow crowd from the thousands who attend the festival and a lot of people who are just driving by on Route 30," she says.

This year the event was the best ever with various activities and events. The Wills Mountain Renegades held a black powder reenactment. A storyteller from the Lancaster area wove tall tales while a dreamcatcher artist showed off the skills of her craft.

There was a huge teepee, owned by the Darrows, to be enjoyed by kids of any age.

Local craftspeople displayed various forms of art and baked goods while fall apples were in abundance at another stand.

Darrow collection brought back memories to old timers and tum-tummies were filled with buffalo burgers or buffalo hot dogs.

If you were lucky, you just might win a buffalo hide or a skull to adorn a southwestern spot in your home.

"It's an event that just seems to keep growing," Ann says.

And, as the event grows, so grows her shop with most of her customers being travelers who are traversing Route 30.

"Most of them have never eaten buffalo meat or have only had a sample before," Ann explains. "However, they are aware that it is low in fat and cholesterol and no one has ever been known to have an allergy to buffalo meat."

"Once they stop, they are hooked and many drive back just to pick up more meat."

While the Darrows do some mail orders, they find shipping the frozen meat to be expensive. "We do ship jerky and we have no problem with the gift items," Ann adds.

During the holiday season, Mother's Day, Father's Day or other special events, Ann enjoys making up gift baskets, which include a variety of items from her shop.

She does little advertising locally but does do private mailings and advertises in gift guides.

"It's been a good way to market our meat," Ann emphasizes and agrees that it is a help to cut out the middle man.

Ann Darrow says the teepee is her favorite part of the Fall Festival, which they hold on their buffalo farm. Getting into the act, Ann dresses in Indian attire.

Homestead Notes

Honey Is More Than Liquid Sugar

I think honey is better for you than sugar, but a friend disagrees, saying it's just like liquid sugar. Who's right?

While both honey and sugar are calorie-dense sweeteners, honey definitely has a few things going for it that regular old granulated sugar doesn't. And recent research is revealing even more positives about that amber-colored concentrated nectar.

For one thing, honey supplies

a handful of nutrients that its granulated counterpart does not, including a small amount of calcium, potassium and traces of a wide variety of vitamins and minerals.

But honey also has been found to be littered with antioxidants — those great little agents that neutralize "free-radical" oxygen molecules that roam through the body and wreak havoc. Studies at the University at Urbana-Champaign and Clemson University in South Carolina are beginning to shed more light on different types of honey and their antioxidant qualities. One surprising finding: Darker types of honey, which are less popular than lighter-colored honey, were usually found to contain higher levels of antioxidants. One exception was sweet-clover honey, which is fairly light but also rich in antioxidants.

While all this is great news for honey-lovers, nutritionists aren't suggesting that everyone start consuming honey at every meal. There are lots of other excellent sources of vegetables — and they also usually contain a lot of other vitamins and minerals that honey can only dream of providing. Plus, people simply don't consume enough honey to supply them with a significant source of antioxidants.

Still, honey does appear to be a more nutrient- and antioxidant-dense choice of sweetener than granulated sugar. And you can substitute honey for up to half of the sugar called for in baked goods by following a few simple steps. For each half-cup of honey used, reduce the amount of liquid in the recipe by 2 tablespoons and add 1/4 teaspoon of baking soda. Also, reduce the oven temperature by 25 degrees to reduce the risk of overbrowning.

Conestoga Celebrates

Eventually the society was offered the tobacco shed if they would move it. At that time, the Society had no land, but township supervisors suggested that the tobacco shed could be erected on park grounds. Because part of the park grounds is highly sloped and unsuitable for recreational activities, the land was the ideal setting for the tobacco shed.

With a building, the society became more aggressive in soliciting items. They were amazed at the historical pieces that area businesses and individuals began to donate.

Tom Grassel, local farmer and businessman, is attributed with being able to solicit many of the items.

"He knows everyone and has a way of convincing people of the value of preserving the past," Hoak said.

Grassel dismisses the importance of his involvement by saying that "Everyone worked together to accomplish the project."

But the low level of the museum is named Grassel Hall in honor of Grassel's tireless service in seeing the completion of the hall.

Grassel said that he grew up hearing fascinating stories about the area and never forgot them. In the 1700s, the Conestoga River was the Route between Safe Harbor and Lancaster.

"The river was the source of transportation and people migrated to adjoining communities," Grassel said.

The river was also used to send supplies by raft. Nearby Safe Harbor became a booming town and hotels sprang up along the riverbanks. In 1876, the Columbia and Port Deposit Railroad brought more activity to the area.

In 1904 a ice jam wiped out the nearby Safe Harbor village. The rolling mill and foundry moved out. After the ferry was wiped out, no river crossing existed and the area remained a remote, isolated town. Although a rail was built to run between Columbia and Atglen, it failed to revive the area. The popular resort area was replaced by thriving resorts in other areas. Technology brought a revival of the town's growth in 1930 when the power plant was erected at Safe

Always fascinated with the history of the Conestoga area, Tom Grassel recalled many stories he had heard and contacted sources who were able to help compile a factual history.

Harbor. The village of Conestoga served as a place where transits seeking to earn a few extra pennies by working on the railroad could find boarding.

Scotch and Irish immigrants were employed in the area and they helped establish St. Mary's Catholic Church in the mainly Pennsylvania German settlement. Although the church is long gone, many of the artifacts were put into storage and uncovered when Grassel, recalling stories told to him, remembered that artifacts were stored in a barn in the area and convinced the present-day owners to donate them to the Historical Society.

"The family who lived on the farm didn't even know the things were stored there. We found some pew doors, benches, and windows under six feet of dirt," Grassel said.

A small indoor section of the church was erected in the museum.

Several businesses such as Safe Harbor Dam and Turkey Hill Dairies contributed display items. Artwork and a model of the locks and canals are an example of how some of the history of the era is portrayed.

A section of the museum includes an agriculture display with farm tools, butchering items, and a typical farmhouse parlor.

"We aren't purists," Hoak said. "We show not only the past but also the present that will become part of the past."

The displays cover several generations and a farmhouse parlor is typical of several generations living in the same home and each having some of their own items in use.

The Historical Society isn't finished yet. Plans are being finalized to move a blacksmith shop, located about two miles away, to the grounds.

The 18th century log house is not as sparsely furnished as a log cabin would have been in that era, but the furnishings are reproductions of that century.

Mushroom Possibilities

Mushrooms are tasty, but they aren't officially a vegetable.

Mushrooms are really a fungus because they do not have roots, leaves, flowers or fruit like vegetables do.

But if you look at a listing of the nutritional data for vegetables, you'll find data for mushrooms. That's simply the best place to put them—there's no reason to offer a separate listing for edible fungi, is there?

Mushrooms aren't the best choice nutritionally when it comes to meeting the "Five a Day" goal of eating five fruits and vegetables daily. Unlike most vegetables, mushrooms offer few vitamins or minerals. A half-cup of raw mushrooms contains less than a half-gram of fiber, and the same amount of canned mushrooms contains less than two grams of fiber.

Mushrooms do have their plus side. A half-cup of raw mushrooms has less than 10 calories; a half-cup of canned mushrooms has less than 20 calories. Also, mushrooms aren't a bad source of copper—a half-cup provides between 8 and 9 percent of the Recommended Daily Allowance for the mineral. That might not sound like much, but sources of copper in the diet are few and far between. Most people are marginally deficient in this mineral and that, some researches believe, can contribute to heart disease. A few mushrooms now and then can only help, although organ meats such as liver have much more copper.

Similarly, a half-cup of mushrooms also contains riboflavin—between 9 percent and 12 percent of the daily recommendation. However, many other foods contain more riboflavin, including milk, liver, cheese, green leafy vegetables, eggs, and meat.

Still, mushrooms add variety and subtle flavor to many foods. Here are some favorites from our readers.

For more quick and easy mushroom recipes, send a self-addressed stamped envelope to Mushroom Council, 2200-B Douglas Blvd., Box MR, Roseville, CA 95661 or visit the Mushroom Council web site at www.mushroomcouncil.com.

Mushrooms add variety and subtle flavor to many foods. Sautéed, breaded, deep-fried, baked, roasted or used fresh, mushrooms add a delicate flavor combined with other ingredients.

Featured Recipe

Are the kids tired of eating the same old veggies? Are you bored with the taste of steamed vegetables? Well, jazz up your favorite vegetarian dishes in a different way by roasting, a cooking method that gently crisps them on the outside at the same time that it locks in flavor and moisture. And the mouth-watering combination of flavor, color and texture can do wonders for a feast or for a simple dinner anytime.

Roasting is not only healthy but it also has a magical effect on the flavor of vegetables. In the dry heat of the oven, vitamins and other nutrients in vegetables are preserved and flavors are concentrated. Roasting takes time but the results are worth the wait: onions caramelize in roasting and add an unforgettable sweetness to vegetables; and mushrooms, especially portobellos, produce an enticing meaty scent.

Here are two delicious vegetarian roasting recipes the whole family will love.

Pureed Roasted Portobello Mushroom Soup Serves 4

- 2 teaspoons olive oil
- 3 medium onions, peeled and quartered
- 3 cloves garlic, peeled
- 1 pound fresh portobello mushrooms, trimmed and cut into small chunks
- salt and freshly ground black pepper
- 1 teaspoon chopped fresh thyme or 1/4 tsp. dried thyme
- 2 tablespoons dry sherry
- 5 cups chicken stock
- 1/4 cup heavy cream
- 1/4 cup chopped fresh parsley

Preheat oven to 400 degrees. Oil bottom of a roaster with 1 teaspoon of the olive oil. Add onions and garlic and top with mushrooms. Drizzle remaining teaspoon of oil on top and season with salt, pepper and thyme.

Roast mushrooms, stirring once or twice, for 20 minutes. Remove the roaster from oven and pour sherry into the mushrooms, scraping up any brown bits. Add stock to the roaster. In blender, puree in batches mushroom mixture until smooth.

Pour soup into medium-size saucepan and season to taste. Add cream and simmer over low heat until hot. Sprinkle soup with parsley and serve hot.

Roasted Vegetable Platter Serves 4 as main course, 6 as side dish

- 2 medium eggplants, ends trimmed, cut lengthwise into quarters
- Salt
- 3 tablespoons olive oil
- 8 small new potatoes, halved
- 4 large carrots, peeled, cut lengthwise in half and then crosswise into 2-inch pieces
- 2 small zucchini, ends trimmed, cut lengthwise into quarters
- 2 small summer squash, ends trimmed, cut lengthwise into quarters
- 2 red and green bell peppers, cored and cut lengthwise into quarters
- 4 large, ripe tomatoes, quartered
- 8 garlic cloves, peeled and left whole
- 1/4 cup chopped fresh parsley
- 1/4 cup chopped fresh basil or 1 tsp. dried
- 2 tablespoons chopped fresh thyme or 1-1/2 teaspoons dried
- Freshly ground black pepper

Place eggplant in colander and sprinkle cut sides with 1-1/2 tablespoons salt. Let stand for 20 minutes. Rinse under cold water to remove salt and dry thoroughly.

Preheat oven to 400 degrees.

Oil bottom of a roaster with half of the oil. Arrange vegetables and garlic in a single layer in the pan. Sprinkle with parsley, basil, thyme, salt and pepper. Drizzle with remaining oil.

Roast vegetables for 10 minutes. Reduce oven temperature to 325 degrees and roast, gently stirring, about 20 minutes, until potatoes are tender when pierced with knife, about 50 minutes more.

Serve immediately.

MUSHROOMS WITH SOUR CREAM

- 1/4 cup butter.
- 2 cups chopped onions
- 2 pounds mushrooms, washed, quartered
- 2 pounds flour
- 1 teaspoon salt
- 1/4 teaspoon pepper
- 1 cup heavy cream
- 8-ounces sour cream

Saute onions in butter in a large skillet until soft. Add mushrooms and saute 5 minutes longer. Sprinkle flour, salt, and pepper over mushrooms and stir until well blended. Add heavy cream and sour cream, and cook slowly, just until mixture bubbles. Pour into an 8-cup shallow casserole. Sprinkle with 1/2 cup shredded cheddar cheese and 1/4 cup melted butter. Bake in a 350 degree oven for 20 minutes or until cheese and sauce is set.

GRILLED 'BELLAS

- 1 package portobello mushrooms
- 1 bottle vinaigrette (pick your favorite flavor)

Marinate mushrooms 30 minutes before cooking, no longer. Place them on an upper rack in the grill for 15-20 minutes or until done.

These make a nice accompaniment to grilled steak.

These may also be cooked in a saute pan on the stove but are better grilled.

CREAM OF MUSHROOM SOUP

- 3/4 pound fresh white mushrooms, coarsely chopped
- 2 tablespoons butter
- 1 1/2 tablespoons cornstarch
- 2 cups chicken stock
- 1 1/2 cups light cream
- 1 teaspoon Worcestershire sauce

In a medium soup pot, saute mushrooms in butter for 10 minutes over medium heat. Stir in cornstarch and whisk in chicken stock. Stirring continuously, cook 5 minutes, then lower the heat and simmer covered for 15 minutes.

Puree half of the soup in a food processor or blender and return it to the pot. Add cream and Worcestershire sauce. Return to heat until very hot. Yields: 4 servings.

BAKED SCALLOPS AND MUSHROOMS

- 1/2 cup butter, divided
- 2 cups thinly sliced mushrooms
- 1 medium onion, chopped fine
- 2 to 4 cloves garlic, minced
- 2 pounds bay scallops
- 1 cup soft bread crumbs
- 1 cup finely chopped parsley

Preheat oven to 450 degrees. In large skillet, melt 1/4 cup butter and saute mushrooms until tender, then add and saute onions and garlic a few minutes more. Remove from heat.

In a large bowl, combine the scallops, bread crumbs, parsley, and mushroom mixture. Transfer to 9x13 casserole dish. Melt remaining butter and drizzle over the contents of casserole. Bake for 10 minutes. Serves 6.

On Being a Farm Wife

Joyce Bupp

I'm sorry, pardon my whining.

But I'm a little bummed out at the moment.

I just go back from paying our "school taxes. Which are up 43% from what they were when I paid them just one year ago. Like I said, I'm a little bummed out at the moment.

Has our real estate appreciated 43% in market value from what it was last year?

Hardly.

Have we added anything to the buildings or the farmstead that would justify that kind of increase?

Hardly. Last year's drought and lack of feed zapped most area livestock farm budgets almost beyond even covering a coat of paint for the barn.

Has our soil become so much more valuable even as we try to maintain and improve it with the recommended amounts of lime, fertilizer, and organic matter from manure that it's 43% more productive?

Hardly.

Are prices for the crops raised on that ground up 43%?

Last time we had corn to sell, (two years ago, before last year's devastating drought) we averaged about $3.20 per bushel. This year, at the moment, the price is $2.35 per bushel. And that's before any charges for drying are levied.

Tell me. How are farmers supposed to stay in business?

I'm sorry. I'm a little bummed out at the moment.

We no longer have kids in school, but still pay "school" tax. Yeah, I know, it's a property tax, not a school tax. Meanwhile, there seem to be constant mandates to public schools that cost more and more money. And who pays for that?

We have not received 43% in new services from this "school" or any taxing authority.

Our farmland has not demanded any new school bus routes. Our farmland has not demanded increased police or fire protection needs.

Our farmland has not demanded the addition of curbs, or sewer, or water, or traffic lights, or recreation facilities.

Our farmland has not demanded any additional garbage pickup. We pay for our own, privately, anyway.

Our farmland provides living plants and trees to help clean the air polluted by the constant traffic passing through on the interstate high. Our farmland provides home to numerous songbirds, transient numbers of Canada geese, assorted small animals, from groundhogs to possums to foxes, a few elusive deer and, for a brief period, one beautiful cockbird pheasant not seen in recent weeks, to our great disappointment.

Our farmland provides open space, adds the proverbial greenery to the scenery; and is one of many sources of water for the growing metropolis which comprises the greater York area.

Our farmland helps to provide food for a population, which is thus permitted the luxury of devoting time to numerous pursuits other than feeding itself

And, for this, we just paid 43% more in property taxes. (Pity some of our fellow farmers whose taxes went up 200%).

I'm sorry. I'm a little bummed out right now.

Farmland preservation is a politically and socially-popular issue at the moment. Farmland preservation monies are more in demand than cash to cover the cost. Farmland preservation is critical to the future if people want open space or plan to continue eating.

But what are we preserving if taxes, regulations, and the burden of bureaucracy continues to eat away at a farmer's ability to provide his family a living from that farmland and hope to pass it on to another generation of food producers?

What are we preserving?

Sorry. I'm a little bummed out right now.

Purchasing A Computer

LEESPORT (Berks Co.) — Attend a workshop on Purchasing a Computer sponsored by Penn State Cooperative Extension — Berks County on Monday, November 9, 1:00 - 3:00 p.m. or 7:00 - 9:00 p.m. in the Agricultural Center, Bern Township

Dr. David Manzo, resource management extension agent, will cover topics such as: Why do I need a computer? How do I plan on using my computer? What do I need in the computer in order to meet my needs?

Also, the workshop will cover the aspects of purchasing a cellular phone.

Advance registration is requested. Cost is $2. Checks can be made payable to Berks County Cooperative Extension Special Account and mailed to Berks County Cooperative Extension, Berks County Ag Center, 1238 County Welfare Road, Leesport, PA 19533-520.

POURED SOLID CONCRETE

START WITH THE BEST!

POURED CONCRETE WALLS

You get about 40% more concrete for your dollar with a poured, solid concrete basement as compared to a hollow core block basement.

A poured solid concrete basement weighs about 50 lbs. more per cubic foot! Far denser. What's more, poured solid concrete walls are monolithic — there are no joints!

This is why laboratory tests show poured, solid concrete basements have many times the flexural and compressive strength to withstand the side and down pressures caused by earth, wind, water and building loads and the material density to resist water penetration.

Best of all, thanks to modern and efficient construction techniques, poured, solid concrete basements are competitively priced.

Solid Concrete For:

- Manure Pit Walls
- Hog House Walls
- Barnyard Walls
- Chicken House Walls
- Retaining Walls
- House Foundation Walls
- Silage Pit Walls
- Cistern Walls
- Concrete Decks

LUCK//NOW MIXER FEEDERS "P" SERIES

Since 1979 LUCK//NOW Mixer Feeders have been recognized as one of the most dependable and strongest built mixers in the field.

To enhance its existing line of Mixer Feeders, LUCK//NOW introduces the "P" Series of Mixer Feeders with six models ranging in size from the Model 300 with a mixing capacity of 310 cubic ft., to the Model 575 with a mixing capacity of 625 cubic ft.

The Large diameter augers in all the "P" Series Mixer feeders are capable of giving the mix required, from rations with well cured, long stemmed legume-type hay, to mixes with green grass, and mixes with silage and commodities. Better milk production, better weight gains and greatly improved animal health are just some of the results of a finely-tuned feed ration.

QUESTION — Violet Cassner, Newburg, would like a recipe for fruitcake made with grape jelly, orange juice, dates, and lots of other fruits.

QUESTION — Violet Cassner, Newburg, would like a recipe for sausage made with beef, pack seasonings, and potatoes.

QUESTION — Violet Cassner, Newburg, would like a recipe for pickled heads of green cabbage in which the leaves are used to make stuffed cabbage.

QUESTION — Linda Smith, Walpole, N.H., writes that she has a recipe for Special Bean Soup Mix for Gift Giving from Elizabeth Seibert, Fredericksburg, but she doesn't have the cooking directions. Could someone send the complete recipe, please?

QUESTION — Berlie Seeko, Hackettstown, N.J., would like to know how to keep raisins, nuts, or berries from settling in the bottom of cakes when baking. She's tried coating them with flour just before baking with no luck.

QUESTION — Lynda Bell, Lincoln University, would like a recipe for gingerbread with warm caramel sauce, which had appeared in the "Dinah Shore Cookbook," printed in the 1970s.

QUESTION — A South Jersey reader is looking for a recipe for pumpkin cheesecake with a gingersnap crust, which had been printed in "Good Housekeeping."

QUESTION — Deirdre from New York wants a recipe for chocolate spice cake.

QUESTION — Helen Hertzler, Morgantown, wants a recipe for pizza crust in which the dry ingredients can be mixed and stored until ready to use and then warm water added, which is similar to store-bought packs of pizza crust mix.

QUESTION — A reader wants recipes for black bread and for pumpernickel bread.

QUESTION — Lois Eby, Greencastle, would like a recipe for hard pretzels.

QUESTION — A Shippensburg reader would like a recipe for corn crackles.

QUESTION — Toni Levan, Galetton, would like a good recipe for garlic pickles.

QUESTION — Betty Lou Gambler, Concord, writes that her mother purchased a pickle compound at the former People's Drug Store during the 1940s and 1950s. There were four packages in one recipe and contained rock salt, saccharine, clove oil, and an acid of some kind that was mixed into 1 gallon of cold vinegar and poured over pickles. The pickles were ready to eat within several days and tasted delicious. She has tried many stores and has not been able to locate the pickling compound. Can any one help her?

QUESTION — J. Gramiccioni, Stockton, N.J., wants to know where to purchase real Italian vinegar without preservatives. Her father brought some from Italy, but she can't find it over here. Does anyone know how it can be made or purchased?

QUESTION — Estella Fink would like a recipe to make chili beans.

QUESTION — Rose Diehl, Bloomsburg, wants recipes for turkey scrapple and turkey bologna.

ANSWER — A reader from Ephrata writes that when she cold packs string beans, she gets a white settlement at the bottom of the jars and the liquid at the bottom looks cloudy. To alleviate this problem, Wilma Zimmerman, Kutztown, writes that she was told to add one teaspoon lemon juice to each quart jar of beans. Since she has done this, she hasn't had any problem with white settlement.

ANSWER — Joyce Shoemaker, Mount Joy, wanted recipes for different flavors of angel food cake such as raspberry, strawberry or orange. Thanks to Leona Hartzler, Burlington, W.V., for sending several variations that start out with the white angel food cake.

White Angel Food Cake

2 cups egg whites
1½ teaspoons cream of tartar
¼ teaspoon salt
1 teaspoon almond flavoring
Whip above ingredients together until it forms stiff peaks, fold in:

1¼ cups granulated sugar
Sift together then add to egg mixture:
2 cups flour
½ cup granulated sugars

For strawberry angel food cake:
Same as white cake except substitute 1¼ cups strawberry Jell-O instead of granulated sugar. Add a teaspoon vanilla.
Chocolate Angel Food Cake: Same as white cake, but add 2 tablespoons cocoa in cup and fill with flour (in exchange for one of the 2 cups needed. Add 1 teaspoon vanilla.

Mint Chocolate Chip Angel Food Cake: Same as white cake but add, 1 teaspoon mint flavor, 2 or 3 drops green food coloring, ¼ cup grated chocolate (add last).

Peach Angel Food Cake: Same as white cake except add 1¼ cups peach Jell-O instead of granulated sugar and 1 teaspoon vanilla.

Lemon Angel Food Cake: Same as white cake, add 1 teaspoon lemon flavoring and 1¼ cup lemon Jell-O.

Maple Nut Angel Food Cake: Same as white cake except add 1¼ cups brown sugar and ½ cup chopped nuts (add last).

Chocolate Chip Angel Food Cake: Same as white cake except add 1 teaspoon vanilla and ½ cup crushed chocolate chips.

Cherry Chip Angel Food Cake: Same as white cake except add ¼ cup cherry-flavored Jell-O and ½ cup chopped maraschino cherries.

ANSWER — Elizabeth Beaver wanted a recipe for apple butter cake. Thanks to Mrs. Nathan Wadel, Chambersburg, for sending one.

Apple Butter Cake

½ cup shortening
1 cup sugar
3 eggs
1 cup apple butter
2½ cups cake flour
3 teaspoons baking powder
½ teaspoon baking soda
½ teaspoon salt
½ teaspoon cinnamon
¼ teaspoon nutmeg
1 cup sour milk
½ cup apple butter
Cream together shortening and sugar. Beat in eggs, one at a time; beat until fluffy. Stir in the 1 cup apple butter. Sift together flour, baking powder, soda, salt, cinnamon, and nutmeg; add dry ingredients to creamed mixture alternately with sour milk. Pour into two greased and floured round layer pans. Bake at 350 degrees for 30-35 minutes. Cool.

Spread bottom layer with ¼ cup apple butter. Top with 1 cup frosting; spread to cover apple butter. Cover with top layer. Frost sides and top of cake with remaining frosting. Swirl remaining ¼ cup apple butter on frosted top to give a marbled effect.

ANSWER — Here's a recipe Richard Kophazy requested.

Eggplant Souffle

1 eggplant
Juice of 1 lemon
1 cup water
2 tablespoons butter
2 tablespoon flour
1 cup milk
¾ cup bread crumbs
½ cup grated cheddar cheese
1 tablespoon ketchup
1½ tablespoons chopped onion
1½ teaspoons salt
2 egg yolks, beaten well
2 egg whites, stiffly beaten
Peel eggplant, dip in mixture of lemon juice and water. Dice and dip again. Cook with small amount of water for 10 minutes until just tender.

Melt butter in top of double boiler. Blend in flour, add milk, cook 10 minutes until thick stirring often. Add diced, cooked eggplant, crumbs, cheese, ketchup, onion, and salt. Stir in egg yolk and mix together well. Fold in egg whites and pour into greased one-quart casserole.

Bake at 350 degrees for about 45 minutes.

Untreated Juices To Carry Warnings

My daughter is going on a school trip to a cider mill. Should I tell her not to drink cider?

You might want to contact the operator of the cider mill to find out more before making a decision. First, ask if the cider is pasteurized. If it's not, then ask if it's been treated under any sort of approved HACCP (pronounced "hassip") plan. The operator will probably be surprised that you know the term. It's an acronym for Hazard Analysis and Critical Control Points — a science-based preventative approach in food processing.

HACCP plans must be approved by the Food and Drug Administration. For example, one approved HACCP plan for cider combines heat processing with preservatives. If the operator doesn't know what you're talking about or says the product isn't under any HACCP plan, you might want to tell your daughter to skip the cider.

You're right to be concerned. Children, along with the elderly and people with significant health problems, are more at risk from bacteriological illnesses because their immune systems sometimes aren't strong enough to fight them off. It's estimated that untreated juices are linked to 16,000 to 48,000 cases of food-borne illness each year, including those caused by E. coli 0157:H7. That particular strain of bacteria was blamed for several dozen illnesses from unpasteurized apple juice on the West Coast in 1996. In 1993, it killed four children and made hundreds of people ill after they ate undercooked hamburgers from a fast-food chain in the Pacific Northwest.

To reduce the risk, some cider is treated with a preservative such as sodium benzoate. While this preservative dramatically decreases the time E. coli 0157:H7 will survive, it does not kill the bacteria outright. Other preservatives, such as potassium sorbate, reduce other potential problems like yeast and mold. Refrigeration is a must for unpasteurized ciders and juices. While it doesn't kill bacteria either, refrigeration does slow its growth.

It's getting easier to tell which juices are pasteurized and which aren't. A recent Food and Drug Administration decision requires that customers be warned about the potential risk of unpasteurized apple juice and cider with a warning label or sign placed near where the product is sold. Other types of unpasteurized juices will fall under the same requirement Nov. 5.

Cook's Question

Spicy New England Pot Roast

3 tablespoons flour
2 teaspoons salt
¼ teaspoon freshly ground black pepper
4-pound boned, rolled beef arm or blade or bottom round pot roast of beef
3 tablespoons bacon drippings or oil
½ cup freshly grated horseradish or 4-ounce jar prepared drained horseradish (the horseradish loses its pungency as it cooks).

1 cup whole cranberry sauce
1 stick cinnamon, broken in two
4 whole cloves
1 cup beef broth
16 small white onions
1 bunch carrots, cut into 3-inch lengths

Mix the flour with the salt and pepper and dredge the meat in the mixture. Rub the mixture into all the surfaces.

Heat the bacon drippings or oil in a heavy Dutch oven or casserole and brown the meat in it on all sides very well over high heat. Pour off the drippings into a skillet and reserve.

Mix together horseradish, cranberry sauce, cinnamon, cloves, and broth and add to the meat.

Bring the mixture to a boil, cover tightly and simmer gently about two hours or until the meat is barely tender.

Meanwhile, brown the onions in the reserved drippings in the skillet. Add the carrots and cook two minutes longer. Drain from the fat and add to the meat broth. Cover and cook about 25 minutes longer, or until vegetables and meat are tender. Yields 8 servings. The gravy is delicious over noodles.

ANSWER — Here are some more apple pie recipes from Fran Westfall.

Fried Apple Pies

4½ cups flour
¾ cup shortening
2 teaspoons salt
1½ teaspoons baking powder
¾ cup sugar
1 cup milk
2 eggs, slightly beaten

Mix together dry ingredients; add milk and eggs. Mix until it is smooth and does not stick to hands. Roll dough and cut into 4-inch circles. Place 1 teaspoon apple filling in center. Fold over. Wet the edges and press edges with fork. Fry in deep fat until brown. Cool. Sprinkle with confectioners' sugar. Either canned or homemade pie fillings can be used in any flavor.

Batter-Fried Apple Rings

1 cup Bisquick
1 egg
½ cup milk
2 medium apples, pared and cored

Beat baking mix, egg, and milk with rotary beater until smooth. Grease griddle. Cut apples crosswise into ¼-inch slices. Dip slices into batter. Cook on hot griddle until golden brown, turning once. Serve hot and, if you wish, with syrup, jelly, or confectioners' sugar. Makes 2 dozen rings.

Apple Roll

2 cups flour
Little salt
2 teaspoons baking powder
2 tablespoons shortening

Crumbs for topping:

1 cup sugar
1 cup flour
2 tablespoons butter

Mix with hand and moisten with milk. Roll out a little thicker than pie crust. Spread with butter. Lay in an oblong pan. Sprinkle with sugar and cover with thin sliced apples. Add more butter and sugar and sprinkle with cinnamon. Roll up like a jelly roll.

To make crumbs, rub butter into flour and sugar. Sprinkle on top and sides. Pour boiling water on sides. Use apple, cherries, or any other kind of fruit. Bake for 30 to 35 minutes at 350 degrees. Serves 8 to 10.

Diabetes

Diabetes mellitus is a chronic disease that affects approximately 13 million Americans. The disease is ancient one with notations of symptoms mentioned in classical Greek medical literature. However, it has only been during this century that medical research has been able to control diabetes and give those people with the disease a chance for a longer, healthier life.

The symptoms of diabetes include excessive thirst, frequent urination, increased hunger and food consumption, and loss of weight.

Diabetes affects the whole body and how it functions. Complications from diabetes include eye disease, severe nerve pain, kidney disease, and heart disease.

These complications develop because chronic increased blood sugar levels place an increased burden on all the body's systems. The circulating high blood sugar level reaches all areas of the body and causes a weakening of those parts.

Based on this description, it is easy to see why the condition of the toes, feet, and legs of people with diabetes is a strong concern of physicians. If blood cannot reach the extremities, an infection can arise from a simple bump on the toe.

The primary defect of diabetes is inadequate secretion of the hormone insulin from the pancreas. Persons with diabetes have bodies that do not produce or respond to insulin. Without effective insulin, the action or storage of body fuels, primarily glucose (sugar), is made useless. Sugar does not get into the cells of the body, but remains circulating in the bloodstream to cause the short-term and long-term complications mentioned above.

It is estimated that diabetes mellitus is undiagnosed in about 6.5 million Americans. Prevalence of diabetes increase with age, with about half of the cases in people older than 55. It is the fourth leading cause of death by disease in the United States and diabetes contributes to an increased cost of medical care.

About 90 percent of known cases of diabetes are non-insulin dependent diabetes mellitus (NIDDM). Although approximately 80% of these people are obese or have a history of obesity, NIDDM can occur in the non-obese as well, especially in the elderly. A family history of diabetes also predisposes a person to this disease. Persons with this type of diabetes may or may not have the classic symptoms of uncontrolled diabetes (increased thirst, increased urination, increased hunger, weight loss), so regular screening for elevated blood sugar is recommended. This type of diabetes is usually controlled by dietary modifications, oral medications, and regular physical activity. Weight loss is associated with greater blood sugar control. Insulin injections may be initiated if the above treatment does not work.

Persons with insulin-dependent diabetes mellitus (IDDM) produce little or no insulin and are, therefore, dependent on insulin injections. Although this type may occur at any time, most cases are diagnosed in people younger than 30 years old.

What can you do? If you are 55 or older, overweight and inactive, or have a family history of diabetes, go to our physician for a blood glucose test. Many hospitals offer free glucose screenings on a regular basis.

Don't wait for the symptoms or complications to arise before seeking diagnosis and treatment.

If you are diagnosed with diabetes mellitus, follow our doctor's treatment plan that will include dietary changes, weight loss, if necessary, increased physical activity, and perhaps, medications.

Seek the referral to a registered dietitian who can give you individualized meal plans. Seek the resources of the American Diabetes Association who offer membership, a monthly magazine and a library of useful literature. Their number is 1-800-232-6733.

Don't Get Burned By Pineapples

Why is it that when I eat raw pineapple, my lips start to burn? This doesn't happen when I eat canned pineapple.

It's not your imagination — there's a perfectly logical explanation for that lip-burning phenomenon.

Pineapple contains an enzyme that's partially responsible. It's a type of protease, or protein-digesting enzyme — called bromelain. Since this enzyme's job is to digest protein, it goes to work as soon as it finds some protein — and it finds some in your mouth. It certainly doesn't help that pineapple already has a relatively low pH, making it more of an acid than anything else. That combination packs a wallop on your mouth.

Canned pineapple also contains bromelain, of course, but the canning process is a pretty intense one. The heat can actually change the shape of the enzyme, and altering it even slightly inactivates bromelain completely. So, it's not surprising that you don't get the same sensation from canned pineapple as you do fresh.

Bromelain is the same enzyme that prevents gelatin from setting, so avoid using fresh pineapple in your favorite gelatin salad. Canned pineapple shouldn't give you that problem.

But bromelain isn't all bad. Its protein-debilitating properties are one reason why pineapple juice makes a good marinade: "Breaking down muscle fibers" is akin to tenderizing meat. Plus, in one recent study, it prevented traveler's diarrhea in about half of 90 piglets infected with E. coli. Researchers think that the enzyme was sometimes able to interfere with the E. coli's ability to attach to the walls of the small intestine.

These Australian Shepherd puppies are greatly pampered. Much to the children's dismay, the puppies will be sold since the Bowmans already have four full-grown German Shepherds used for breeding and herding. From left are Chuckie, Gordon, and Kelsey.

Lancaster Farming Staff
DRUMORE (Lancaster Co.) —

In the last few years, sheep and horse 4-H county competitions seem to be overflowing with Bowman exhibitors. That's because siblings Gabriel, 18; Dalassa, 17; Kelsey, 11; Chuckie, 10; and Gordon, 9, have lots of animals.

The Bowman family has 18 horses and ponies and 60 sheep that all five children enter in competitions. As if this isn't enough animals for one family, they also have two donkeys, one goat, four dogs, four Australian Shepherd puppies, one bunny, and two cats.

Some parents are not so eager to allow animals in the house, but parents Vickilyn and Mark Bowman are animal lovers themselves.

Gabriel wins first place in the male division at the Mannheim Community Farm Show Lead Line.

Of children and animals, Vickilyn said, "The more the merrier."

Growing up, Vickilyn won some national awards in pony competition. Now she is riding instructor and leads the 4-H Rough Riders Horse and Pony Club.

The children are part of that club and also belong to the 4-H Woolies, the Horse Production Club, and the U.S. Pony Club.

The family has had horses for about nine years. They have quarter horses, thoroughbreds, and Percheron crosses used for riding lessons on their land that adjoins their grandmother's farm.

The family purchased their first lamb about four years ago. Although they did not know much about sheep in the beginning, they are learning a lot. In fact, Dalassa showed the grand champion Columbia at the state Farm Show last year.

The 60-head flock includes Columbia, Polypay, Lincoln, and natural colored breeds.

The donkeys are used as guardians to protect the sheep from dogs, wolves, and even a bobcat that has been spotted in the area.

The family is not quite sure how well the donkeys guard the sheep, but recently when the sheep were sheared, the shearer remarked that one of the sheep had scars on it that looked as if it had been attacked by a bobcat.

At first, the family thought the donkey must not have been doing his job. But the sheep shearer believes the donkey scared off the bobcat and that is why the sheep survived.

The children are 100 percent responsible for all barn work. Their dad manages fencing. This summer he used intensive grazing techniques to raise the sheep on a six-acre plot.

Intensive grazing worked great until the final four weeks when drought-like conditions forced them to supplement the grazing with hay.

The horses are fed hay year-round.

The children are all home-schooled. At one time Gabriel and Dalasses attended a private school, but it was difficult to participate in horse events and care for all the animals while attending school. Home-schooling allows a more flexible schedule for showing animals in 4-H competitions, attending club meetings, and participating in church youth and children's activities.

Gabriel has finished high school and is now working full time in construction. He is considering college. He would like to major in agriculture and farm full-time. In fact, the family is working on buying a farm in West Virginia because they have outgrown their present property.

If the family wouldn't pursue buying a farm, Gabriel said that he would definitely work toward doing it himself.

Gabriel had a terrifying experience about two months ago. While working at a construction site of a large church, some trusses fell and trapped him beneath the debris. The rafters split the hard hat he was wearing, but fortunately a stack of plywood next to him softened the impact.

Gabriel's back and shoulders were badly bruised. After five weeks of recuperation, Gabriel is feeling fine again. Another co-worker is still hospitalized from the incident.

Gabriel placed first in the Mannheim Farm Show Lead Line recently. He has one more year to participate in 4-H competition before he is too old. He plays the bass guitar for the worship team at church.

Dalassa works for both Taco Bell and as a horse trainer. She would like to become a traveling photographer.

Chuckie was adopted after he was a foster child for four years, and Kelsey was adopted after she was born prematurely and needed special care.

The Bowmans, who had been foster parents for many other children, were asked to take Kelsey, who doctors predicted would be developmentally delayed, have severe respiratory problems, and a detached retina.

Today Kelsey is a bright, energetic 11-year-old with none of the maladies that doctors had predicted.

"I trained my baby horse myself," said Kelsey, who hopes to train horses as a career.

She explained that first she puts a saddle on the horse and leads him around the pasture. When she finally rode the horse, Kelsey said, "He didn't throw me off because he loves me."

When Kelsey isn't caring for the many animals or studying, she

the village of Benezette, we were directed to a likely area of wooded hills. After driving miles and only seeing beautiful leaves on trees, we stopped for a short walk. Actually, Philip took a long hike and we met him at the end of Little Bear Run trail. He saw a grouse, an owl, two deer and a wild turkey on his journey.

We were told that around 6 o'clock in the evening was the best time to see some elk. The first group that we saw consisted of nine elk on a distant hill. Then we drove to an overlook where a group of people watched six elk grazing. One man had been to Elk County 14 times and never saw any — he left ten minutes before they came out of the woods.

By coincidence our evening meal was shared with two men who were very interested in the elk herd. One of them told us that he knew each one by name and there are more than 300 of them. He also grew up in the same area as my husband did, and so they knew many people in common. The other was a well-known photographer and scuba diving instructor who has traveled worldwide in his work.

Some hunting cabins had ordinary names such as "Camp Hemlock" and "Camp Wildlife." Others that we saw were "Camp Ain't Much," "Camp Quit Your Bellyaching," "Camp No Buck" and "Camp Gobbler's Roost."

One day we saw the almost one-half-mile-long Kinzua railroad bridge which was built in 1882 by 40 men in 90 days. It was 301 feet off the forest floor and we could walk across it. Can you imagine such a big job being completed today in 90 days? My husband said that it would take 40 men just to inspect it.

The other weekend we traveled with our son Philip, to northwestern Pennsylvania.

Our mission was to see some elk in the wild.

When we finally arrived at likes to read horse and mystery books.

Kelsey has had some success participating in local and in state Lead Line competitions. She was the third-place winner at the Keystone International Livestock Exposition recently.

Chuckie also rides horses and shows sheep. He had some excitement when he was thrown off when the pony flipped backward and fell on top of Chuckie.

Although Chuckie's leg was broken, he said, "I wasn't scared to get back on him and ride."

Chuckie likes to mow the yard and wants to grow up to be a farmer.

Gordon is the only family member to have a goat. Her name is Peggy and he delights in caring for her. Gordon also enjoys riding a pony and in visiting with his grandmother who lives on an adjoining farm.

Because the Bowman family is so large, they sometimes can't afford to go to amusement parks and other high-priced entertainment. Vickilyn recalls that when she was growing up, she attended all the shows at the Fulton Opera House, and she sometimes regrets that she can't afford to expose her own children to that culture.

On the other hand, she believes that a large family has a lot of benefits.

"When I was growing up, I had no one else to ride horses with, no one to play games with, and no one to help me do chores," she said.

"Here, the kids always have someone to do something with. They spend hours playing games, building with Legos, etc. And, of course, someones always around to share the chores."

The Bowmans search for activities that don't cost money and are delighted with what they have found such as a picnic to a park concert.

"The key to successful farming is to be excited about the project your raising," Vickilyn said.

"Lamb is our family's favorite thing to eat. Our family prefers it over beef."

Some people are surprised that the children can raise sheep and eat the meat, but that is the purpose of raising sheep. Vickilyn enjoys relating how Gabriel named the first lamb he raised for meat "Dinner."

Although the Bowmans often try recipes for lamb that they see printed in magazines, Vickilyn said that she mostly prepares lamb just like beef—as a pot roast or grilled. "A recipe can only do so much," she said. "You must have good-tasting lamb to begin with."

She believes that lambs raised with no confinement and are grass fed with a little grain are tastier.

"It takes longer to finish a grass-fed lamb, but they aren't as fatty, which makes meat greasy, which is why most people complain of eating lamb," she said.

"When you eat your own meat, you know what's in it. You can't eat any healthier than that," she said.

When the Bowmans go to sheep shows, they often take along literature to hand out. Recently the Bowmans purchased and handed out 100 copies of the "Sheep

The most recent animal addition is this bunny snuggling with Kelsey.

Dalassa greets one of the Australian Shepherds used to herd the sheep in the pasture. Guard donkeys are used to protect the flock from stray dogs, wolves, and a bobcat spotted in the area.

Reporter," which includes information about sheep and activities for children.

"We meet a lot of people who don't like to eat lamb. I often ask them when they tried lamb. Mostly they admit it was years ago when they were a child," said Vickilyn.

Vickilyn tells them that it wasn't lamb. Mutton, which was served years ago, and is known to be tough and give off a strong odor has given lamb a bad reputation.

Vickilyn encourages Farm Show visitors to go to the food court and try some great tasting lamb.

The female members of the family also spin wool. They recently heard that the Columbia wool, which they shear from their sheep, does not shrink and can be machine-washed.

It's news that the Bowmans plan to spread.

Pa. State Grange Honors Members' Achievements

MEADVILLE (Crawford Co.) — Jennifer Viscusi was named Pennsylvania State Granger of the Year last week during awards ceremonies held in conjunction with the 126th annual Pennsylvania State Grange convention, held in Crawford County.

Viscusi received the highest honor bestowed a Grange member during the Grange annual banquet, held at the Saint Phillips Social Center.

A member of Wesley No.1675, Viscusi has been an active member since she was 5, and first joined the Junior Grange.

Her family has been active in Grange for years, and in receiving the award, she has repeated a family accomplishment — one her mother, Carol McCullon, accomplished 21 years ago.

Mother and daughter expressed their sentiments on the event.

"I feel very lucky that she has followed and has done the same things I have done," McCullon said about daughter Viscusi.

"She is the fourth generation of McCullons to be Grange members, and she'll tell you that it is because of the Grange that she is involved in the things she is involved in."

With her subordinate Grange, Viscusi currently serves as lecturer, and chairman of the Grange Women's Activities Committee.

She has also served as Pomona lady assistant steward; chairman of the LAS Youth and Deaf Committee, as well as the Pomona Committee; and served with the state Grange Lecturer's and 125th anniversary committees.

"Not only is family the most important thing about the Grange to me," Viscusi said, "but Grange is about my 'extended' family as well."

"I have more 'grandmothers' and 'grandfathers' and every one of them is important to me."

Viscusi's work with the Deaf Activities Department has perhaps had the biggest impact on others' lives.

Her mother said, "She volunteers her time to teach deaf signing classes at the local YMCA and to several local children who have expressed an interest in sign language after seeing her present sign language programs at elementary schools. She also works with Grange members in our county to teach them sign language."

According to Viscusi, "When I go into a (hearing) school and see the smiles on their faces as they learn sign language, it is really great. But, when I go back to see them and work them again, that's what really makes it worth it."

The Pennsylvania State Grange presented several awards to its members during its annual convention.

Members of the Grange took a break away from the convention business to honor those who have performed outstanding community service, or won departmental contests.

Women's Activities Awards

Awards were presented for achievement in contests sponsored by the Grange Women's Activities Department and in the Grange Youth Department.

All of the top awards are presented to those Grange leaders whose local or county Grange has excelled in competition with other Granges.

In the Women's Activities Department, that sponsors various contests involving members making items to be donated to charitable organizations, it was announced that more than 6,400 stuffed toys had been made and distributed to area charities, domestic abuse shelters, hospitals and ambulance services.

The toys are given to help calm children who have suffered a traumatic experience.

More than 1,000 ABC quilts for at-risk children were also brought to the convention and turned over to local charitable organizations.

"I don't know what makes some of (the members) do all of that," Becky Michalka, state Women's Activities director said, "but it would be nice if we could find out what it is and bottle it."

The awards for the top toy-making Granges are awarded according to membership level of the Grange.

Among those Granges with fewer than 100 members, Joyce Ross accepted the award on behalf of Lakeland Grange No.2095. The Grange made 1,646 toys.

Among those Granges with from 100 to 199 members, Betty Yeager accepted the award on behalf of Kutztown Grange No.1836. The members submitted 540 toys.

Among those Granges with 200 or more members, Eleanor Hill, director of Virginville Grange No.1832, accepted the award recognizing its members' contribution of 800 toys.

In the Youth Department awards, Carol Kushman of the Lawrence County Pomona Grange No.65 was named Pomona Youth Chairperson of the Year.

Cindy Leibensperger of Pioneer Grange No.1777 was named Subordinate Grange Youth Director of the Year. It is the fifth consecutive year that a director from Pioneer Grange has been named director of the year.

Leibensperger said the Pioneer Grange youth are very active, assisting Grange committees, helping with plans for the Annual Berks County Grange picnic, and assisting wherever needed.

In other youth awards, the Junior Department recognizes outstanding service by members. Junior Grange members are aged 5-14 years.

Jane Reppert, leader of Virginville Junior Grange No.1832, was named Junior Grange Leader of the Year.

The award is presented to the leader whose junior members have excelled during the past year. Among the achievements noted, the Virginville junior members placed first in the state in community service, first in the "Our Earth Needs You" program, and were name recipients of the State Grange Achievement Award.

Public Speaking
Sign-A-Song

also offers public speaking and its Sign-A-Song competitions during its annual conventions.

According to one of the judges, Jim Strickler, an Allegheny College communications and arts teacher, said, "I was really surprised at the quality of the public speaking performances. They were all good."

"The most difficult part was determining which one of the good ones was best. Their poise was exceptionally good."

In the public speaking competition, in the 14- to 19-year-old age division, Brian Farkas of Fairview Grange in Beaver County was first place. His talk was "The Lesser Known Presidents of the United States."

Adam Britcher of Community Grange in Perry County was second in that age division.

In the 20- to 29-year-old age division, Stacy Ebersole with the

Perry County Community Grange No.1767, was first with her talk, "The 'Gottas' of Success."

In the 30-years-and-older division, Laura McMillin of Westfield Grange in Lawrence County was first place with her speech, "The Spirit of the Grange."

Following McMillin, Isabelle Myers of Community Grange was second, while Il May McMillin of Westfield Grange was third.

In the Sing-A-Song Contest,

Brian Ebersole of Community Grange No.1767 in Perry County was a two-time winner.

He won first place in the individual competition, and first place in the group category, performing in a duo with sister Stacy Ebersole.

The Deaf and Hard of Hearing Awareness Department is the community service project of the Pennsylvania and National Granges.

The Sign-A-Song contest is one of the State Grange's Deaf Activities Department's outreach programs. The department promotes healthy hearing and works to assist individuals, schools and social agencies serving the deaf community.

In addition to the contest, during the convention the department presented a $360 donation to the Meadville Public Library toward the purchase of two sets of videotapes concerning deaf and hard of hearing awareness, services offered to the hearing impaired, and other educational information on deaf issues.

In the individual Sign-A-Song contest, following first-place winner Ebersole was Ila May McMillin of Westfield Grange in Lawrence County, and then Lindsey Bennett of Perry Valley Grange.

In the junior division Sign-A-Song, first-place winner was Broock Winger of Scrubgrass Junior Grange in Venango County, followed by Catherine Carberry of Lincoln Junior Grange in Huntingdon County.

Talent Show

The annual State Grange convention also features a talent contest, with the winner qualifying for entry in the national contest.

For the third time, Klaus Schmidt of Hillcrest Grange No.1674 gave the top performance, this time performing Chopin's "Ballade II" to win the talent festival, held Allegheny College Shafer Auditorium.

"I chose Chopin, because I express myself the best through him," Schmidt said. "His music moves my soul. I guess you could say he's my musical soul mate."

Schmidt, who won state-level best of show honors in 1994 and 1996, and took first place honors at the 1996 national convention, is a computer software applications teacher at Missouri University.

He said he enjoys participating in the state Grange Talent Festival.

"The thrill of performing is exhilarating," he said, "and I love to participate in this event."

He said that, of the all the performances he's given, this last one was his most meaningful, because it was the first time that his parents, who traveled from Germany for the competition, saw their son perform in front of an audience.

"My mother said she was moved by it," Schmidt said. "My mother was crying, and I almost did, but I didn't want to show it."

One of the judges, Dr. Robert Copeland, said, "This (event) is excellent because it strengthens families and encourages young people to develop their skills."

Runnerup best of show award recipient was Joann Swaim of Seipstown Grange No.1657 in Lehigh County.

Swaim's performance was a juggling and balancing act. She juggled seven rubber balls as part of the act and then provided an audience-attention catching finish by juggling three stage props while on an unicycle.

Schmidt is to represent the Pennsylvania State Grange at the national convention to be held in November in Greensboro, North Carolina.

Pansies Prefer Fall

(NAPS)—Do your garden a favor—don't wait until spring to plant pansies. Now in more colors, better colors, and with greater tolerance to cold, pansies are the talk of fall gardening. If planted now, they'll grow to twice the size and produce more flowers than those planted in the spring.

Pansies are surprising cold-hardy, easily tolerating temperatures of 15 degrees without damage. Under a cover of snow or mulch, they survive even lower temperatures. All do well in the South, and many varieties are hardy in the Mid-Atlantic, lower New England, the Midwest, and the West Coast. According to Denise Johnson of Ball Seed Company in West Chicago, the hardiest varieties are generally those with small, deep colored blossoms. One of the most cold resistant ones, Baby Bingo, survived the '97-98 winter at Michigan State University.

Another key to hardiness is planting early enough to give plants time to establish their roots before cold weather. To root well, plants need at least three to four weeks in the ground before the first hard freeze. Set transplants 6 to 8 inches apart and mulch after planting.

To make lots of flowers, pansies need at least six hours of sunlight each day and plenty of nutrition. When planting, work a timed-release fertilizer into the soil. In late winter, reapply according to label directions. Be sure to water transplants (in their packs) before planting, and water the planting bed regularly if the weather is dry.

Use pansies as companions to early spring bulbs such as daffodils and tulips. They'll bring evergreen foliage and colors to the bare winter ground. In spring, pansies will be a carpet of color to the bare winter ground. In spring, pansies will be a carpet of color underneath the daffodils and tulips. Finally, as if they needed one more attribute, a few pansies have a delicate sweet perfume. Sniff before you buy!

The State Grange Lecturer Department sponsors the talent contest, and also serves to oversee programming at local, county and state meetings.

During the convention, the department also presented awards to its top local and county lecturers.

In the local Grange category, Nettie Kauffman of the Ontelaunee Grange No.1617 was Subordinate Lecturer of the Year.

In the county Grange category, Betty Lou Williams of Crawford County Pomona Grange No.26 was named Pomona Lecturer of the Year.

The awards are based on the programs offered through their respective Granges during the past year.

Grange Spirit

The Pennsylvania State Grange also recognizes outstanding achievements with its Spirit of the Grange Awards.

Marth Eversole, state youth director, presented the awards.

Isabelle Myers with the Community Grange, James Wertz of Brokenstraw Grange, and Brian Ebersole were all recipients of the award.

In a special national recognition, National Grange Ceres Jamie Klenklen of Kansas attended the convention and presented a national award to Nicole Blair, of Perry Valley Junior Grange.

Blair was named the winner of the Super Junior Granger Award, an award that reflects some of the same values as the Grange Spirit of the Grange Award.

Are you looking at sprucing up your garden? A popular European garden planter called a 'trough' or 'sink' garden can be made at home. Made of stone, brick or concrete, trough planters are traditionally in the shape of an animal feeding trough.

A trough garden is usually planted each gardening season with annuals or foliage plants. Often lighter than the originals, a homemade concrete trough can be made to size depending on the form you use. Filled with soil, these planters can be quite heavy.

Local Experts Author Lancaster County Book

Lancaster County is perhaps the most famous county in the United States and is one of the few counties known internationally as well. Much of this fame is due to the presence of the largest population of Old Order Amish and Old Order Mennonite people in the country. But Lancaster County is much more than these communities. In colorful text and stunning photos, local experts tell the whole story of the place and its people in this recently released book.

Everything, from colorful roadside stands to Amish farmsteads, to historic homes, to auctioneers on the podium, is captured in the book. Complementing the reader-friendly text are approximately 130 fabulous, full-color images.

The author, Ed Klimuska, weaves colorful interviews with Lancaster County residents with a wealth of fascinating sidebars focusing on everything from a local quilter to a doctor who specializes in treating genetic disease among the Amish. A colorful map and a section on where to obtain more information round out this complete A to Z guide to Lancaster county.

Klimuska has been a local daily news reporter for twenty-five years writing about the Amish, the social and economic problems in Lancaster, farming, and education. He has won many local, state, and national awards for his reporting.

Keith Baum, spent 10 years as a staff photographer in Lancaster County and recently became a full-time freelancer.

Jerry Irwin is a freelance photographer also based in Lancaster County.

The book, Lancaster County, is by Ed Klimuska with photos by Keith Baum and Jerry Irwin. Both hardcover, $29.95, and paper, $19.95 have 144 pages, 8 x 11, 130 color photos, index, bibliography. It is available in local bookstores and gift shops or can be ordered directly with credit card from Voyageur Press, Box 338, Stillwater, MN 55082. Phone: 1-800-888-9653.

The right form or mold is critical for success. The form you use creates the inside shape of the trough. The cement blend is molded around the form with peat moss and perlite.

Good sturdy forms include stiff cardboard, styrofoam shapes (those used to pack small electric appliances are perfect, taped together securely), sturdy plastic pots such as azalea pots, dish pans, plastic bowls or any other sturdy shape with no rims or handles.

Have handy old clothes, rubber gloves, wire cutters, a small stick, a plastic bag to wrap your mold, a bucket of water, and a sturdy board or plywood that is at least 6" larger than your mold. Later you will need a wire or very stiff brush to finish the edges.

Mix together, using a known measured container, 1/2 part peatmoss, sieved to remove large pieces, 1 part Portland Cement, and 1 1/2 parts perlite.

Using rubber gloves and a small trowel, add water slowly until the mix is a consistency of dry putty. Mix well. Cover your mold with a plastic bag and secure with tape (this will enable easy removal of the mold later).

Place your mold on the board. Pat the cement mixture onto the mold to about 1 inch thick. Cut a piece of chicken wire slightly smaller than the mold and shape over this base layer. Add more cement mixture until the wire is completely covered and the desired thickness of your trough is achieved.

Larger molds need to have a layer of cement blend thicker than smaller ones. Using a flat board, flatten the top surface. This will be the bottom of the trough when you invert it. Poke holes for drainage, being sure to poke carefully until you touch the mold shape. Paint or rub the damp surface with peatmoss to promote a mossy rough surface.

Cure for 24 hours in a dry place before removing the form. Carefully invert and slowly remove the mold. Do not leave it get too dry. Roughen the edges with a wire brush.

Allow the trough to dry out

Hoofs-N-Hackles Member Wins KILE Breed Champion

HARRISBURG (Dauphin Co.) — Staci Lynn Novella, Farmingdale, N.J., won grand champion Dorset ram in the junior show recently at the Keystone International Livestock Expo (KILE) here at the Farm Show Complex. Staci, secretary of Hoofs-N-Hackles 4-H Club in Monmouth County, N.J., won with her ram, "Luke." The club's name is derived from the fact that many species are represented, including horses, sheep, steers, and poultry.

completely before planting with annuals, herbs or miniature plants. Be sure to clean equipment immediately as the cement hardens quickly. Use a good soil-less potting mix containing perlite, peat moss or sand. Compost may be added unless you are going to plant herbs.

Set the trough by back door and fill with cooking herbs, or, a miniature garden can be created by using small Alpine plants, pygmy evergreens, Irish moss or small sedums. Check each plant's growing requirements. For example, Alpine plants need excellent drainage to survive. Cacti and succulents require more sand in the soil mix.

Finish your trough garden by also adding small rocks or bonsai figures. Or, create a bog garden by not making drainage holes or lining the trough with a sturdy plastic liner. Check at a local garden center or nursery for plant ideas.

Agencies, Penn State To Promote IPM

UNIVERSITY PARK (Centre Co.) — Pesticide use on school property has been a concern to Pennsylvania legislators, educators, parents, and environmental groups in recent years.

To help limit potential human exposure to pesticides, and to enhance the teaching of agricultural and scientific principles to the state's school children, Penn State and Pennsylvania government agencies are collaborating to promote the use of Integrated pest Management (IPM) to control pests in and around school facilities.

Penn State's College of Agricultural Sciences and College of Education will join with Pennsylvania's

Department of Agriculture and Department of Education to develop educational materials for use in the state's public school system and to conduct educational programs on IPM for teachers and students. The organizations also will identify IPM concepts and tools that best serve educational purposes and will cooperate to obtain public and financial support for IPM awareness and education.

The program was scheduled to be formalized Oct. 28 with the signing of a Memorandum of Understanding at the David L. Swartz Intermediate High School in Carlisle.

"IPM is an excellent vehicle for teaching life science concepts at the elementary, middle and high school levels," said Pete Rubba, professor of science education and head of the Department of Curriculum and Instruction in Penn State's College of Education. "Many of the concepts identified by the national Science Education Standards and the forthcoming Pennsylvania Curriculum Standards in science can be exemplified through IPM."

Some Pennsylvania school districts already have adopted IPM voluntarily to reduce reliance on pesticides. The Carlisle Area School District was chosen as the site of the memorandum signing because of its successful IPM program, which was implemented over the last year. "IPM helps us to provide a better, more environmentally friendly learning environment for students, teachers and staff," said Dr. Gerald Fowler, school superintendent.

IPM programs in schools rely heavily on prevention, sanitation, maintenance, pest monitoring and recordkeeping to reduce reliance on pesticides. Pesticides targeted to a specific pest are used only when and where monitoring indicates they are needed. In addition, materials that are least toxic and have the shortest duration are used. Pesticides are not applied when students, teachers or staff are present in the affected area to assure the safety of the school learning environment.

"The Integrated Pest Management partnership not only ensures the responsible use of pesticides, it ensures the safety of our children in the Commonwealth's schools," said Secretary of Agriculture Samuel E. Hayes. "With this program we protect our environment, our schools and our future."

New Jersey Nets player Chris Gatling promotes breakfast eating at a Newark, New Jersey school.

NBA Player Promotes School Breakfast

NEW YORK, N.Y. — To promote milk sales through the School Breakfast Program, the American Dairy Association and Dairy Council, Inc. (ADADC) arranged for New Jersey Nets' forward, Chris Gatling to make appearances at two schools in New York City and New Jersey.

On September 23, Gatling visited PS 52 in the Bronx, which helped increase breakfast attendance 100 percent! ADADC arranged for Dr. Bob Lee, a radio personality for popular urban radio station WBLS, to broadcast live from the cafeteria during the highly-rated morning program. In addition to Chris Gatling, several children were interviewed on the importance of eating breakfast, as well as the role of milk as the morning's "power beverage."

The following day, The Harold S. Wilson Middle School in Newark was the next stop for Chris Gatling. ADADC arranged for News 12 New Jersey to broadcast four live segments for a total of 16 minutes of airtime! The segments included interviews with the school principal (shown making breakfast behind the food line), the school food service director, and Chris Gatling. Attendance was up 100 percent, thus helping to increase milk sales.

You ask You answer

This column is for readers who have questions but don't know who to ask for answers.

"You Ask—You Answer" is for non-cooking questions. When a reader sends in a question, it will be printed in the paper. Readers who know the answer are asked to respond by mailing the answer, which will then be printed in the paper.

Questions and Answers to this column should be addressed to You Ask—You Answer, Lancaster Farming, P.O. Box 609, Ephrata, PA 17522. Attention: Lou Ann Good.

Do not send a self-addressed, stamped envelope for a reply. If we receive the answer, we will publish it as soon as possible. Please include your phone number because we sometimes need to contact the person to clarify details. We will not publish your phone number unless you request it.

Moles, Voles, Shrews: Notes From The Underground

UNIVERSITY PARK (Centre Co.) — What do chainsaws, beavers, and voles have in common? They all can damage trees, according to a wildlife biologist in Penn State's College of Agricultural Sciences.

"Homeowners and businesses can lose a lot of trees and other plantings to voles," said Gary

San Julian, professor of wildlife resources. "Now that fall's approaching, questions about voles increase."

Voles are small chunky rodents with short tails, blunt noses, and bead-like eyes. In Pennsylvania, two species can damage plants — the pine vole and the meadow vole. The pine vole lives in tunnels, San Julian explains, while the larger meadow vole builds nests and "runs" near or at the surface.

Pine and meadow voles damage trees by gnawing the bark near ground level. Pine voles also weaken trees by gnawing their roots. While teethmarks from rabbits are larger and more uniform, a vole's marks are distinctly tiny and irregular, occurring at various angles and in random patches. In winter, voles can reach surprising heights by tunneling through the snow.

"If you plant flower bulbs in the fall, and they don't come up the following spring, you could have a problem with pine voles," he says. "I've seen pine voles take out some monkey grass bulbs so fast it seemed like a cartoon."

Voles often are confused with moles or shrews, San Julian says. Because control methods for one animal may not work for another, it's important to know which species you're dealing with.

"Shrews eat insects — they're not a problem to anybody," he says. "Shrews are much smaller than moles or voles. One can fit inside a tablespoon."

"You can tell a mole from a vole by its paws," he adds, "While voles have small paws, moles have large spade-like front paws that they use for digging." Moles also have pointy, naked snouts and appear not to have eyes or ears.

"Some people don't like the spongy feeling mole tunnels make in their lawn," San Julian says, "but moles actually are beneficial. They eat grubs and insects, and help to condition and aerate the soil. If you really must control them, you can buy spear or choke traps at a hardware store. Also, a lawn insecticide will remove the moles' food sources and discourage them from using your yard."

To control voles, San Julian suggests setting mouse traps. Place the traps near holes or runs, baited with an oatmeal-peanut butter mixture or a small piece of apple. Then cover the traps with a large flower pot or box, making sure the traps can still close.

Voles can be live-trapped, but it is a good idea to release them at least a half-mile away in an overgrown field, or other places where they won't cause problems for other people.

"With large populations in orchards or Christmas tree farms, you may need to use toxicants," San Julian says. "These pesticides only can be used by certified pesticide applicators or their staff. To locate a wildlife pest control operator, check with your county extension office, or look through the Yellow Pages."

Two fact sheets, "Wildlife Damage Control 5: Moles" and "Wildlife Damage Control 9: Voles," list additional tips for controlling damage from voles and moles. Single copies are available free of charge by contacting your county Penn State Cooperative Extension and Outreach office, or by calling the College of Agricultural Sciences Publications Distribution Center at (814) 865-6713.

Other wildlife damage control publications also are available, including fact sheets on rabies, woodpeckers, black bears, bats, woodchucks, cottontail rabbits, tree squirrels, skunks, and geese, ducks and swans.

Youth Competition Highlights South Mountain Fair

JINNY WILT

Adams Co. Correspondent

ARENDSVILLE (Adams Co.) — Young people representing 4-H and FFA took part in competitions that highlighted the South Mountain Fair held in August near Arendtsville.

The 4-H and FFA beef breeding project animals were exhibited and included in an open beef show. This project is designed to help youth learn about the activities associated with the development of beef cattle.

In the dairy show, fitting, showmanship and animal type were part of the judging.

Marsha Bailey, McKnightstown, showed the grand champion 4-H steer. She received a permanent plaque from the South Mountain Fair.

Candice Flickinger, Biglersville, showed the reserve grand champion 4-H steer. She was also selected reserve champion 4-H fitter.

Chris Seymore, York Springs, was named champion 4-H fitter. He received a rotating plaque from K-Hill Farm, Abbottstown, and a permanent plaque from the South Mountain Fair.

Missy Jeffcoat of Littlestown was selected champion 4-H showman. She received a rotating plaque from Elva Ward of East Berlin, and a permanent plaque from the South Mountain Fair. Christ Jeffcoat of Littlestown was selected reserve champion 4-H showman.

Champions in each weight division were as follows: Champion lightweight, Derek Byers, McKnightstown; reserve champion lightweight, Dwight

SYRACUSE, N.Y. — The American Dairy Association and Dairy Council, Inc. (ADADC) held two successful milk promotion events at this year's New York State Fair, and the media came out in full force to convey the positive milk messages to consumers.

The first was the unveiling of the 30th Annual Butter Sculpture held in August 26. Months prior to the unveiling, ADADC placed articles in newspapers, asking consumers to submit their ideas for the butter sculpture using the theme of their favorite milk memory.

"We were trying to get people to conjure up positive memories associated with drinking milk," explained Beth Meyer, public relations specialist with ADADC.

More than 150 entries were received. Gail Akin of Liverpool was chosen as the winner. In her essay, Akin recalled her favorite milk memory—the sight of the milkman coming up her driveway.

"If there was a bottle of chocolate milk amongst the white bottles, my siblings and I knew that we did something good that week," said Akin, as she recalled how her mother would order a bottle of chocolate milk to reward the children for good behavior.

Akin's memory was brought to life through the 1,000 pounds of butter sculpted into a Norman Rockwell-type scene of children waiting for the milkman.

Ms. Akin was on hand for the traditional unveiling, where she read her essay in front of media cameras, as was Sharon BuMann, the sculptor.

Numerous television stations covered the event on their noon and evening news reports. Syracuse's Post Standard also featured photos and the story behind the butter sculpture on the opening day of the fair.

On Dairy Day, ADADC sponsored a milkshake contest called "Ready, Set, Shake," based on the popular "Ready, Set, Cook" program on the TV Food Network. Each team made up of media was challenged to come up with the best-tasting milkshake within a 15 minute time frame by using only the ingredients available to them provided by ADADC. "The purpose of this contest was to demonstrate how easy it is to make a quick, delicious and nutritious shake using milk and other foods that most people have in their homes," said ADADC's Beth Meyer.

WIXT-TV won first prize for their "Shake Your Booty" concoction, with WTVH-TV's Chocolate Strawberry Delight coming in second place. WSYT-TV's "Purple Explosion" won for most unusual combination of ingredients, while WSTM-TV's "Doppler's Delight" won for the

tion that attended the event, during their noon and evening broadcasts.

Park Rocks And Minerals

YORK (York Co.) — Nixon County Park will really "rock" on Sunday, November 8, when two special shows, both dealing with geology, come to the Nature Center from noon to 4 p.m.

The Rock and Mineral Show, which takes place from noon to 4 p.m., explores both sides of a "rock hound's" interests; educational presentations and the vendors who sell rocks, minerals, fossils, jewelry, gems, and other stones.

According to Larry Krause, a local "rock hounds" who helps with the shows, there will be speakers available at the show throughout the day; Krause said John Vanko will talk about crystallography, using, identifying, and understanding crystals; Al Pibula will focus on discovering the wonders of minerals through a microscope; Larry Eisenberger will show the art of "micro-mounting" rocks; other speakers will consider lapidary, or making jewelry with rocks and minerals.

The second program focuses on the geologic features unique to York County. Lead by York County Parks program facilitator Jeri Jones, a geologist by training, this show features displays on local rocks and rock collecting and how local geology shaped the history of York county. Jones said his program will operate from 2:30 p.m. through 4 p.m.

Both the Rock and Mineral Show and the Geology of York County program are free and open to the public. For more information on the event, contact Nixon County Park at 428-1961; or the York County Department of Parks and Recreation, 400 Mundis Race Road, York, PA 17402-9721, (717) 840-7440.

Reporters from WTVH-TV 5 receive an award at the American Dairy Association and Dairy Council's Ready, Set, Shake, a milkshake contest held on Dairy Day at the New York State Fair.

Improvements consists of 2 houses & 2 sets of buildings attractively situated along the Slab Rd. Main set of farm buildings consisting of a large 2-1/2 story frame home having 4 B.R.'s, 2 baths, lg. eat-in kitchen, dining & living room & den, & large wrap-around porch. Large detached 2-car garage, summer house w/kettle furnace, milk house, lg. implement shed & other buildings.

Second set of buildings known as the tenant house consisting of 3 bedroom frame home w/barn, hog barn, cattle barn & other necessary outbuildings.

Both homes are in good state of repair, have oil fired FHA heat, & tenant house is presently rented which brings in nice yearly income.

This is a very fertile, high producing farm, mostly level to gentle rolling for good drainage. There are sub-division rights to this farm, however interested parties should contact Lower Chanceford Township Officials for further information. Farm in Red Lion School District.

Farm is presently in the clean & green tax program. For inspection by appt. Phone 717-541-9262. Open house Oct. 24 & 31 from 10 A.M. to 2 P.M.

Lead paint disclosure form & farm plot provided at open house. Terms: 10% down day of auction. Settlement and possession in 60 days. Immediate possession upon full settlement. All growing crops reserved. Please don't overlook this fine farm at auction. Owner ready to sell. Not responsible for accidents.

Do For Research?

At Consolidated Nutrition research is not taken lightly. Our product development starts where most feed company's end with information gleaned from research journals and the like. With a research staff larger than most University's we set up and conduct research trials at our facilities in Indiana, Ohio, and Michigan, independent research may be contracted with a university, and then field trials. Once an idea passes all of these tests, it is then introduced to you.

Consolidated Nutrition has more cannulated cows than any other company in the industry. Feed samples are put directly in the cow's rumen to measure digestion rates and efficiencies.

Currently forage samples from area herds have been collected and are being studied to help us better balance rations around this year's forages!

New Odor Control Systems From Aerotech

MASON, Mich. — Two new products from the Environmental Division of Aerotech, Inc., use Advanced Oxidation Technology™ to destroy odors from livestock houses, pits and lagoons.

Marketed as The Extreme Clean Machines™, the systems use a patent-pending process to generate a super-reactive oxidizing agent that attacks and eliminates odor-causing organic molecules in the air and water. The system consists of an oxidation generator, which uses ultraviolet light to produce the oxidizer, and a distribution system that injects the oxidizer into the air, or pit and lagoon water.

The Michigan Biotechnology Institute documented a dramatic reduction in both house and lagoon odors, and fly populations. Lagoon water analysis by Michigan State University confirms a dramatic reduction in odors without significantly affecting the desirable anaerobic bacteria population needed to decompose wastes. Additional tests are under way at other leading universities and on commercial hog farms.

According to Bob Mitchell, Aerotech president, in addition to helping prevent legal actions and employee turnover, there are indications of actual cost savings from improved feed conversion and animal health, higher feed consumption, and lower fuel and electricity use.

"Odor is a serious problem that will never go away until self regulation or government regulation comes to the industry," reported Mitchell. "This product gives producers the affordable tool they need to control odors and avoid outside intervention."

Purchase Heavy Duty Rock Collection Equipment From Binkley & Hurst Bros. Today! Remove Field Rock & Save Your Equipment. Check Our Finance Plans.

In the Degelman tradition of quality rock removal equipment, here is the RR1500 rock rake, another example of Degelman's continuing commitment to excellence.

The RR1500 rock rake includes a unique auto-fold system which provides safe, easy transport no wider than most tractors (8 feet in transport position) with full use of the 14 foot width in the working position. And with hydraulic angling, it can take full advantage of the 10 to 30 degree angling range.

Degelman Rock Rakes are excellent machines for grooming fairways and conditioning soil for the construction of golf courses. It leaves a beautiful final finish preparing the course for seeding. They are also used for reclaiming gravel on gravel roads. And the heavy duty construction and quality workmanship means that it is built to last.

The SIGNATURE 6000 may be the only rock picker you'll ever need. This is the most rugged rock picker on the market. Some of the SIGNATURE 6000 features include:

Solid Shaft Grill Tines with Replaceable Grill Tips - This modern grill is easier to maintain, has longer life giving you less down time. The unique grill provides five feet of clean sifting and virtually jamless performance.

Grated Hopper Bottom - We use spring steel straps in the hopper, engineered to bounce back in shape.

Hydraulic Drive - The most popular drive on rock pickers is hydraulic which is standard on the 6000. We have incorporated a relief valve to take away the shock when disengaging the drive.

Reel Assembly - The three paddle reel has a large diameter, hard surfaced teeth and heavy duty paddles.

Flotation Tires - The 16.5L x 16.1 flotation tires are standard equipment and are a must to reduce soil compaction.

Swing Pole - Easy to maneuver in both working or transport position.

Your Source For Quality Grain Handling Equipment
 A premium quality galvanized auger designed for low maintenance operation.

Mayrath introduces the all new "InLine Drive" series of portable grain augers. Mayrath has combined operational efficiency with long term dependability providing you with a high quality, GALVANIZED auger at a very affordable price. The revolutionary "InLine Drive" system minimizes the number of moving parts greatly reducing costly downtime and maintenance in the future

Mayrath
 InLine Drive

DIAMETER	CAPACITY	LENGTHS
8"	3200 BPH	32', 42', 52', 62', 72'
10"	4500 BPH	32', 42', 52', 62', 72'

The unique "InLine Drive" design features an internally mounted gearbox inside of an expanded, bell shaped tube housing Auger flighting is positioned to allow a high volume of unrestricted grain flow around the internal gearbox. A new intake design utilizes double flighting and a cupped intake guard to offer a high capacity, complete cleanout operation. A specially engineered hopper bolts directly to top of the intake guard, further enhancing the augers capacity

The InLine Drive
 Unique in design, high in efficiency

The InLine Drive is the only auger with the internal gearbox design. This design allows for a high volume of grain flow around the internal gearbox. A new intake design utilizes double flighting and a cupped intake guard to offer a high capacity, complete cleanout operation. A specially engineered hopper bolts directly to top of the intake guard, further enhancing the augers capacity.

With New, Larger Mixing Capacities of 360 and 420 Cubic Feet

The new 3036 and 3042 Reel Auggies are designed to take the rugged, day-in, day-out mixer use on today's larger dairy and beef operations. The Reel Auggie will give a fast, thorough and gentle mix. Utilizing the patented Reel design but with new standard features such as:

- 1/4 of 1% load cell scale system
- Fully enclosed oil bath style rear drive to better handle truck mounting.
- 22" high by 36" wide discharge for faster unloading
- High/low axle setting
- Large 68" diameter reel with 20", sectional flighted, lower and upper augers.

Knight Manufacturing's 3036 and 3042 Reel Auggies...not only bigger, but better too!

With Ease*Case IH 3800 Mid-Size Disk Harrow

A high-output, economical tillage system built tough for long-lasting performance even in adverse conditions

- Sharp angle penetration for excellent fuel economy
- Easy-pulling, wear-resistant Earth Metal® blades reliably tackle the toughest field conditions

- Shallow concavity blades provide efficient tillage without soil compaction
- Standard self-leveling hitch, mechanical depth control and easy-to-adjust gangs for total control over working depths and residue management
- Available with 20 in. blade at 7'-1/2' in. spacing for soil finishing and chemical incorporation or 22 in. at 9 in. spacing for deeper tillage and increased residue clearance

Match A Spreader To Your Needs

Get Unmatched Flexibility At A Great Price.

With eight sizes to choose from and a wide variety of options it's easy to see how the New Idea® 3700 Series Spreaders meet the needs of any operation. Their aggressive main beater paddles are strategically spaced and angled to shred a wide range of material while giving you a consistent spread pattern.

Culvert-grade galvanizing over one-piece, copper-bearing steel sides provide a barrier against rust and corrosion. And for hauling long distances, the truck-mount option proves to be the safest, most economical way to transport large amounts of material.

To see how simple it is to customize your spreading operation, contact your AGCO® New Idea dealer today. You'll be surprised how much time and money you'll save with the New Idea 3700 Series Spreaders.

Super Boom™ is best

When you're looking for a skid-steer, there's the challengers and then there's the champ. Well say hello to the undisputed champ in the all-new Model LX885 New Holland Super Boom™ skid-steer loader.

It has a 60-horsepower, turbocharged diesel engine for the ultimate in power. Its massive 2,200-lb. operating load picks up where all others leave off. Of course, it has the features you expect from New Holland, such as the best speed, stability, visibility, lift height and dump reach in the industry. Add that to the Pick Up 'n Go™ universal attachment system and there's nothing it can't handle.

Stop by today and see for yourself why no other skid-steer can compare.

NEW HOLLAND

Why choose a New Holland skid-steer loader?

- Superior visibility
- Greater bucket & lift capacity
- Unbeatable stability
- The most attachments
- Faster speeds
- Unmated dependability
- Superior dump height & reach

GET PRECISE APPLICATION CONTROL

New Holland side-delivery spreaders provide the most material control. Whether you're light top dressing, laying down a heavy layer, or anything in between, the Model 3110 puts the right amount of material right where you need it.

- Handles a wide variety of material – slurry, gutter material, cow manure, even poultry litter
- V-tank design delivers material to the auger fast
- Heavy -duty round-core auger produces less drag
- Double-acting hydraulic cylinder moves auger up and down to keep material flowing
- Hydraulic gate and specially designed expeller give precise application control
- Backed by a 10-year warranty against tank rust-through

See us for all your spreader needs.

3 ways to make your work easier

High-visibility 75-85 hp* MF 4245 and 4255 models let you easily see the ground and work right in front of the tractor. They're ideal for loaders, row crops, and other tasks where forward view is paramount.

Standard MF 4200 Series models from 65-99 hp* provide great all-round visibility, a wide choice of features and options, plus outstanding comfort, performance, and value for all jobs.

Low-profile 55 hp* MF 4225 model combines the exceptional forward view of the high-visibility models with a lower cab (96-in. cab clearance on 16.9-30 tires).

GLENCOE® SS7200/SS7400 SOIL SAVER®

For your primary tillage needs, nothing prepares your seedbed better than Glencoe SS7200 or SS7400 Soil Savers. These one-pass tillage tools feature a heavy-duty 6"x4" frame with the strength to stand up to high horsepower tractors and years of hard use.

Our adjustable spring-cushioned slicer gang is rock-shaft mounted for optimum bearing and blade protection. Choose heavy-duty rigid, spring cushion or AutoReset shanks with twisted shovels or sweeps to match your conservation requirements. For even more versatility, Soil Savers have working widths that range from 6 to 21 feet.

To get a closer look at the SS7200 and SS7400 Soil Savers, contact us today. Once you see how easy it is to build the optimum seedbed, you'll wonder why you didn't purchase a Soil Saver sooner

Case Announces Three Self-Propelled Windrowers

Case IH 8860HP self-propelled windrower will accept Case IH 425 shiftable draper headers, 525 single sickle hay headers, or 625 dual sickle hay headers.

RACINE, Wis. — Led by the recent introduction of the Case IH 8870 self-propelled (SP) windrower tractor and 625 header, three new tractor models and three new headers complete the Case IH family this fall.

The new SP windrowers are part of a 15-product introduction, the largest hay and forage product introduction in Case history.

Rated at 80, 110, and 152 horsepower, the Case IH 8860, 8860HP, and 8880 SP windrowers follow in the tradition of high performance and customer convenience of Case IH Axial-Flow[®] combines and Magnum[™] and Maxxum[®] tractors.

"We integrated the best ergonomic and visibility features from the cab design of our Axial-Flow combines with the in-cab needs specific to the self-propelled windrower market," said Marsha Dabich, Case IH livestock production systems marketing manager. "These windrowers offer significant upgrades over previous models."

All three of the newest SP windrowers feature a durable, heavy-duty frame, spacious cab and entry with full-length, right-hand service access door. A rounded front windshield and 73 square feet of total glass area provide some of the best visibility in the industry, according to Case.

Comfort and convenience are built in with a full range tilt steering column with floating console, multi-function propulsion lever and an in-cab swath control option. A trainer's seat, digital readout monitor and speedometer, and AM/FM Weatherband radio are standard features on the 8880 windrower. Some of these features are optional on the two 8860 models.

The improvements do not end with the cab. The extra large 23.1x26 front drive tires on the 8880 windrower add to the comfort of driving in its deluxe cab. The chassis offers superb styling and easy serviceability with a rear tilt hood design providing access to the engine compartment. The fuel tank in all models is positioned at the rear of the machine, allowing easier access for fueling and excellent rear stability. The tank also is larger — a full 30 gallons more than the previous model for the 8880 SP windrower — enough to work all day.

In the field, Case IH SP windrowers have superior ground clearance, making them easy to drive over large, fluffy windrows without damaging their shape. On-the-go hydraulic header flotation allows the operator to easily adapt to changing crop and ground conditions, and use of hydraulics significantly reduces noise levels.

"Additionally, the 8860HP windrower allows the operator to tilt either hay or draper headers with a standard hydraulic top centerlink to pick up downed crop on-the-go, saving both time and profits," noted Dabich.

New Holland Wins Four Awards For Innovations

NEW HOLLAND (Lancaster Co.) — New Holland North America captured four of the prestigious Agricultural Engineering 50 (AE) Recognition Awards for 1998.

The awards are given by ASAE — the society for engineering in agricultural, food and biological systems.

New Holland developed four of the year's most innovative designs in engineering products or systems for the food and agriculture industries: the 1431 Discbine[®], the HW340 Self-Propelled Discbine[®] Disc Mower-Conditioner, the 1412 Discbine[®] Disco Mower, and the line of TNF Narrow Tractor.

Companies from around the world submit entries to the annual AE50 competition and up to 50 of the best products are chosen by a panel of national engineering experts for the food and agriculture industries.

New Holland's three award-winning haytool products are all manufactured at the company's Grand Island, Neb. plant.

The New Model 1431 Discbine[®] mower-conditioner provides the right- or left-hand cutting flexibility, performance and maneuverability of self-propelled units in a pull-type design.

The New Holland HW340 self-propelled disc mower-conditioner combines famed Speedrower[®] windrower dependability with the high speed cutting of New Holland Discbine[®] disc mower-conditioners to clear large acreage high-yield crops quickly.

The new Model 1412 New Holland Discbine[®] features a flail-type conditioner for more vigorous conditioning and faster curing in grass hay crops.

New Holland TNF Narrow Tractors are a new line of compact, powerful vineyard/orchard tractors with unsurpassed horsepower and maneuverability using the best in large-tractor technology.

Field Day Held

Hoover, Inc., with locations at Intercourse, McAlisterville, and Middletown, DE, held a field day Thursday at the Glen Engle Farm, Cochranville. According to Larry Herr, sales manager, the event was staged to show in operation, the size tractors, combines and tillage equipment that are applicable to our eastern farm size and farm practices. The rain overnight not only settled the dust but held up bean harvest at home, so more than 200 farmers attended the all-day event. Lunch was served. In the photo are from left, Herr; Charles Hoover, owner; and Ken Barr, Case business manager.

Brand Celebrates Rich Heritage

GREENVILLE, S.C. — The return of the BFGoodrich[®] brand to the agricultural market is based on a tradition of excellence and value that began when it entered the market more than 50 years ago.

Even a decade after the last BFGoodrich[®] farm tire rolled off the production line, the brand continues to be one of the most highly recognized names in the industry.

Here's a look at the rich history of BFGoodrich[®] farm and ranch tires.

- Late 1930s: Transition of industry from steel wheels to pneumatic tires. BFGoodrich Company becomes an original equipment supplier to some of the largest manufacturers in the market including John Deere, Ford, and International Harvester.

- 1947: The BFGoodrich company introduces its Hi-Cleat Power Grip[™] bias tire.

- 1951: The BFGoodrich Company's farm tire production is centered in Miami, Okla. Production includes a full range of bias drive (R-1), rice and cane (R-2), orchard (R3) and industrial lug (R-4) tires as well as farm fronts, implement and forestry tires.

- 1973: The BFGoodrich Company introduces the Powersaver Radial HT[™]. It is produced in eight large sizes and make up 32 percent of the radial mix of drive tires produced annually.

- 1970s. The Powersaver Radial HT achieves icon status, specified by every major original equipment manufacturer for five years.

- 1986: The BFGoodrich Company's corporate management reallocates resources to other divisions. The Miami, Okla., plant is closed. The Uniroyal Goodrich Tire Company is formed to carry on the BFGoodrich[®] brand line.

- 1990: Michelin acquires the BFGoodrich brand through the purchase of the Uniroyal Goodrich Tire Company.

- 1998: Michelin North America Inc. announces the return of the BFGoodrich[®] brand to the agricultural market with a new line of tires designed to continue a tradition of outstanding value and performance.

Martin Purchases Stone Company

BLUE BALL (Lancaster Co.) — On August 19, 1998, Martin Limestone, Inc., purchased the Valley Forge Stone Company of Honey Brook.

Valley Forge Stone Company employs 25 people at the quarry located off of Welsh Road, approximately two miles north of Honey Brook.

Valley Forge produces crushed sandstone and sand products which are primarily used in the construction industry for masonry work, ready-mix concrete, concrete block production, septic-systems, and driveways. The company's products also include sand used in golf courses, white decorative stone often used in walkways and landscaping, and a metered concrete business. Valley Forge Stone Company products are marketed in Pennsylvania, Delaware, Maryland, New Jersey, and New York.

Valley Forge Stone Company began in February 1976 when four brothers, Lloyd, Ed, Ronald, and Richard Zimmerman, purchased the property atop the Welsh Mountain. The Valley Forge name originated with an operation that had been in Valley Forge but moved to this site in the 1960s and then discontinued operations.

System Designed For One-Pass Tillage

ATLANTA, Ga. — The Glencoe UM 6000 UniMulch is designed to make the most of conservation tillage while preparing a "seed ready" seedbed in one trip across the field.

With its mixing, aerating and leveling action, the UM6000 can also be used to effectively incorporate herbicides and fertilizers, even in heavy corn stalk residue.

Its wide working width — available in five widths, 18, 21, 25.5, 30 and 34.5 feet — combined with its multiple tillage tool design, helps producers save on fuel and labor with high horsepower tractors. It uses spring-cushioned disc gangs that are rockshaft mounted for optimum bearing and blade protection.

Both Valley Forge and Martin Limestone, Inc. serve contractors and homeowners within a 50 to 100 mile radius of their plants. Martin Limestone, Inc. operates limestone quarries in Lancaster County and has two other divisions — Burkholder Paving in Martindale and New Holland Concrete in New Holland.

The late Ivan M. and Irene Martin began the company in 1933 at the Weaverland Quarry located between Blue Ball and Terre Hill.

Valley Forge Stone Company President Lloyd Zimmerman said he expects the purchase to have a positive impact on everyone involved.

Martin Limestone, Inc. is a subsidiary of New Enterprise Stone and Lime Company, Inc. in New Enterprise, Pa. New Enterprise bought Martin Limestone, Inc. in 1975. New Enterprise Stone and Lime Company, Inc. is a family-owned business that operates a road construction division, quarries, asphalt plants and concrete plants throughout Central Pennsylvania.

More Than 44,000 To Attend FFA Convention

INDIANAPOLIS, Ind. — "FFA - Making the Connection" is the theme for the 71st National FFA Convention, symbolizing the agricultural education organization's mission to prepare students to create the link between themselves, their communities, the agricultural industry, and the nation.

More than 44,000 FFA members, advisers, supporters, and guests are expected to attend the convention Nov. 12-14 in the Municipal Auditorium and H. Roe Bartle Hall in Kansas City, Mo., only a few blocks from where the FFA was founded in 1928.

"FFA members are making the connection by merging traditions of the past with visions of the future," said Larry D. Case, national FFA adviser, "and there's no better place than the National FFA Convention to see the energy, motivation, and talent that will unite us with our ever-changing world."

"Students from across the country celebrate each other's successes, share their pride in American agriculture, and concentrate on leadership, personal growth, and career success. Watching those 44,000 students come together with such pride and energy is the best guarantee we have for the future of agriculture and of our nation."

The national convention, the culmination of a year's activities for FFA members, is an opportunity for recognition, business, elections and celebration. Delegates from each state will discuss topics affecting the national organization and elect a new team of national officers. Exceptional members and supporters will receive awards for their achievement and commitment to the FFA. Students will compete for national titles in several events, including speaking and parliamentary procedure competitions.

Opportunities for personal growth and leadership development continue with presentations by educational and motivational speakers including Gerda Klein, author and historian, Baxter Black, cowboy poet; Les Brown, motivational speaker; Warren Faidley, storm chaser; and Robin Roberts, sport anchor.

Future education and career exploration also are key components of the convention. Students will have the opportunity to meet business and industry supporters of the FFA, represented through the 1998 National FFA Foundation Sponsors' Board chaired by Charles Fischer, vice president of Dow AgroSciences, North America and hundreds of exhibitors will provide information about education and career possibilities at the concurrent National FFA Alumni Convention and FFA National Agricultural Career Show.

The National FFA officers, a team of six student leaders, help plan the convention and other activities and represent the FFA on a national level. The officers kick off the convention the afternoon and evening of Nov. 11 with the opening Reflections sessions, a series of dramatic and motivational presentations that generate excitement and set the theme for the convention. The 1997-1998 National FFA Officers are Hillary Smith, national president from Perry, Georgia; Shannon Wilcox, national secretary from Kenton, Ohio; Mark Wilburn, central region vice president from Laddonia, Missouri; Dana A. Fisher, eastern region vice president from Maurertown, Virginia; Amber Miller, southern region vice president from Louisville, Alabama; and Cody Nash, western region vice president from Inez, Texas. American Star Farmer, Star in Agribusiness Finalists

The National FFA Organization named four finalists for each of its two most prestigious awards, the American Star Farmer and the American Star in Agribusiness. These awards recognize students who have established profitable agricultural enterprises or agribusiness programs, demonstrated outstanding management skills, earned the American FFA Degree — the organization's highest level of accomplishment — and met other agricultural education and leadership requirements.

Star Farmer finalists are Shane Becker, 21, Worthington, Minn.; Lance Dobbins, 22, Thomas, Okla.; Dana Boehm, 21, Taylor, Texas; and Charles Pearce, 21, Walworth, Wis.

Star in Agribusiness finalists are Jere Stewart, 21, Nampa, Idaho; Andrew Tygrett, 20, Atalissa, Iowa; K.C. Gregg, 20, Spencer, S.D.; Troy Ambrose, 20, Amherst, Wis.

Each finalist will receive $1,000 from the National FFA Foundation and will travel to Europe or Costa Rica for an international experience tour.

A panel of judges will interview the finalists and select one winner for each award at the 71st National FFA Convention Nov. 12-14 in Kansas City, Mo. Winners will receive an additional $1,000.

Stewart Saw Composting Dairy Manure As Business Opportunity

"I saw the potential for an opportunity to start my own business," said Jere Stewart, Nampa, Idaho. "I was certain compost would make a profitable business for several reasons." The 21-year-old began his business after being approached about composting their stockpile of manure on the family's dairy operation.

To recognize his accomplishments, the National FFA Organization named him a 1998 American Star in Agribusiness finalist, one of the agricultural education organization's highest honors. He will compete with three other finalists for the award at the 71st National FFA Convention Nov. 12-14 in Kansas City, Mo.

Stewart always knew he would eventually take over his family's farming operation. However, when he saw this opportunity to start his own business, he started setting goals. "My initial goal was to make enough money to get my investment back," Stewart said.

He progressed toward his goals faster than he expected. "I was certain my business would grow due to the greater education of today's environment concerns, but I never expected that in two and a half years I would have to tell someone that I was out of compost," Stewart said.

The former Kuna FFA Chapter member won the National Agriculture Processing Proficiency award in 1996, which earned him a trip to Costa Rica in 1997.

"One never realizes how much work goes into doing something until you've done it. I have to say that I am pleased with what has come about, and I'm excited and looking forward to what the future holds," he said.

Stewart's FFA advisers were Joe Blackstock and Shawn Dygert.

Marketing Skills Pay For Tygrett

"Many skills have had a major impact on my success," said Andrew Tygrett, Atalissa, Iowa. "However, the skill that have helped me achieve and set future goals are marketing skills." The 20-year-old established markets for his floral crops with three local florists with four different farmers markets within a 130-mile radius.

Tygrett's interest in floriculture began in 1989 when his father purchased flats of annuals, which he managed. In 1997 Tygrett bought 117 acres for expansion — the size and scope of which will allow him to meet the demands of a specialized market.

Finalist for the National FFA Organization's 1998 American Star in Agribusiness Award, one of the agricultural education organization's highest honors, he will compete with three other finalists for the award at the 71st National FFA Convention Nov.

12-14 in Kansas City, Mo.

"I have many advantages in my program — a local gladiolus grower lives close by and has served as my mentor. He has allowed me to use land to plant my gladiolus corms, in exchange for labor," Tygrett said. "My parents have also played an integral part, in my success. They have helped me expand my project by lending a hand when needed."

"To be successful, I must have attractive displays, competitive pricing and produce quality gladiolus, dahlias, vegetables, bedding plants, and other cut flowers that customers demand," Tygrett said. "I plan on using this method in the future to market new crops like organic vegetables, hay and small grains to local customers and at farmers markets."

The Wilton FFA Chapter member has won the 1997 National Floriculture Proficiency and the 1996 National Agri-Entrepreneur awards. Tygrett was also named the 1997 Iowa Star in Agribusiness. His FFA adviser is Bill Hammes.

Long, Hard Hours Helped Gregg With Future Goals

"During the course of the year I participated in many school activities, and did my chores in the evening plus I would work 10- to 12-hour days most weekends," said K.C. Gregg, Spencer, S.D. "This is a trait that I have learned over the years from my parents and grandparents."

Gregg, 20, is a finalist for the National FFA Organization's 1998 American Star in Agribusiness Award, one of the agricultural education organization's highest honors. He will compete with three other finalists for the award at the 71st National FFA Convention Nov. 12-14 in Kansas City, Mo.

"As a freshman I mapped out a plan of what I hoped to be able to accomplish with my SAE, which included winning a proficiency in beef production at the state level," Gregg said. "I surpassed this goal by winning the 1996 National Proficiency Award in Beef Production Placement."

"My job at Red Rock Angus farm has offered me so much in the pursuit of my future goals," Gregg said. "After a few years I increased my responsibilities with Red Rock Angus. This past year I artificially inseminated all the cows and heifers, completed rations for all the cattle on the ranch, and maintained a herd health program."

The MC Cook Central FFA Chapter member also has used his skills in many ways. During his junior year of high school Gregg's mother was diagnosed with cancer and was the primary source of income for the family. After his mother passed away he has been given many added responsibilities. Terry Rieckman is Gregg's adviser.

"It is my goal to someday teach and coach in a small school, and start my own beef herd," Gregg said. "The knowledge and skills I have learned from my SAE, agriculture classes, and the FFA will help me in offering to students the best knowledge I can."

Ambrose Sees Potential In Expanding Lawn-Care Operation

"There is a great demand for lawn care services especially with today's busy lifestyles," said Troy Ambrose, Amherst, Wis. The 20-year-old signed contracts with neighboring village to maintain all its parks and ball diamonds.

In addition to already expanding lawn care business, Ambrose hopes to further his business into landscape design. "I want to provide smaller quantities of decorative stone, bark and black dirt to people who want to do their own landscaping projects on a smaller scale than what other companies deliver it for."

"My operation offers a wide variety of services to clients including: mowing, trimming, spring and fall clean-up, planting shrubs, fertilizing lawns, sweeping driveways and lawn weed control," Ambrose said.

Ambrose is a finalist for the National FFA Organization's 1998 American Star in Agribusiness Award, one of the agricultural education organization's highest honors. He will compete with other finalists for the award at the 71st National FFA Convention Nov. 12-14 in Kansas City, Mo.

"I will continue with the partnership in the lawn care service with my dad and brother," Ambrose said. "I would like to expand the business and hire high school students for the extra hours that will be needed."

The Amherst FFA member learned to set goals for himself. "The FFA and agricultural education have taught me responsibility as well as record keeping and communication skills that have helped me become an active community member." One of Ambrose's first goals was to apply for his State FFA Degree. However, he has exceeded that and has been selected as a Turf Grass Management National Proficiency Award Winner. Ambrose's adviser is Tim Pederson.

Barker Accepts Challenge, Chooses Farming

"For as long as I can remember, I've been interested in farming," said Shane Becker, Worthington, Minn. "With my strong will, my parents' help, and my love for farming, I eagerly accepted the challenge and became actively involved."

"I have made progress toward achieving my goals by increasing yields without increasing my input costs," Becker said. "This year I planted 40 percent of my corn acres to Bt corn to reduce corn borer yield loss." The 21-year-old uses innovative management practices to increase overall profitability.

Becker is a finalist for the National FFA Organization's 1998 American Star Farmer Award, one of the agricultural education organization's highest honors. He will compete with three other finalists for the award at the 71st National FFA Convention Nov. 12-14 in Kansas City, Mo.

"An FFA skill which has helped me is the ability to sit back and look at the big picture and realize how everything I do is connected to everything on and off the farm," Becker said.

Becker's motivation comes from a strong desire, help from his parents, and a love for growing crops and operating machinery. "Hard work and long hours have brought my operation to this point," Becker said.

As a Sioux Valley-Round Lake-Brewster FFA Chapter member, Becker knows that each experience through the FFA and on the farm will continue to help him become a better manager. Becker's adviser is Gerald McConkey.

"My FFA experiences have given me the knowledge, leadership skills, experience, and ability to set goals so that I may continue to experience the pride which comes from working hard, doing a good job and looking toward improvement in the future," Becker said.

Dobbins Determined To Keep Farming, Ranching Tradition Alive

"I have always had a true love for animals. This coupled with my family tradition of production agriculture, led me to develop a strong desire to raise cattle, said Lance Dobbins, Thomas, Okla. This 22-year-old third generation rancher now owns 650 head of cattle, 448 acres of grain land, and 704 acres of hay ground.

After making his initial investment of four head of stocker steers, he reinvested into an expanding herd. Dobbins soon started importing Mexican cattle at a reduced cost, in turn using a value-added approach to make a substantial profit from these cattle.

To recognize his accomplishments, the National FFA Organization named him a 1998 American Star Farmer finalist, one of the agricultural education organization's highest honors. He will compete with three other finalists for the award at the 71st National FFA Convention Nov. 13-15 Kansas City, Mo.

Dobbins had several sleepless nights for a young teen-age boy. He took out a loan to purchase more land. This additional responsibility of the loan drive Dobbins to pay strict attention to the health and performance of his cattle. "This served to fuel my fire to convince me that one day I want to become self-employed in the field of production agriculture," Dobbins said.

"My future plans include continuing to expand the size and scope of my operation," Dobbins said. "I believe this is a distinct possibility if I continue to use the latest technology, careful management, and maintain accurate records."

This Thomas-Fay-Custer FFA member feels that he received skills that allowed him to keep very accurate, detailed, and well-organized set of records. Other skills he has obtained while in FFA have been his marketing abilities. "By keeping a close eye on the markets and charting price trends, I have been able to start developing a marketing strategy that allows me to see the greatest return out of my investments," said Dobbins.

Dobbins FFA advisers are Jim Maddox and Dale Glazier.

Boehm Makes Big Money From Interest In Agriculture

"Agriculture has been the center of my personal, scholastic and professional life, having been born and raised as a fourth generation agriculturist," said Dana Boehm, Taylor, Texas. "I thoroughly enjoy every aspect of farm life and derive great satisfaction from the hard and honest work ethic instilled within American agriculture."

The National FFA Organization recognized Boehm's success by naming her a 1998 American Star Farmer finalist, one of the agricultural education organization's highest honors. She will compete with three other finalists for the award at the 71st National FFA Convention Nov. 12-14 in Kansas City, Mo.

"For years I had experienced what it took to be successful in production agriculture: dedication, perseverance, financial planning an extremely hard work ethic," Boehm, 21, said. However, being a girl on a farm run by men it was hard for her to become more actively involved. "I was pushed aside when it came to doing the 'fun stuff' because 'it wasn't a girl's place to be.'"

"Goals that I set forth have ranged from efficiency and production levels in my yields to state and national FFA award recognition. The awards and goals that I set my sights on would reflect superior production levels encompassing 5,000+-pound maize yields and 140+-bushel corn averages," Boehm said.

Boehm hails from the Hutto FFA Chapter. She was valedictorian in her class and is now attending Texas A&M University studying veterinary science. Boehm also was the state beef proficiency winner. Her FFA adviser is Don Kuempel Jr.

"Increasing competitive food markets, food processing concerns, and shifting consumer demands are only a few of the many issues that are altering the environment for U.S. livestock producers," she said. "It is imperative that my generation take an aggressive stance in preserving this country's greatest asset: agriculture."

Pearce Is Living The American Dream

"Owning your own business and making a sizable profit is the American dream — it's also mine," said Charles Pearce, Walworth, Wis. "I'm still learning every day with every new experience."

Growing up on his family's farm, Pearce, 21, had a chance to make a difference in their operation. "Feeling the pride of making a difference, while working, I knew this was the field I wanted to pursue," he said.

Pearce is a finalist for the National FFA Organization's 1998 American Star Farmer Award, one of the agricultural education organization's highest honors. He will compete with three other finalists for the award at the 71st National FFA Convention Nov. 12-14 in Kansas City, Mo.

Pearce now manages more than $2 million worth of assets jointly with his family. "I now carry out all meetings with our loan adjuster, crop consultant, feed consultant, accountant and employees," Pearce said. "In the next 10 years I plan to expand my crop enterprise to more than 3,000 total acres."

"I enjoy taking risks and being my own boss, having my own decision making process, and having a variety of job roles: planning, buying inputs, selling commodities, planting, tilling, harvesting, managing personnel, and trouble shooting," Pearce adds.

The September Dairy Herd Improvement information for dairy herds from the DHI processing center in Provo, Utah. The list includes herds from Maryland, Pennsylvania, and West Virginia. The information is listed by herd name, county association, number of cows in the herd and the average production per cow in the herd based on Energy Corrected Milk (ECM). ECM combines milk production and components.

The ECM formula is: (7.2 x lbs. protein) + (12.95 x lbs. fat) + (.327 x lbs. milk). To be included, the herd must have 10 cows averaging 65 pounds or more of ECM per cow, per day. All herds reported are on official DHI or DHIR test. Also listed are the top ten herds in Maryland for the Brown Swiss, Guernseys, and Jerseys, and the top seven herds for Ayrshires.

JOYCE BUPP

York Co. Correspondent

YORK (York Co.) — The crowing of ringnecked pheasants once echoed around the fields and meadows of southcentral Pennsylvania. But the numbers of these brilliantly-plumed birds have plunged over the past few decades, until they have become almost a rarity on many area farms.

A national group of pheasant enthusiasts has dedicated itself toward reestablishing the populations that were once commonplace in some parts of the country, but which have diminished in recent times.

Several active members of the Susquehanna Valley chapter of Pheasants Forever are working diligently in York County with farm and conservation segments toward helping to reestablish the once prominent game bird.

"We don't stock pheasants. We are about habitat and education," emphasized York countian Mike Thoman, habitat chairman for the local chapter. Much of that educational effort is directed toward helping landowners establish plots of habitat and nesting cover catering to the preferences of ringnecks.

Thoman compares the plight of the ringnecks to that of the Eastern bluebird, which, until recently, was also becoming a rarity. By building and siting bluebird houses across the countryside, an involved public has helped to restore the bluebirds to more plentiful numbers. Pheasants Forever members would like to replicate that effort with the ringneck species.

"If they don't have the proper conditions, they'll go by the wayside," Thoman said, of the pheasant's short lifespan of two to three years. "So, it doesn't take too long to wipe out a population."

Pheasants need suitable winter habitat to maintain populations through the periods of short feed and reduced cover.

While corn and small grain residue once provided such cover with abundance, those acres have steadily diminished over the years. And while farmers have found it economical to follow small grains with soybean plantings, soybean stubble leaves sparse cover for gamebirds.

Thus, a key focus of Pheasants Forever habitat restoration is planting of plots of suitable cover grasses, with special emphasis on switchgrass. Though notoriously slow to start and become established, this native perennial grass offers ideal habitat for pheasants.

One established, switchgrass holds up well in drought, maintains a stand for about 20 years once well established, and will generally yield at least one good cutting of hay that is well suited for both dry dairy cow and beef cow feed. And, though it gives less yield, switchgrass' drought-resistant tendencies keep it growing when other hay crops succumb to lack of moisture.

While snow cover will partially flatten the dried standing stalks of switchgrass, it does not collapse completely to the ground. A bunch grass, it helps form "tunnel" beneath a cover of snow, passages in which birds and small animals can seek food in relative safety.

Switchgrass has become part of the vocabulary of one of Thoman's fellow Yorkers and enthusiasts is the pheasant project, Kevin Roland.

"In 1992, the word 'switchgrass' could have been French, for all I knew about it," said Roland, who works actively with public relations and promotion for the local chapter.

In York County, the Susquehanna Valley Pheasants Forever group is cooperating with the Army Corps of Engineers to establish plots of switchgrass habitat on State Game Lands which form part of the flood plain maintained for the Indian Rock Dam.

The dam on the Codorus Creek, an emergency one closed periodically when unusually heavy rains threaten downtown York, backs up water on acres of flood plain, then releases it slowly to prevent the flooding of the city.

The chapter is also beginning to work with the Pennsylvania Game Commission, Chesapeake Bay and various United States Department of Agriculture conservation-related programs aimed at helping farmers and landowners develop habitat favorable for pheasant habitat.

The Wildlife Habitat Incentive Program (WHIP) is one of the most recent programs developed from the 1996 Farm Bill which may offer a further boost toward the goals of Pheasants Forever. Information on that program is available from local offices of USDA's Farm Service Agencies.

"We're still getting our feet wet in experimenting with plantings," Thoman said. Much of that effort starts with their annual auction, which is the prime source of the funds the chapter raises toward financing its pheasant restoration programs.

Because of limited funds and the increasing costs of habitat establishment, Pheasants Forever activists can only tackle a handful of their ambitious goals.

In working with landowners interested in establishing habitat, the chapter focuses on helping provide seed for the plantings. But switchgrass seed, for instance, nearly tripled in cost from only one year ago. In 1997, it was available for $3.10 per pound, while this season's cost jumped to the $11-per-pound range.

Recommended seeding rate is 10 pounds per acre; thus, seed cost increases further limit the chapter's ability to help develop additional habitat. So in addition to their funding efforts, sometimes these dedicated gamebird enthusiasts offer their own labor.

At the Steve Martin farm near Spring Grove, the chapter has jumped in to help with state and local agency conservation program efforts under way to restore meadow wetlands.

The site was once a pond which washed away during extremely heavy rainfall many years ago. As part of the restoration of the meadow, steambank fencing and cattle water troughs are being installed, as well as an emergency spillway to handle possible future flood threats to the low-lying area.

From the left, Mike Thoman, Kevin Rohland and Wendy Zwally look over a wildlife cover planting done through the effort of the Susquehanna Valley Chapter of Pheasants Forever, an international organization devoted to the restoration and preservation of pheasant habitat. Thoman and Rohland are with Pheasants Forever, while Zwally is with the York County Soil Conservation District. The planting incorporates switchgrass.

Conservation staffers work with leveling equipment in the conversion effort to make a washed-out pond into a wetlands-wildlife area, on the Spring Grove area farm of Steve Martin.

Pheasants Forever members have helped with physical labor, primarily helping to clear multi-flora rose stands, and will further fund costs of seeding. Grasses such as redbud and tall fescue will be incorporated for the particular planting.

"Part of our motivation is to have demonstration sites at places visible to the public," Thoman said. The Martin farm roadside location, between Seven Valleys and Jefferson in southwestern York County, provides an ideal site where improvements being made are easily visible to the public.

In an effort to maximize their limited funds, the chapter earlier donated $1,000 for State Game Lands plantings of switchgrass in Cumberland County. With seed harvested from that developing stand, Pheasants Forever has been able to expand their involvement to Adams County.

"Pheasant habitat does not need to be in the 'back 40's,'" Thoman said, explaining how even small corners of land can be useful for wildlife. "It can enhance something that was wasteland. And it's something you may be able to do with just a few acres; it doesn't have to be a big area."

Participation in seeding programs with Pheasants Forever does not require a landowner to open the land to hunting or public access. And, while most government-related conservation programs have specific requirements to meet, Pheasants Forever does not ask landowners to sign contracts of any sort.

For instance, Pheasants Forever is sometimes able to obtain outdated seed from commercial seed companies for use by landowners interested in planting cover crops for wildlife feed through the winter. However, landowners who receive and plant such donated seed must leave the crop stand for wildlife use; harvest from such donated plantings may not be used commercially.

The Susquehanna Chapter of Pheasants Forever is interested in working with landowners to establish more habitat and provide cover for ringnecks. Landowners seeking more information on their programs and activities may contact the group at P.O. Box 7253, York, PA 17404-7253, or call Kevin Rohland at 717-767-6548.

Through this group's untiring devotion and efforts, working hand-in-hand with cooperating landowners, perhaps one day the proud crow of the cockbird ringneck will once again be a commonplace sound across the fields and meadows of southcentral Pennsylvania.

HI-MOISTURE SHELLED CORN SILO WITH HOPPER FLOOR

"Hi-Moisture Shelled Corn"

You know the advantages of hi-moisture shelled corn versus dry corn for animal feeding. So now consider the many advantages of POURED CONCRETE to store and protect your valuable grain. "Our 6" thick concrete walls reflect 38% of light beams, resulting in 780 times more heat-resisting ability than steel, and 25 times more insulating power than steel."

"Our 6" thick walls have a very low leak potential compared to prefab silos of any kind and a very low maintenance requirement."

WARNING, ALL SILO OWNERS
Check your silo now for rotten staves. If you have been using your silo for 10 to 15 years for either corn silage or haylage, it is time to SHOTCRETE

RESURFACES INTERIORS:

- Coats the silo's interior
- Protects feed in storage
- Durable, tough, acid-resistant
- Increase useful life
- Economical

Before The silo's interior with plaster damaged and stave exposed

After The surface is reconditioned, and a new, thick tough surface will protect stored feed.

REPAIRS HOLES:

- Repairs even large holes
- Up to twice the strength of the original stave
- Rapid application
- Durable surface

Before A hole is worn completely through the silo wall

After With the hole repaired by ShotCrete and a new surface applied, the silo is ready for years of use

EXTENDS USEFUL LIFE:

- Support for old foundations
- Special repairs can be made quickly and economically
- Little or no forming needed
- Stronger than the original

Before The bottom part of the stave is completely worn away

Alley Cat™ Cable Scraper System

INCREASE YOUR MILK PRODUCTION WITH THE DEPENDABLE SCRAPER THAT KEEPS YOUR BARN CLEANER!

A cleaner barn means a healthier, better producing herd. The Alley Cat's proven "V"-shaped blade moves large volumes of manure at a safe 7" per minute in 7' to 14' wide alleys. It automatically folds together for the return route. The system features extra strength long-life 3/8" stainless steel cable for added dependability. Plus its programmable timing feature cleans according to your - and your cows' - schedule. But the real secret to the Alley Cat's reliable performance is in its powerful and efficient drive. The drive system can pull up to eight scraper blades and clean up to 880' of alley length.

Put less wear and tear on your tractor or skid loader, and start saving time and money with the Cable Scraper System that out cleans them all - the Alley Cat Cut stall clean-out time by 50% with a Millcreek Compact Spreader.

"The spreading efficiency sure outweighs the price. This is a wonderful machine. I couldn't be more pleased."
 EARL SINKS - Brock, Texas

Say "Good-Bye" to back-breaking manure handling and cut stall clean-out time in half. Hook an affordable Millcreek Compact Spreader to your 10 hp garden tractor, take it right to the stall for easy loading. No more wheelbarrow.

Millcreek Spreaders last and last

Since spreaders are our specialty, we put more into each one. For example our 20-year guaranteed floor will never rust or rot. Positive chain drive provides excellent spreading action. And tough steel construction holds up to rugged farm use. Seven sizes, for 1-horse barns to 50-horse stables. PTO and ground drive models available.

Announcing New Products for Dairy, Swine & Poultry Producers.

With the addition of our new soybean processing facility, we now offer these products to meet your nutritional needs. Manufacturing these products ourselves allows us to utilize locally grown soybeans and support our local agricultural community!

GOLDEN PRO 46 XP

This natural, mechanically extruded and expelled soybean product is experiencing great acceptance with local dairy-men. A course golden colored meal with a 6% fat content, Golden Pro 46 XP is extremely palatable. Golden Pro 46 XP is a natural way to bring the value of high by-pass protein into diets that require a lower fat level.

CRUDE SOYBEAN OIL

A product of Keystone's expelling process, this oil can be used in a wide variety of on farm applications. A natural alternative to animal fats, this oil provides needed energy in various rations.

GOLDEN MEAL 40

An 18 percent fat content along with a 40 percent crude protein makes this mechanically extruded meal product a valuable component in a variety of rations. Full fat content gives you a high level of digestible energy, while high temperature extruding ruptures the oil cells for better nutritional absorptions.

To make these products available, and to help you utilize your home raised soybeans

Soybean Exchange Program

As manufacturers and distributors of Golden Pro 46 XP and Golden Meal 40, we are anxious for you to try our products. We are offering a soybean exchange program featuring these quality nutritional products.

IN ALUMINUM BODIES EBY BUILDS IT

M.H. Eby custom-builds aluminum truck bodies for the agri-transportation market. Nobody offers more sizes and options in:

- FLATBED BODIES - Lengths to 32', choice of 5 widths
- GRAIN BODIES - Lengths to 24', landscape and general purpose dumps to 12'
- LANDSCAPE BODIES - Lengths to 12', We'll build to your specs!

For greater payload capacity, Eby's aluminum design is equal in strength to steel and up to 40% lighter. Our corrosion-resistant components never need painting. That means minimum maintenance, improved appearance and higher resale value.

Eby products have superior standard features. And we offer customer options for virtually any application. Agriculture is your business - building bodies to haul it is ours.

PURINA DAIRY HERD PROFILE

ROLLING HERD AVERAGE 23,000 LBS.

For this Chester County dairy farm, the family in family farm is really obvious. Not only do Samuel and Marian Stoltzfus take a special interest in their cows, their three children, Jay Richard 13, Beverly 12, and Andrea 7, do too. Checking the DHIA records to see how their favorite cows are doing or checking calf ID reports to anticipate future cow family possibilities are all part of what these Stoltzfus youths call fun.

Milking 71 registered and grade Holsteins under the Chester-Plane prefix, rolling herd average production is at 23,000 pounds of milk with individual records to 35,000 pounds. Right now, the herd is being moved to a modern dairy barn that sits on 13 acres between route 30 and the main road into Coatesville. The Stoltzfus family started to buy the dairy herd 15 years ago and now they have purchased their farm. They also rent 300 acres for crop production and nutrient management.

A TMR feeding program now utilizes Purina's Proteus concentrate and high moisture corn. Samuel is especially pleased with Purina feeds and service. "I have fed Purina feeds all my life to all my dairy animals from calves, heifers, and dry cows to the milking herd," Samuel said. I wouldn't feed anything else. I'm satisfied with production and have no complaints about service.

"I have also visited their research farm and this farm gives the company a great advantage. Whenever they have a feed it has been tested before it is put on the market. They don't try it out on you. It's down pat before it gets to the farmer."

Purina representative Doug High says it is a real pleasure to work with the young Stoltzfus family because it has been the cows that have paid the bills and allowed them to buy the herd and now buy a farm. The Stoltzfus family is quick to give credit to others and the Lord for the support they have received along the way.
